TALE OF A TUB.

Written for the

UNIVERSAL IMPROVEMENT

OF

MANKIND.

Diu multumque desideratum.

To which is added,

An Account of a BATTLE between the Ancient and Modern Books in St. James's Library.

ALSO

A Discourse concerning the Mechanical Operation of the SPIRIT, in a LETTER to a FRIEND.

A Fragment.

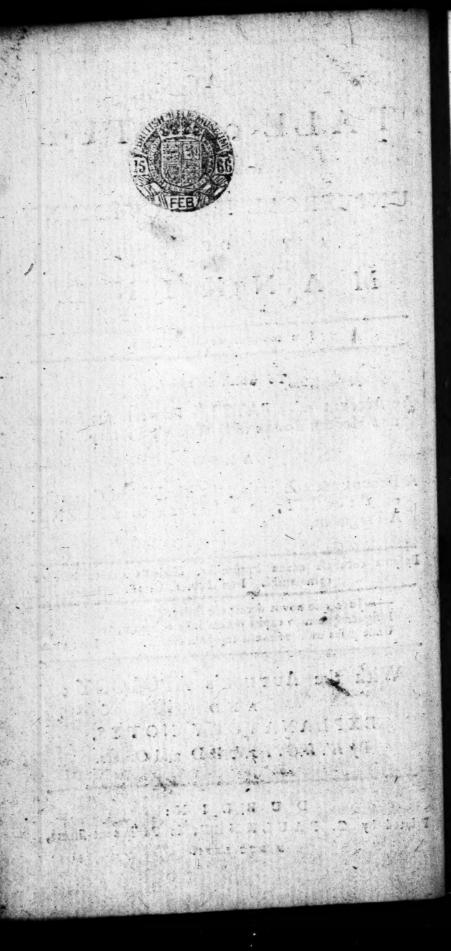

Basyma cacabasa eanaa irraumista, diarbada caesta basobor camelanthi. Iren. Lib. 1. C. 18.

Infignemque meo capiti petere inde coronam, Unde prius nulli velarunt tempora Muía.

With the Author's APOLOGY

EXPLANATORY NOTES.
By W. WOTTON, B.D. and Others.

DUBLIN:
Printed by G. FAULKNER, in Parliament-Street,

THE AUTHOR'S

APOLOGY.

Mankind, I might have faved myself the Trouble of this Apology; for it is manifest by the Reception the following Discourse hath met with, that those who approve it are a great Majority among the Men of Taste; yet, there have been two or three Treatises written expressly against it, besides many others that have stirted at it occasionally, without one Syllable having been ever published in its Defence, or even Quotation to its Advantage, that I can remember, except by the polite Author of a late Discourse between a Deist and a Socinian.

Therefore, fince the Book seemeth calculated to live, at least as long as our Language and our Taste admit no great Alterations, I am content to convey some Apology along with it.

The greatest Part of that Book was sinished above thirteen Years since, (1696) which is eight Years before it was published. The Author was then Young, his Invention at the Height, and his Reading fresh in his Head. By the Afsistance of some Thinking, and much Conversation, he had endeavoured to strip himself of as many real Prejudices as he could: I say real ones, because under the Notion of Prejudices, he knew to what dangerous Heights some Men have proceeded. Thus prepared he thought the numerous and groß Corruptions in Religion and Learning might furnish Matter for a Satire, that would be useful and diverting: He resolved to proceed in a Manner that should be altogether new, the World having been already too long naufeated with endless Repititions upon every Subject. The Abuses in Religion he proposed to fet forth in the Allegory of the Coats, and the three Brothers, which was to make up the Body of the Discourse. Those in Learning he chose to introduce by way of Digressions. He was then a young Gentleman, much in the World, and wrote to the Taste of those who were like himself; therefore, in order to allure them, he gave a Liberty to his Pen, which might not fuit with maturer Years, or graver Characters, and which he could have easily corrected with a very few Blots, had he been Master of his Papers for a Year or two before their Publication.

A 3

Not that he would have governed his Judgement by the ill-placed Cavils of the Sour, the Envious, the Stupid, and the Tasteless, which he mentions with Disdain. He acknowledges there are several youthful Sallies, which from the Grave and the Wise may deserve a Rebuke. But he desires to be answerable no farther than he is guilty, and that his Faults may not be multiplied by the ignorant, the unnatural, and uncharitable Applications of those who have neither Candour to suppose good Meanings, nor Palate to distinguish true Ones. After which, he will forseit his Life, if any one Opinion can be fairly deduced from that Book, which is contrary to Religion or Morality.

Why should any Clergyman of our Church be angry to fee the Follies of Fanaticism and Superstition exposed, although in the most ridiculous Manner? Since that is perhaps the most probable Way to cure them, or at least to hinder them from farther spreading. Besides, although it was not intended for their Perusal, it rallieth nothing but what they preach against. It containeth nothing to provoke them by the least Scurrility upon their Persons or their Functions. It celebrates the Church of England as the most perfect of all others in Discipline and Doctrine; it advanceth no Opinion they reject, nor condemneth any they receive. If the Clergy's Refentment lay upon their Hands, in my humble Opinion, they might have found more proper Objects to employ them on : Nondum tibi defuit Hostis; I mean those heavy, illiterate Scriblers, prostitute in their Reputations, vicious in their Lives, and ruined in their Fortunes; who, to the Shame of good Sense as well as Piety, are greedily read, merely upon the Strength of bold. false, impious Assertions, mixed with unmannerly Reflections upon the Priesthood, and openly intended against all Religion; in short, full of fuch Principles as are kindly received, because they are levelled to remove those Terrors that Religion telleth Men will be the Confequence of immoral Lives. Nothing like which is to be met with in this Discourse, although some of them are pleased so freely to censure it. And I wish there were no other Instance of what I have too frequently observed, that many of that Reverend Body are not always very nice in distinguishing between their Enemies and their Friends.

Had the Author's Intentions met with a more candid Interpretation from fome, whom out of Respect he forbeareth to name, he might have been encouraged to an Examination of Books written by some of those Authors above described, whose Errors, Ignorance, Dulness, and Villainy, he thinketh he could have detected and exposed in such a Manner, that the Persons, who are most conceived to be infected by them, would foon lay them aside and be ashamed: But he hath now given over these Thoughts, fince the weightiest Men * in the weightiest Stations are pleafed to think it a more dangerous Point to laugh at those Corruptions in Religion, which they themselves must disapprove, than to endeavour pulling up those very Foundations wherein all Christians have agreed.

He thinketh it no fair Proceeding, that any Person should offer determinately to fix a Name upon the Author of this Discourse, who hath all along conceased himself from most of his nearest Friends: Yet several have gone a farther Step, and pronounced another Book † to have been the Work of the same Hand with this, which the Author directly affirmeth to be a thorough Mistake; he having yet never so much as read that Discourse; a plain Instance how little Truth there often is in general Surmises, or in Conjectures drawn from a Similitude of Style, or Way of Thinking.

Had

* Alluding to Dr. Sharp the Archbishop of York's Representation of the Author.

† Letter of Enthusiasm, supposed to have been written by Colonel Hunter: See Swift's Letters to him, in one of these Volumes.

Had the Author written a Book to expose the Abuses in Law, or in Physick, he believes the learned Professors in either Faculty would have been so far from resenting it, as to have given him Thanks for his Pains; especially, if he had made an honourable Reservation for the true Practice of either Science: But Religion, they tell us, ought not to be ridiculed, and they tell us Truth; yet surely, the Corruptions in it may; for we are taught by the tritest Maxim in the World, that Religion being the best of Things, its Corruptions are likely to be the worst.

There is one Thing which the judicious Reader cannot but have observed, that some of those Passages in this Discourse, which appear most liable to Objection, are what they call Parodies. where the Author perfonates the Style and Manner of other Writers, whom he hath a Mind to expose. I shall produce one Instance; it is towards the latter End of the Introduction. Dryden, L'Estrange, and some others I shall not name, are here levelled at, who having spent their Lives in Faction, and Apostasies, and all Manner of Vice, pretended to be Sufferers for Loyalty and Religion. So Dryden telleth us in. one of his Prefaces of his Merits and Sufferings,... thanks God that he possesses his Soul in Patience: in other Places he talketh at the same Rate, and L'Estrange often useth the like Style; and I believe the Reader may find more Persons to give that Passage an Application: But this is enough to direct those who may have overlooked the Author's Intentions.

There are three or four other Passages, which prejudiced or ignorant Readers have drawn, by great Force, to hint at ill Meanings, as if they glanced at some Tenets in Religion; in Answer to all which, the Author folemnly protesteth he is entirely innocent, and never had it once in his Thoughts, that any Thing he faid would in the least be capable of such Interpretations, which he will engage to deduce full as fairly from the most innocent Book in the World. And it will be obvious to every Reader, that this was not any Part of his Scheme or Delign, the Abuses he noteth being such as all Church-of-England Men agree in; nor was it proper for his Subject to meddle with other Points, than such as have been perpetually controverted fince the Reformation.

To instance only in that Passage about the three wooden Machines mentioned in the Introduction: In the Original Manuscript there was a Description of a Fourth, which those who had the Papers in their Power blotted out, as having something in it of Satire, that I suppose they thought was too particular, and therefore they were forced to change it to the Number Three, from whence some have endeavoured to squeeze out a dangerous Meaning that was never thought on. And indeed the Conceit was half spoiled by changing the Numbers; that of Four being much more Cabalistick, and therefore better exposing the pretended Virtue of Numbers, a Superstition there intended to be ridiculed.

Another Thing to be observed is, that there generally runs an Irony through the Thread of the

the whole Book, which the Men of Taste will observe and distinguish, and which will render some Objections, that have been made, very weak and insignificant.

This Apology being chiefly intended for the Satisfaction of future Readers, it may be thought unnecessary to take any Notice of such Treatises as have been written against the ensuing Difcourse; which are already sunk into waste Paper and Oblivion, after the usual Fate of common Answerers to Books, which are allowed to have any Merit. They are indeed like Annuals that grow about a young Tree, and feem to vye with it for a Summer, but fall and die with the Leaves in Autumn, and are never heard of any When Dr. Eachard writ his Book about the Contempt of the Clergy, Numbers of those Answerers immediately started up, whose Memory if he had not kept alive by his Replies, it would now be utterly unknown that he was everanswered at all. There is indeed an Exception. when any great Genius thinketh it worth his. while to expose a foolish Piece; so we still read. Marvel's Answer to Parker * with Pleasure, although the Book it answereth be funk long ago :: So the Earl of Orrery's Remarks will be read with Delight, when the Differtation he exposeth will neither be fought nor found +; but thefe-* Parker, afterwards Bishop of Oxford, wrote many. Treatises against the Dissenters, with Insolence and Contempt, says Burnet, that enraged them beyond. Measure; for which he was chastised by Andrew Marvel, Under Secretary to Milton, in a little Book called the Rehearsal transposed.

† Boyle's Remarks upon Bentley's Differtation on the Epistles of Phalaris. Mr. Boyle was afterwards Earl of Orrery.

are no Enterprizes for common Hands, nor to be hoped for above once or twice in an Age. Men would be more cautious of losing their Time in such an Undertaking, if they did but consider, that to answer a Book effectually requireth more Pains and Skill, more Wit, Learning, and Judgment than were employed in the writing of it. And the Author affureth those Gentlemen who have given themselves that Trouble with him, that his Discourse is the Product of the Study, the Observation, and the Invention of several Years; that he often blotted out much more than he left; and if his Papers had not been a long Time out of his Possession, they must have still undergone more severe Corrections: And do they think such a Building is to be battered with Dirt-Pellets, however envenomed the Mouths may be that discharge them? He hath seen the Productions but of two Answerers; one of which at first appeared as from an unknown Hand, but fince avowed by Person *, who upon some Occasions hath dilcovered no ill Vein of Humour. It is a Pity any Occasions should put him under a Necessity of being so hasty in his Productions, which otherwise might often be entertaining. But there were other Reasons obvious enough for his Miscarriage in this; he writ against the Conviction of his Talent, and entered upon one of the wrongest Attempts in Nature, to turn into Ridicule by a Week's Labour a Work which had cost so much Time, and met with so much Succes Supposed to be Doctor William King, the Civilian, Author of an Account of Denmark, a Dissertation on Samplars, and other Pieces of Burlesque on the Royal Society, and the Art of Cookery in Imitation of Horace's Art of Poetry, &c.

Success in ridiculing others: The Manner how he handled his Subject, I have now forgot, having just looked it over when it first came out, as others did, merely for the Sake of the * Title.

The other Answer is from a Person of a graver Character, and is made up of half Invection and half Annotation f. In the latter of which, he hath generally succeeded well enough; and the Project at that Time was not amis, to draw in Readers to his Pamphlet, several having appeared desirous that there might be some Explication of the more difficult Passages. Neither can he be altogether blamed for offering at the Invective Part, because it is agreed on all Hands, that the Author had given him sufficient Provocation. The great Objection is against his Manner of treating it, very unsuitable to one of his Func-It was determined by a fair Majority, that this Answerer had, in a Way not to be pardoned, drawn his Pen against a certain Great Man then alive, and univerfally reverenced for every good Quality that could possibly enter into the Composition of the most accomplished Perfon. It was observed, how he was pleased and affected to have that noble Writer called his Adverfary,

This we cannot recover at present, it being so abfolutely forgotten, that the oldest Booksellers in Trade remember nothing of it.

0

h

h

(9

† Wotton's Defence of his Reflections upon ancient and modern Learning: From the Annotation are selected the Notes signed W. Wotton; thus Wotton appears busied to illustrate a Work, which he labourest to condemn, and adds Force to a Satire pointed against himself: As Captives were bound to the Chariot-wheel of the Victor, and compelled to increase the Pomp of his Triumph, whom they had in vain attempted to defeat.

versary, and it was a Point of Satire well directed; for I have been told, Sir William Temple was sufficiently mortified at the Term. All the Men of Wit and Politeness were immediately up in Arms, through Indignation, which prevailed over their Contempt by the Confequences they apprehended from such an Example, and it grew Porfenna's Cafe; Idem trecenti juravimus. In short, Things were ripe for a general Infurrection, till my * Lord Orrery had a little laid the Spirit, and settled the Fer-But his Lordship being principally engaged with another † Antagonist, it was thought necessary, in order to quiet the Minds of Men, that this Opposer should receive a Reprimend; which partly occasioned that Discourse of the Battle of the Books; and the Author was farther at the Pains to infert one or two Remarks on him in the Body of the Book.

This Answerer hath been pleased to find Fault with about a dozen Passages, which the Author will not be at the Trouble of defending, farther, than by assuring the Reader, that for the greater Part the Reslector is entirely mistaken, and forceth Interpretations which never once entered into the Writer's Head, nor will (he is sure) into that of any Reader of Taste and Candour; he alloweth Two or Three at most there produced to have been delivered unwarily, for which he desireth to plead the Excuse offered already, of his Youth, and Frankness of Speech, and his Papers being out of his Power at the Time they were published.

But,

n

V

it

no

to

Bu

the

it i mu

fan

on

+ Bentley, concerning Phalaris and Afop.

* Charles Boyle, Inventor of the Machine called the Orrery.

But, this Answerer insisteth, and saith, what he chiefly disliketh is the Design; what that was I have already told, and I believe there is not a Person in England who can understand that Book, that ever imagined it to have been any Thing else, but to expose the Abuses and Corruptions in Learning and Religion.

But it would be good to know what Defign this Reflector was ferving, when he concludeth his Pamphlet with a Caution to the Reader, to beware of thinking the Author's Wit was entirely his own: Surely this must have had some Allay of Personal Animosity, at least mixed with the Design of serving the Publick by so useful a Discovery; and it indeed toucheth the Author in a tender Point, who infifteth upon it, that through the whole Book he hath not borrowed one fingle Hint from any Writer in the World; and he thought, of all Criticisms, that would never have been one. He conceived it was never disputed to be an Original, whatever Faults it might have. However, this Answerer produceth three Instances to prove this Author's Wit is not his own in many Places. The first is, that the Names of Peter, Martin, and Jack, are borrowed from a Letter of the late Duke * of Buckingham. Whatever Wit is contained in those three Names, the Author is content to give it up, and desireth his Readers will substract as much as they placed upon that Account; at the fame Time protesting folemnly, that he never once heard of that Letter, except in this Pallage of the Answerer: So that the Names were not borrowed

d

* Villers.

borrowed as he affirms, though they should hap-pen to be the same, which however is odd enough, and what he hardly believes, that of Fack being not quite so obvious as the other two. The second Instance, to shew the Author's Wit is not his own, is Peter's Banter (as he calls it in his Alfatia Phrase) upon Transubstantiation, which is taken from the same Duke's Conference with an Irish Priest, where a Cork is turned into a Horse. This the Author confesseth to have seen, about ten Years after his Book was written, and a Year or two after it was published. Nay, the Answerer overthrows this himself; for he allows the Tale was written in 1697, and, I think, the Pamphlet was not printed in many Years after. It was necessary, that Corruption should have some Allegory, as well as the rest; and the Author invented the properest he could, without enquiring what other People had written, and the commonest Reader will find, that there is not the least Resemblance between the two Stories. The third Instance is in these Words; "I have been affured, that the Battle in St. " James's Library is, mutatis mutandis, taken " out of a French Book, entitled, Combat des " Livres, if I misremember not." In which Pasfage there are two Clauses observable: I have been affured; and, if I mifremember not. I desire first to know, whether, if that Conjecture proves an utter Falshood, those two Clauses will be a fufficient Excuse for this worthy Critick. The Matter is a Trifle; but would he venture to pronounce at this Rate upon one of greater Moment! I know nothing more contemptible in a Writer than the Character of a Plagiary, which he here fixeth at a Venture; and this, not for a Passage, but a whole Discourse, taken out from another Book, tl

n

n

ci

Book, only mutatis mutandis. The Author is as much in the Dark about this as the Answerer. and will imitate him by an Affirmation at Random; that if there be a Word of Truth in this Reflection, he is a paultry, imitating Pedant, and the Answerer is a Person of Wit, Manners, and Truth. He taketh his Boldness, from never having feen any fuch Treatife in his Life. nor heard of it before, and he is fure it is imposfible for two Writers of different Times and Countries, to agree in their Thoughts after such a Manner, that two continued Discourses shall be the same, only mutatis mutandis. Neither will he infift upon the Mistake of the Title; but let the Answerer and his Friend produce any Book they please, he defies them to shew one single Particular, where the judicious Reader will affirm he hath been obliged for the smallest Hint, giving only Allowance for the accidental encountering of a fingle Thought, which he knows may fometimes happen; though he has never yet found it in that Discourse, nor has heard it objected by any Body elfe.

5

,

,

e

0

t. en

les

as-we ire

res

a

he ro-

nt!

ter

ere ge,

her ok,

So that if ever any Design was unfortunately executed, it must be that of this Answerer, who, when he would have it observed that the Author's Wit is none of his own, is able to produce but Three Instances, Two of them meer Trisles, and all Three manifestly false. If this be the Way these Gentlemen deal with the World in those Criticisms, where we have not Leisure to deseat them, their Readers had need be cautious how they rely upon their Credit; and whether this Proceeding can be reconciled to Humanity or Truth, let those, who think it worth their while, determine.

It

It is agreed this Answerer would have succeeded much better, if he had truck wholely to his Business as a Commentaror upon the Tale of a Tub, wherein it cannot be denied that he hath been of some Service to the Publick, and hath given very fair Conjectures towards clearing up some difficult Passages; but it is the frequent Error of those Men (otherwise very commendable for their Labours) to make Excursions beyond their Talent and their Office, by pretending to point out the Beauties and the Faults, which is no Part of their Trade, which they always fail in, which the World never expected from them, nor give them any Thanks for endeavouring at, The Part of Minellius or Farnaby * would have fallen in with his Genius, and might have been ferviceable to many Readers who cannot enter into the abstruser Parts of that Discourse; but Optat ephippia bos piger. The dull, unwieldy, ill-shaped Ox would needs put on the Furniture of a Horse; not considering he was born to Labour, to plow the Ground for the Sake of fuperior Beings; and that he hath neither the Shape, Mettle, nor Speed of that noble Animal he would affect to personate.

It is another Pattern of this Answerer's fair Dealing to give us Hints that the Author is dead, and yet to lay the Suspicion upon Somebody, I know not who, in the Country; to which can only be returned, that he is absolutely mistaken in all his Conjectures; and surely Conjectures are at best too light a Pretence to allow a Man to assign affign a Name in publick. He condemns a Book, and consequently the Author, of whom he is utterly ignorant; yet, at the same Time fixeth in Print, what he thinks a disadvantageous Character upon those who never deserved it. A Man who receiveth a Buffet in the Dark may be allowed to be vexed; but it is an odd Kind of Revenge to go to Cuffs in broad Day with the first he meets, and lay the last Night's Injury at his Door. And thus much for this discreet, candid, pious, and ingenious Answerer.

* Low Commentators, who wrote Notes upon Claffic Authors for the Use of School-boys.

How the Author came to be without his Papers, is a Story not proper to be told, and of very little Use, being a private Fact, of which the Reader would believe as little or as much as he thought good. He had however a blotted Copy by him, which he intended to have written over, with many Alterations; and this the Publishers were well aware of, having put it into the Booksellers Preface, that they apprehended a surreptitious Copy, which was to be altered, &c. This although not regarded by Readers, was a real Truth, only the furreptitious Copy was rather that which was printed, and they made all the Haste they could, which indeed was needless, the Author not being at all prepared; but he hath been told, the Bookseller was in much Pain, having given a good Sum of Money for the Copy.

4

n

er

ıt

1, re

a - u-

he al

air

ad,

ly,

cen

res

to

lign

Claf.

In the Author's Original Copy there were not fo many Chasms as appears in the Book; and why some of them were left he knows not; had the Publication been trusted to him, he would have made several Corrections of Passages against which nothing hath been ever objected. He would would likewise have altered a few of those that seem with any Reason to be excepted against: But to deal freely, the greatest Number he should have lest untouched, as never suspecting it possible any wrong Interpretation could be made of them.

The Author observes, at the End of the Book there is a Discourse called a Fragment, which he more wondered to see in Print than all the rest. Having been a most imperfect Sketch with the Addition of a few loose Hints, which he once lent a Gentleman who had designed a Discourse on somewhat the same Subject, he never thought of it afterwards, and it was a sufficient Surprize to see it pieced up together, wholely out of the Method and Scheme he had intended; for it was the Ground-work of a much larger Discourse, and he was sorry to observe the Materials so foolishly employed.

There is one farther Objection made by those who have answered this Book, as well as by fome others, that Peter is frequently made to repeat Oaths and Curses. Every Reader observes it was necessary to know that Peter did Swear and Curfe. The Oaths are not printed out, but only supposed, and the Idea of an Oath is not immoral, like the Idea of a prophane or immodest Speech. A Man may laugh at the Popish Folly of curfing People to Hell, and imagine them Swearing without any Crime; but lewd Words, or dangerous Opinions, although printed by Halves, fill the Reader's Mind with ill Ideas; and of these the Author cannot be accused: For the judicious Reader will find, that the severest Strokes of Satire in his Book are levelled Wit upon those Topics; of which there is a remarkable Instance in the Seventh Section, as well as in several others, although perhaps once or twice expressed in too free a Manner, excuseable only for the Reasons already alledged. Some Overtures have been made by a third Hand to the Bookseller for the Author's altering those Passages which he thought might require it. But, it seems, the Bookseller will not hear of any such Thing, being apprehensive it might spoil the Sale of the Book.

The Author cannot conclude this Apology, without making this one Reflection; that, as Wit is the noblest and most useful Gift of human Nature, fo Humour is the most agreeable; and where these two enter far into the Composition of any Work, they will render it always acceptable to the World. Now, the great Part of those who have no Share or Taste of either, but by their Pride, Pedantry, and ill Manners, lay themselves bare to the Lashes of both, think the Blow is weak, because they are infensible; and. where Wit hath any Mixture of Raillery, it is but calling it Banter, and the Work is done. This polite Word of theirs was first borrowed from the Bullies in White-Friers; then fell among the Footmen; and at last retired to the Pedants, by whom it is applied as properly to the Productions of Wit, as if I should apply it to Sir Isaac Newton's Mathematicks: But, if this Bantering, as they call it, be so despicable a Thing, whence cometh it to pass they have such a perpetual Itch towards it themselves? To instance only in the Answerer already mentioned; it is grievous to fee him in some of his Writings at

y.

es

ar

ot

n-ifh ne

wd gh

ith

ac-

nat

are led every Turn going out of his Way to be waggish, to tell us of a Cow that pricked up her Tail; and in his Answer to this Discourse, he says, it is all a Farce and a Ladle: with other Passages equally shining. One may say of these Impedimenta Literatum, that Wit owes them a Shame; and they cannot take wifer Counsel than to keep out of Harm's Way, or at least not to come until they are sure they are called.

To conclude. With those Allowances above required, this Book should be read; after which, the Author conceives, few Things will remain, which may not be excused in a young Writer. He wrote only to the Men of Wit and Taste; and he thinks he is not mistaken in his Accounts, when he says they have been all of his Side, enough to give him the Vanity of telling his Name, wherein the World, with all its wife Conjectures, is yet very much in the dark; which Circumstance is no disagreeable Amusement either to the Publick or himself.

The Author is informed, that the Bookfeller hath prevailed on feveral Gentlemen to write some explanatory Notes; for the Goodness of which he is not to answer, having never seen any of them, nor intending it, until they appear in Print; when it is not unlikely he may have the Pleasure to find Twenty Meanings, which never entered into his Imagination.

June 3, 1709.

POST.

t

a

th

he

POSTSCRIPT.

CINCE the Writing of this, which was about a Year ago, a prostitute Bookseller hath published a foolish Paper, under the Name of Notes on the Tale of a Tub, with some Account of the Author; and with an Infolence, which I suppose is punishable by Law, hath presumed to assign certain Names. It will be well enough for the Author to assure the World, that the Writer of that Paper is utterly wrong in all his Conjectures upon that Affair. The Author farther afferts, that the whole Work is entirely of one Hand, which every Reader of Judgment will easily discover: The Gentleman who gave the Copy to the Bookseller being a Friend of the Author, and using no other Liberties besides that of expunging certain Passages where now the Chasms appear under the Name of Desiderata. But, if any Person will prove his Claim to three Lines in the whole Book, let him step forth, and tell his Name and Titles; upon which the Bookseller shall have Orders to prefix them to the next Edition, and the Claimant shall from henceforward be acknowledged the undisputed Author.

5, 15

e

; e-

er

ite

of

ny

in the ver

Treatifes

ROSTSCRIPT.

thick the William edition with the was eligible a. A var-ego, a profincia Backet lor from Body a found Tryer, under the Matte of where we to take of a lab, with tome secount or the Author ; say ville an informed, which I in point by place by the term probable of the algeone list of live at leavel for well enough of the Asia Valle of the Washing eki ila ni yante giana ni mang mina a minge many to the said the visities at the Wickelly of the large with the ing Mard, which every Janusbul To a : Towoolla villas line STAR CON COL Att Vo brond & Auch off or mod whi Agilion, and tilligh solfod edinadis that of expending to take won analy say Lines in the whole Book, let him fleet forel and itellible Mancagad Thirtist, up a which the Bookseller that I have Orders to prefix them to the next Eddison, and the Claimingt that from hereoforward be acted wildered the undiputed AUL DA

E. 11881.

Treatifes written by the same Author most of them mentioned in the following Discourses; which will be speedily published.

A Character of the present Set of Wits in this Island.

A panegyrical Essay upon the Number THREE.

A Differtation upon the principal Productions of Grub-street.

Lectures upon a Dissection of human Nature.

A Panegyrick upon the World.

An analytical Discourse upon Zeal, historitheophysi-logically considered.

A general History of Ears.

A modest Defence of the Proceedings of the Rabble in all Ages.

A Description of the Kingdom of Absurdities.

A Voyage into England by a Person of Quality in terra australis incognita, tra nstated from th Original.

A critical Essay upon the Art of Canting, philosophically, physically, and musically considered.

Vol. XX.

,

461

00

UA

Secretary remains by the first fielder on to of them seems read to of them said.

Secretary and the following the fewer fees which and the fields probably.

Character of the prefeat See of William 141 (4) 141 (4)

A panegyital Edy upon the Number to unk.

A Differentian upon the prize pul Productions of Grabelises.

Ly Berratypa a toke it so of headh IV.

An and pleas Wiscourse with East, Sariaban-

A general lineary of the Linear Landson & the Apoble is all Ages.

Voyega into England by a Porfee of Oper-The helpers as been facegoing are related from the Chipinal

A President Elling upon the Art of Charley, pullatephically, thy cally, and manifestly conffered.

tl

ai

ra

N an I

th.

STTADIG TO THE

Charles I think at the first section of

vene Model a value bad a pobole mov The Right Honourable dal move in all Forance, and elverted broad that a this

at the tenne "I marke some a dream it amot plants

JOHN Lord SOMMERS. part in very Lone Light, line i was

I rosan tayfelk | And I was july going on lours of their Pascis, 3 called both to My LORD, awalle out of the Man Hayasi DIGNIE LINE - Think . Sor , abote LTHOUGH the Author hath written a large Dedication, yet that being addressed to a Prince, whom I am never likely to have the Honour of being known to; a Person befides, as far as I can observe, not at all regarded, or thought on by any of our present Writers; and being wholely free from that Slavery, which Booksellers usually lie under to the Caprices of Authors; I think it a wife Piece of Presumption to inscribe these Papers to your Lordship, and to implore your Lordship's Protection of them. Gop and your Lordship know their Faults, and their Merits; for, as to my own Particular, I am altogether a Stranger to the Matter; and, although every Body else should be equally ignorant, I do not fear the Sale of the Book, at all the worse, upon that Score. Your Lordship's Name on the Front, in Capital Letters, will at any Time get off one Edition : Neither would I desire any other Help to grow an Alderman, than a Patent for the fole Privilege of Dedicating to your Lordship.

I should

I should now, in right of a Dedicator, give your Lordship a List of your own Virtues, and at the fame Time be very unwilling to offend your Modesty; but chiefly I should celebrate your Liberality towards Men of great Parts and fmall Fortunes, and give you broad Hints, that I mean myself. And I was just going on in the usual Method, to peruse a hundred or two of Dedications, and transcribe an Abstract, to be applied to your Lordship; but I was diverted by a certain Accident. For, upon the Covers of these Papers, I casually observed, written in large Letters, the two following Words, DETUR DIGNISSIMO; which, for ought I knew, might contain some important Meaning: But, it unluckily fell out, that none of the Authors I employ understood Latin, (although I have them often in Pay to translate out of that Language) I was therefore compelled to have Recourse to the Curate of our Parish, who Englished it thus : Let it be given to the Worthieft : And his Comment was, That the Author meant, his Work should be dedicated to the sublimest Genius of the Age, for Wit, Learning, Judgement, Eloquence and Wisdom. I called at a Poet's Chamber (who works for my Shop) in an Alley hard by, shewed him the Translation, and defired his Opinion who it was that the Author could mean? He told me, after some Confideration, that Vanity was a Thing he abhorred; but by the Description he thought himself to be the Person aimed at: And, at the same Time, he very kindly offered his own Assistance gratis, towards penning a Dedication to himself. I defired him, however, to give a second Guess; Why then, faid he want be I, or my Lord Sommers.

Sommers. From thence I went to several other Wits of my Acquaintance, with no small Hazard and Weariness to my Person, from a prodigious Number of dark winding Stairs; but found them all in the same Story, both of your Lordship and themselves. Now, your Lordship is to understand, that this Proceeding was not of my own Invention; for I have somewhere heard it is a Maxim, that those, to whom every Body allows the fecond Place, have an undoubted Title to the first. or absolute bostogxod Lordinio's Bravery at the Hea This infallibly convinced me, that your Lordthip was the Person intended by the Author. But, being very unacquainted with the Style and Form of Dedications, I employed those Wits aforesaid to furnish me with Hints and Materials. towards a Panegyrick upon your Lordship's Virtues.

I

.

d

19

is

e-

e-

a

in 14 un-

d;

be ie,

is,

e·

In two Days, they brought me ten Sheets of Paper, filled up on every Side. They fwore to me that they had ranfacked whatever could be found in the Characters of Socrates, Aristides, Epaminondas, Cato, Tully, Atticus, and other hard Names, which I cannot now recollect. However, I have Reason to believe they imposed upon my Ignorance; because, when I came to read over their Collections, there was not a Syllable there, but what I and every Body else knew as well as themselves: Therefore I grievously suspected a Cheat, and that these Authors of mine stole and transcribed every Word. from the universal Report of Mankind. So that I look upon myself as Fifty Shillings out of Pocket, to no Manner of Purpose.

of the language was been body for all the common delicated accommon

If by altering the Title, I could make the fame Materials serve for another Dedication (as my Betters have done) it would help to make up my Loss: But I have made several Persons dip here and there in those Papers, and, before they had read three Lines, they all assured me, plainly, that they cannot possibly be applied to any Person besides your Lordship.

I expected, indeed, to have heard of your Lordship's Bravery at the Head of an Army, of your undaunted Courage in mounting a Breach, or scaling a Wall; or to have had your Pedigree traced in a lineal Descent from the House of Austria; or of your wonderful Talents at Dress and Dancing; or your profound Knowledge in Algebra, Metaphyficks, and the Oriental Tongues. But to ply the World with an old beaten Story of your Wit, and Eloquence, and Learning, and Wisdom, and Justice, and Politeness, and Candor, and Evenness of Temper in all Scenes of Life; of that great Discernment in discovering, and Readiness in favouring descrving Men; with forty other common Topicks: I confess I have neither Conscience, nor Confidence to do it. Because there is no Virtue, either of a Publick or Private Life, which some Circumstances of your own have not often produced upon the Stage of the World; and those few, which, for Want of Occasions to exert them, might otherwise have passed unseen or unobserved by your Friends, your * Enemies have at length brought to Light.

* In 1701 Lord Sommers was impeached by the Commons, who either finding their Proofs defective,

It is true, I should be very loath, the Bright Example of your Lordship's Virtues, should be lost to After-Ages, both for their Sake and your own; but chiefly, because they will be so very necessary to adorn the History of a † late Reign: And that is another Reason, why I could forbear to make a Recital of them here; because I have been told by Wise Men, that as Dedications have run for some Years past, a good Historian will not be apt to have Recourse thither in search of Characters.

ır

of i,

1-ſs

n

al

ld

nd

e-

in nt

e-

5:

fieine

ofe

ert

ın-

ve

It

the ve, There is one Point, wherein I think we Dedicators would do well to change our Measures; I mean, instead of running on so far upon the Praise of our Patron's Liberality, to spend a Word or two in admiring their Patience. I can put no greater Compliment on your Lordship's, than by giving you so ample an Occasion to exercise it at present; although, perhaps, I shall not be apt to reckon much Merit to your Lordship upon that Score; who having been formerly used to tedious ‡ Harangues, and sometimes to as little Purpose, will be the readier to pardon B 4 or for other Reasons, delayed coming to a Trial, and the Lords thereupon proceeded to the Trial without them, and acquitted him.

† King William's; whose Memory he defended in the House of Lords against some invidious Resections of the Earl of Nottingham.

‡ Sir John Sommers was Attorney General; then made Lord Keeper of the Seals in 1692, and Lord High Chancellor and Baron of Evesham in April 1697.

DEDICATION. xxxii

this; especially, when it is offered by one, who is with all Respect and Veneration, Establish this work Lord block Visuary, thould be

To was the discrebe of

will not by per to have Recourt this bering on

Praise of Cur Factors and which is of the erealer Contributed on total Localities. the by giving you of Paper an Occasion to Medici (sandrog Lelavouria) Preside de la Midde and to review much librit to your Lot co-combined par group and the class to be assive Purcee, will be the receier to pardon or for culter European, statemed continue to a Talkingan service facilities at telephone measurement to chest rico los comunidad, en es limbon absolt la succificad and a line of appropriate sease informed projects made hard Meaned or the Seals in Sease M brod et am tooy bas she defined the shoot need as and A co field My LORD, and and the most

: 8:01

Your Lordship's most Obedient, and most Faithful Servant,

The BOOKSELLER.

them. and acquired Rique of the Harl of Nethinghames

He b Charcellor and Berge of White College to the College of the missed in this Heart of the it's resident all the role is to the restaurable for of no votarily by here's meaned

Visuality wish granules at over to brow which of the called a the langt

The Doublet to the Read

BOOKSELLER

TOTHE

R B A Div E a R.

new politice and said selfice won

IT is now * Six Years fince these Papers came first to my Hand, which seemeth to have been about a Twelvemonth after they were written: For the Author telleth us in his Presace to the first Treatise, that he hath calculated it for the Year 1697, and in several Passages of that Discourse, as well as the Second, it appeareth they were written about that Time.

As to the Author I can give no Manner of Satisfaction: However, I am credibly informed, that this Publication is without his Knowledge; for he concludeth the Copy is loft, having lent it to a Person since dead, and being never in Possession of it after: So that, whether the Work received his last Hand, or whether he intended to fill up the desective Places, is like to remain a Secret.

If I should go about to tell the Reader by what Accident I became Master of these Papers, it would, in this unbelieving Age, pass for little more than the Cant, or Jargon of the Trade. Is B 5 therefore therefore gladly spare both him and myself so unnecessary a Trouble. There yet remaineth a difficult Question, why I published them no fooner. I forbore upon two Accounts: First, because I thought I had better Work upon my Hands; and Secondly, because I was not without some Hope of hearing from the Author, and receiving his Directions. But, I have been lately alarmed with Intelligence of a furreptitious Copy *, which a certain great Wit had new polished and refined; or, as our present Writers express themselves, fitted to the Humour of the Age; as they have already done, with great Felicity, to Don Quixote, Boccalini, la Bruyere, and other Authors. However, I thought it fairer Dealing, to offer the Whole Work in its Naturals. If any Gentleman will please to furnish me with a Key, in order to explain the more difficult Parts, I shall very gratefully acknowledge the Favour, and print it by itself.

* The Tale of a Tub was first published in 1704.

for he concluded the Copy is loft, having lent is to a Perfor fince dead, and being never in Performance it after: So that, whether the Wingle items is after to the whether he is not be to the third of the third.

o If I figured go about to tell the Reader 19 what Accident I became Maller of these Papers, knowld, in this unbelieving Age, passing finds after than the Cane, or jurgen of the Trude.

The Tale of a Tab was the rolling the

See the Apology. As the toological and the Publication is worth we had been been and the control of the control anoleyoff:

to fill up the defective Places, is like to complet game West I for which

EPISTLE DEDICATORY,

learned World alreadyo T lyrd upon as tour figure Williams with the board

His Royal Highness

Prince Posterity.

SIR;

a

y

n

.

d

r

a

I e II

y

E

HERE present your Highness with the Fruits of a very few leisure Hours, stolen from the short Intervals of a World of Business, and of an Employment quite alien from such Amusements as this; the poor Production of that Resuge of Time, which hath lain heavy upon my Hands, during a long Prorogation of Parliament,

The Citation out of Irenæus, in the Title-Page, which feemeth to be all Gibberifb, is a Form of Initiation used anciently by the Marcosian Hereticks. W.

It is the usual Style of decryed Writers to appeal to Posterity, who is here represented as a Prince in his Nonage, and Time as his Governor; and the Author begins in a Way very frequent with him, by personating other Writers, who sometimes offer such Reasons and Excuses for publishing their Works, as they ought chiefly to conceal and be ashamed of.

a great Dearth of Foreign News, and a tedious Fit of rainy Weather: For which, and other Reasons, it cannot chuse extremely to deserve such a Patronage as that of your Highness, whose numberless Virtues, in so few Years, make the World look upon you as the future Example to all Princes: For, although your Highness is hardly got clear of Infancy, yet has the universal learned World already resolved upon appealing to your future Dictates with the lowest and most resigned Submission: Fate having decreed you fole Arbiter of the Productions of human Wit. in this polite and most accomplished Age. thinks, the Number of Appellants were enough to shock and startle any Judge of a Genius Tess unlimited than yours: But, in order to prevent fuch glorious Trials, the Person (it seemeth) to whose Care the Education of your Highness is committed, hath resolved (as I am told) to keep you in almost an universal Ignorance of our Studies, which it is your inherent Birth-right to inspect.

It is amazing to me, that this Person should have Assurance, in the Face of the Sun, to go about persuading your Highness, that our Age is almost wholely illiterate, and hath hardly produced one Writer upon any Subject. I know very well, that when your Highness shall come to riper Years, and have gone through the Learning of Antiquity, you will be too curious to neglect inquiring into the Authors of the very Age before you: And to think that this Insalent, in the Account he is preparing for your View, designeth to reduce them to a Number so insignificant as I am assumed to mention; it moveth my Zeal and my Spleen for the Honour and Interest

D

PRINCE POSTERITY. xxxvii terest of our vast flourishing Body, as well as of myself, for whom I know by long Experience, he hath professed, and still continueth, a peculiar Malice.

It is not unlikely, that when your Highness will one Day peruse what I am now writing, you may be ready to expostulate with your Governor upon the Credit of what I here affirm, and command him to shew you some of our Productions. To which he will answer, (for I am well informed of his Designs) by asking your Highness where they are? and what is become of them? And pretend it a Demonstration, that there never were any, because they are not then to be found! Not to be found? Who hath missaid them? Are they funk in the Abyss of Things? It is certain, that in their own Nature they were light enough to swim upon the Surface for all Eternity. Therefore the Fault is in him, who tied Weights so heavy to their Heels, as to depress them to the Center. Is their very Effence destroyed? Who hath annihilated them? Were they drowned by Purges, or martyred by Pipes? Who administered them to the Posteriors of -? But that it may no longer be a Doubt with your Highness, who is to be the Author of this universal Ruin; I beseech you to observe that large and terrible Scythe, which your Governor affects to bear continually about him. Be pleased to remark the Length and Strength, the Sharpness and Hardness of his Nails and Teeth: Consider his baneful abominable Breath, Enemy to Life, and Matter infectious and corrupting: And then reflect, whether it be possible for any mortal Ink and Paper of this Generation to make a suitable Resistance. Oh, Highness da

0

e

•

W

15

Highness would one Day resolve to disarm this usurping * Maitre du Palais of his surious Engines, and bring your Empire + hers de Page.

It were endless to recount the several Methods of Tyranny and Destruction, which your Governer is pleased to practise upon this Occasion. His inveterate Malice is such to the Writings of our Age, that of several Thousands produced yearly from this renowned City, before the next Revolution of the Sun, there is not one to be heard of: Unhappy Infants! many of them barbarously destroyed, before they have so much as learned their Mother-Tongue to beg for Pity! Some he stiffeth in their Gradles, others he frighteneth into Convulsions, whereof they suddenly die; some he flayeth alive, others he teareth Limb from Limb. Great Numbers are offered to Moloch; and the rest, tainted by his Breath, die of a languishing Consumption.

But the Concern I have most at Heart is for our Corporation of Poets, from whom I am preparing a Petition to your Highness, to be subscribed with the Names of One Hundred Thirty-Six of the first Rate, but whose immortal Productions are never likely to reach your Eyes, although each of them is now an humble and an earnest Appellant for the Laurel, and hath large comely of Kings which they call Les Roys Faineans (from their doing nothing) who lived lazily in their Apartments, while the Kingdom was administred by the Mayor de Palais, till Charles Martel, the last Mayor, put his Master to Death, and took the Kingdom into his own Hands.

+ Out of Guardianship.

PRINCE POSTERITY. XXXIX

0

f

d

t

15

1 10 d-

1-

f-

118

or

e-

by.

0.

alan ge ace eif)

his wil

comely Volumes ready to shew for a Support to his Pretensions. The never-dying Works of these illustrious Persons, your Governor, Sir, hath devoted to unavoidable Death, and your Highness is to be made believe, that our Age hath never arrived at the Honour to produce one fingle Poet. to which to be welch frightness, We confess Immortality to be a great and powerful Goddess, but in vain we offer up to her our Devotions and our Sacrifices, if your Highness's Governor, who hath usurped the Priesthood, must by an unparalleled Ambition and Avarice wholely intercept and devour them.

To affirm that our Age is altogether unlearned, and devoid of Writers in any Kind, seemeth to be an Affertion so bold and so false, that I have been fometimes thinking, the contary may almost be proved by uncontroulable Demonstration. It is true, indeed, that although their Numbers be vast, and their Productions numerous in Proportion, yet are they hurried so hastily off the Scene, that they escape our Memory, and delude our Sight. When I first thought of this Address, I had prepared a copious List of Titles, to present your Highness, as an undisputed Argument for what I affirm. The Originals were posted fresh upon all Gates and Corners of Streets; but returning in a very few Hours to take a Review, they were all torn down, and fresh ones in their Places: I enquired after them among Readers and Bookfellers; but I enquired in vain; the Memorial of them was loft among Men, their Place was no where to be found; and I was laughed to scorn for a Clown and a Pedant, without all Taste and Refinement, little versed in the Course of present Affairs, and that knew nothing of what had passed in the best Companies of Court and Town. So that I can only avow in general to your Highness, that we do abound in Learning and Wit; but to fix upon Particulars, is a Talk too slippery for my slender Abilities. If I should venture in a windy Day to affirm to your Highness, that there is a large Cloud near the Horizon in the Form of a Bear, another in the Zenith with the Head of an Als. a third to the Westward with Claws like a Dragon; and your Highness should in a few Minutes think fit to examine the Truth; it is certain they would all be changed in Figure and Position, new ones would arise, and all we could agree upon would be, that Clouds there were, but that I was grofly mistaken in the Zoography and Topography of them.

in

q

n

1

(

n

2

t

V

r tl

g

in

But your Gevernor, perhaps, may still insist, and put the Question: What is then become of these immense Bales of Paper, which must needs have been employed in such Numbers of Books? Can these also be wholely annihilate, and so of a sudden, as I pretend? What shall I say in Return of so invidious an Objection? It ill besits the Distance between your Highness and me, to send you for occular Conviction to a Jakes, or an Oven; to the Windows of a Bawdy-House, or to a sordid Lanthern. Books, like Men their Authors, have no more than one Way of coming into the World, but there are ten thousand to go out of it, and return no more.

I profess to your Highness in the Integrity of my Heart, that what I am going to say is literally true this Minute I am writing: What Revolution d'

r

C

5 ŀ

25 n ì-

ld

e,

by

a,

of ds

s.

of

e-

its 16, es,

14

ke

ay

en

•

of

volutions may happen, before it shall be ready for your Perusal, I can by no Means warrant: However, I beg you to accept it as a Specimen of our Learning, our Politeness, and our Wit. I do therefore affirm upon the Word of a fincere Man, that there is now actually in being a certain Poet called John Dryden, whose Translation of Virgil was lately printed in a large Folio, well bound; and, if diligent Search were made, for ought I know, is yet to be feen. There is another called Nahum Tate, who is ready to make Oath, that he hath caused many Rheams of Verse to be published, whereof both himself and his Bookseller (if lawfully required) can still produce authentick Copies ; and therefore wonders why the World is pleafed to make such a Secret of it. There is a Third, known by the Name of Tom Durfey, a Poet of a vast Comprehension, an universal Genius, and most profound Learning. There are also one Mr. Rymer, and one Mr. Dennis, most profound There is a Person stiled Dr. Bentley. Criticks. who hath written near a thousand Pages of immense Erudition, giving a full and true Account of a certain Squabble of wonderful Importance between himself and a * Bookseller: He is a Writer of infinite Wit and Humour; no Man rallieth with a better Grace, and in more sprightly Farther, I avow to your Highness, that with these Eyes I have beheld the Person of William Wotton, B.D. who hath written a good fizeable Volume against a Friend of your Governor Bentley, in his Controversy with Lord Orrery upon the Genuineness of Phalaris's Epistles hath given, in a Preface, a long Account of his Dialogues with a Bookseller about the Loan and Restitution of a MS.

Governor* (from whom, alas! he must therefore look for little Favour) in a most gentlemanly Style, adorned with the utmost Politeness, and Civility; replete with Discoveries, equally valuable for their Novelty and Use; and embellished with Traits of Wit so poignant and so apposite, that he is a worthy Yokemate to his forementioned Friend.

Why should I go upon farther Particulars, which might fill a Volume with the just Elogies of my cotemporary Brethren? I shall bequeath this Piece of Justice to a larger Work; wherem I intend to write a Character of the present Set of Wits in our Nation: Their Persons I shall describe particularly, and at Length; their Genius and Understandings in Miniature.

In the mean Time, I do here make bold to present your Highness with a faithful Abstract, drawn from the universal Body of all Arts and Sciences, intended wholely for your Service and Instruction: Nor do I doubt in the least, but your Highness will peruse it as carefully, and make as considerable Improvements, as other young Princes have already done, by the many Volumes of late Years written for a Help to their Studies †.

That your Highness may advance in Wildom, and Virtue, as well as Years, and at last out-

† There were innumerable Books printed for the Use of the Dauphine of France.

PRINCE POSTERITY. xliii fhine all your Royal Ancestors, shall be the daily Prayer of,

SIR.

Decemb.

e.

es,

nd nis

rs, ies

ath

ein

Set nall neir

to act,

and but and other any to dom, out-

the

Your Highness's

Charle Grain he Wall as

Const. Ath the below des

STATE OF STATE OF STREET

lead to the second of the second second the late 15th Designation That with the property of the second series

Most devoted, &c.

THE

PERMOR POSTERRITY. ALL Your Roal Ascalors, East be ver VIVE.

and the second second second of his car since he are

F

tl

T

Ce

to A

J.H.T

a cree hany .

DATIAS WY

Manda upon the Ship. The Where we

PREFACE:

from magaze, the tertilities that of city are frid to borrow that Weamon's or bish

Dangeris taily undertood each THE Wits of the present Age being so very numerous and penetrating, it feems, the Grandees of Church and State begin to fall under horrible Apprehensions, lest these Gentlemen, during the Intervals of a long Peace, should find Leisure to pick Holes in the weak Sides of Religion and Government. To prevent which, there has been much Thought employed of late upon certain Projects for taking off the Force and Edge of those formidable Enquirers, from canvassing and reasoning upon such delicate Points. They have at length fixed upon one, which will require fome Time as well as Cost to perfect. Mean while, the Danger hourly encreasing by new Levies of Wit all appointed (as there is Reason to fear) with Pen, Ink, and Paper, which may at an Hour's Warning be drawn out into Pamphlets, and other offensive Weapons, ready for immediate Execution; it was judged of absolute Necessity, that some present Expedient be thought on, until the main Design can be brought to Maturity. To this End, at a grand Committee some Days ago, this important Discovery was made by a certain curious and refined Observer: That Seamen have a Custom when they meet a Whale, to fling him out an empty Tub by Way of Amusement, to divert him from laying violent Hands

Hands upon the Ship. This Parable was im. mediately mythologised: The Whale was interpreted to be Hobbes's Leviathan, which toffeth and plays with all Schemes of Religion and Government, whereof a great many are hollow, and dry, and empty, and noify, and wooden. and given to Rotation: This is the Leviathan, from whence the terrible Wits of our Age are faid to borrow their Weapons. The Ship in Danger is easily understood to be its old Antitype the Commonwealth. But how to analyfe the Tub was a Matter of Difficulty; when, after a long Enquiry and Debate, the literal Meaning was preserved; and it was decreed, that in order to prevent these Leviathans from toffing and sporting with the Commonwealth, which of itself is too apt to fluctuate, they should be diverted from that Game by a Tale of a Tub. And, my Genius being conceived to lie not unhappily that Way, I had the Honour done me to be engaged in the Performance. I hav have at length fixed meen

This is the fole Design in publishing the following Treatise, which I hope will serve for an Interim of some Months to employ those unquiet Spirits, until the perfecting of that great Work; into the Secret of which, it is reasonable the courteous Reader should have some little Light.

It is intended that a large Academy be erected, capable of containing nine Thousand seven hundred forty and three Persons, which by modest Computation is reckoned to be pretty near the current Number of Wits in this Island. These are to be disposed in the several Schools of this Academy, and there pursue those Studies to which their Genius most inclines them. The Undertaker

h

,

e n

i-,

ie .

a ıg

er t-

is

m

e-nat

ed

Cal

ol-

an

iet

k;

the

ht.

ed.

un-

dest

the

this

to

The

ker

Undertaker himself will publish his Proposals with all convenient Speed, to which I shall refer the curious Reader for a more particular Account, mentioning at present only a few of the principal Schools: There is, first, a large Paderastic School, with French and Italian Masters. There is, also, the Spelling School, a very foacious Building: The School of Looking Glaffes: The School of Swearing: The School of Griticks: The School of Salivation: The School of Hobby Horfes: The School of Poetry: * The School of Tops: The School of Spleen: The School of Gaming: With many others, too tedious to recount. No Person to be admitted Member into any of these Schools without an Attestation under two sufficient Persons Hands, certifying him to be a Wit. The hand hould at fine core, and reduced it to the Circuit

But to return: I am sufficiently instructed in the principal Duty of a Presace, if my Genius were capable of arriving at it. Thrice have I forced my Imagination to make the Tour of my Invention, and thrice it has returned empty; the latter having been wholely drained by the sollowing Treatise. Not so my more successful Brethren the Moderns, who will by no Means let slip a Presace or Dedication, without some notable distinguishing Stroke to surprize the Reader at the Entry, and kindle a wonderful Expectation of what is to ensue. Such was that of a most ingenious Poet, who, soliciting his Brain for Something new, compared himself to the Hangman * This I think the Author should have omitted, it being of the very same Nature with the School of Habby-Horses, if one may venture to censure one, who is so severe a Censurer of others, perhaps with too little Distinction.

Hangman, and his Patron to the Patient! This was infigne, recens, indictum ore alio. When I went thro' that necessary and noble + Course of Study, I had the Happiness to observe many fuch egregious Touches, which I shall not injure the Author by transplanting; because I have remarked, that Nothing is fo very tender as a modern Piece of Wit, and which is apt to fuffer to much in the Carriage. Some Things are extreamly witty To-day, or fasting, or in this Place, or at eight o'Clock, or over a Bottle, or Spoke by Mr. Whatd'y'call'm, or in a Summer's Morning: Any of the which, by the smallest Transposal or Misapplication, is utterly annihilate. Thus, Wit has its Walks and Purlieus, out of which it may not stray the Breadth of a Hair, upon Peril of being loft. The Moderns have artfully fixed this Mercury, and reduced it to the Circumstances of Time, Place, and Person. Such a Jest there is that will not pass out of Covent-Garden; and fuch a one, that is no where intelligible but at Hyde-Park-Corner. Now, though it sometimes tenderly affects me to consider, that all the tewardly Passages I shall deliver in the following Treatife, will grow quite out of Date and Relish with the first Shifting of the present Scene, yet I must needs subscribe to the Justice of this Proceeding; because, I cannot imagine why we should be at the Expence to furnish Wit for fucceeding Ages, when the former have made no Sort of Provision for ours; wherein I speak the Sentiments of the very newest, and consequently the most orthodox Refiners, as well as my own. However, and the same of

* Hor. Something extraordinary, new, and never hit upon before. † Reading Prefaces, &c.

However, being extremely folicitous, that every accomplished Person, who has got into the Taste of Wit calculated for this present Month of August 1607, should descend to the very Bottom of all the Sublime throughout this Treatife; I hold fit to lay down this general Maxim: Whatever Reader desireth to have a thorough Comprehension of an Author's Thoughts, cannot take a better Method, than by putting himself into the Circumstances and Postures of Life. that the Writer was in upon every important Paffage, as it flowed from his Pen: For this will introduce a Parity and strict Correspondence of Ideas between the Reader and the Author. Now, to affift the diligent Reader in so delicate an Affair, as far as Brevity will permit, I have recollected, that the frewdest Pieces of this Treatise were conceived in a Bed, in a Garret: At other Times, for a Reason best known to myself, I thought fit to sharpen my Invention with Hunger; and in general, the whole Work was begun, continued, and ended, under a long Course of Physick, and a great want of Money. Now, I do affirm, it will be absolutely impossible for the candid Peruser to go along with me in a great many bright Passages, unless, upon the feveral Difficulties emergent, he will please to capacitate and prepare himself by these Directions, and this I lay down as my principal Poftulatum.

Because I have professed to be a most devoted Servant of all modern Forms, I apprehend some curious Wit may object against me, for proceeding thus far in a Preface without declaiming, according to the Custom, against the Multitude of Writers, whereof the whole Multitude of Vol. XX.

k the

his

Tus

e of any jurc

re-

7710-

r fo

ex-

10,93

Mr.

Any

Mif-

has not eing

Mer-

es of ere is

and

out at times

e towing Re-

cene,

f this

IV we

r fuc-

le no

own.

vevoi,

never 1979

ing

Writers most reasonably complain. I am just come from peruling some Hundreds of Prefaces, wherein the Authors do at the very Beginning address the gentle Reader concerning this enormous Grievance. Of these I have preserved a few Examples, and shall set them down as near as my Memory has been able to retain them. antended of an Author's "Ronalmi sanon

One begins thus,

insolate Circums adove and I'of meal of " For a Man to fet up for a Writer, when " the Press swarms with, &c."

lo canabacidari do faint lana, vinast a concessi Another:

Your to stall the distant state of "The Tax upon Paper does not leffen the " Number of Scriblers, who daily pester, &c." Traile were convelored in a field, it a Choire:

Another; declarate and period to the at we assent of the almost Telling When every little Would-be-wit takes Pen " in Hand, 'tis in vain to enter the Lists, &c." Comfeter Phylicia and a great war

Another; Main od Harst . mei . W. T. . W.

At alie contil Feigler to coluber with media a To observe what Trash the Press swarms " with, &c." is a many and and I larger

Another; and a way of the late but a read

" Sir, It is merely in Obedience to your " Commands, that I venture into the Publick;

" for who, upon a less Consideration, would " be of a Party with such a Rabble of Scrib-"lers, &c" handing scalar and in the ends gal withing to the Californ, arising the Multillade of

Now, I have two Words in my own Defence against this Objection. First, I am far from granting the Number of Writers a Nuisance to our Nation, having strenuously maintained the contrary in several Parts of the following Discourse. Secondly, I do not well understand the Justice of this Proceeding; because I observe many of these polite Prefaces to be not only from the same Hand, but from those who are most voluminous in their several Productions: Upon which I shall tell the Reader a short Tale.

"A Mountebank, in Leicester-Fields, had " drawn a huge Assembly about him. Among " the rest, a fat unwieldy Fellow, half stiffed " in the Press, would be every Fit crying out, " Lord! what a filthy Croud is here? Pray, " good People, give way a little. Bless me! " what a Devil has raked this Rabble together? " Z-ds, what squeezing is this! honest Friend, " remove your Elbow. At last a Weaver, that " flood next him, could hold no longer: A " Plage confound you (said he) for an over-"grown Sloven; and who, in the Devil's Name, I wonder, helps to make up the " Crowd half fo much as yourfelf? Don't you " consider, with a Pox, that you take up more " Room with that Carcase than any five here? " Is not the Place as free for us as for you? " Bring your own Guts to a reasonable Com-" pass, and be d-m'd, and then I'll engage we " shall have Room enough for us all,"

There are common Privileges of a Writer, the Benefit whereof, I hope, there will be no Reason to doubt; particularly, that, where I am

C 3

Tow

30 ult

es,

ng

or-

. a

ear

in.

10

nen

the

c."

Sec.

Pen

C,"

0

M

额 rms

1

CAD

1911 rout

ck:

ould ribam not understood, it shall be concluded, that something very useful and profound is couched underneath; and again, that whatever Word or Sentence is printed in a different Character, shall be judged to contain something extraordinary either of Wit or Sublime.

As for the Liberty I have thought fit to take of praising myself, upon some Occasions or none; I am fure it will need no Excuse, if a Multitude of great Examples be allowed fufficient Authority: For, it is here to be noted, that Praise was originally a Pension paid by the World; but the Moderns, finding the Trouble and Charge too great in collecting it, have lately bought out the Fee-simple; since which Time the Right of Presentation is wholely in ourselves. For this Reason it is, that, when an Author maketh his own Elogy, he useth a certain Form to declare and insist upon his Title, which is commonly in these or the like Words, I speak without Vanity; which I think plainly shews it to be a Matter of Right and Justice. Now, I do here once for all declare, that in every Encounter of this Nature through the following Treatife, the Form aforesaid is implied; which I mention, to fave the Trouble of repeating it on fo many Occasions.

It is a great Ease to my Conscience, that I have written so elaborate and useful a Discourse without one Grain of Satire intermixed; which is the sole Point, wherein I have taken Leave to dissent from the samous Originals of our Age and Country. I have observed some Satirists to use the Publick much at the Rate, that Pedants do a naughty Boy ready horsed for a Discipline; first.

nat

ed

or all

ci-

ke

OT

2 uf-

ed,

the

ble

ely

the

es.

100 rm

is eak

to do

mca-

en-

lo

at I

arle ich

e to

Age

s to

nts ne; rft, first, expostulate the Case, then plead the Necesfity of the Rod from great Provocations, and conclude every Period with a Lash. Now, if I know any Thing of Mankind, these Gentlemen might very well spare their Reproof and Correction, for there is not, through all Nature, another fo callous and insensible a Member as the World's Posteriors, whether you apply to it the Toe or the Birch. Besides, most of our late Satirists seem to lie under a Sort of Mistake; that. because Nettles have the Prerogative to sting, therefore all other Weeds must do so too. I make not this Comparison out of the least Design to detract from these worthy Writers : For, it is well known among Mythologists, that Weeds have Pre-eminence over all other Vegetables; and therefore the first * Monarch of this Island. whose Taste and Judgment were so acute and refined, did very wifely root out the Roles from the Collar of the Order, and plant the Thiftles in their Stead, as the nobler Flower of the two. For which Reason it is conjectured by profounder Antiquaries, that the fatirical Itch, fo prevalent in this Part of our Island, was first brought among us from beyond the Tweed. Here may it long flourish and abound; may it survive and neglect the Scorn of the World, with as much Ease and Contempt, as the World is insensible to the Lashes of it. May their own Dulness, or that of their Party, be no Discouragement for the Authors to proceed; but let them remember, it is with Wits as with Razors, which are never so apt to cut those they are employed on. as when they have lost their Edge. Besides, those, whose Teeth are too rotten to bite, are best, of all others, qualified to revenge that Defect with their Breath.

* James I. styled King of Great-Britain.

I am not, like other Men, to envy or undervalue the Talents I cannot reach; for which Reason I must needs bear a true Honour to this large eminent Sect of our British Writers. And I hope, this little Panegyrick will not be offen. five to their Ears, fince it has the Advantage of being only designed for themselves. Indeed, Nature herself has taken Order, that Fame and Honour should be purchased at a better Penny. worth by Satire, than by any other Productions of the Brain, the World being foonest provoked to Praise by Lashes, as Men are to Love. is a Problem in an antient Author, why Dedications and other Bundles of Flattery, run all upon stale musty Topicks, without the smallest Tincture of any Thing new, not only to the Torment and Nauseating of the Christian Reader, but, if not suddenly prevented, to the universal Spreading of that pestilent Disease, the Lethargy, in this Island: Whereas there is very little Satire, which hath not fomething in it untouched before. The Defects of the former are usually imputed to the want of Invention among those, who are Dealers in that Kind; but, I think, with a great deal of Injustice, the Solution being eafy and natural, for, the Materials of Panegyrick, being very few in Number, have been long fince exhausted. For, as Health is but one Thing, and hath been always the same, whereas Diseases are by Thousands, befides new and daily Additions; fo, all the Virtues that have been ever in Mankind, are to be counted upon a few Fingers; but his Follies and Vices are innumerable, and Time adds hourly that derhich

this

And

fen-

e of eed.

and ny-

lons

ked

rere

edi-

all

llest

the ad-

ıni-

the

ery

un-

mer

ion

nd;

the ate-

er, alth

the

be-

Tir-

be

and irly

to

to the Heap. Now the utmost a poor Poet cando, is to get by Heart a List of the Cardinal Virtues, and deal them with his utmost Liberality to his Hero or his Patron; he may ring the Changes as far as it will go, and vary his Phrase until he hath talked round; but the Reader quickly finds it is all * Pork, with a little Variety of Sauce. For there is no inventing Terms of Art beyond our Ideas; and, when our Ideas are exhausted, Terms of Art must be so too.

But, although the Matter for Panegyrick were as fruitful as the Topick of Satire, yet would it not be hard to find out a sufficient Reason, why the latter will be always better received than the first. For, this being bestowed only upon one, or a few Persons at a Time, is sure to raise Envy, and consequently ill Words from the rest, who have no Share in the Blessing: But Satire being levelled at all, is never refented for an Offence by any, fince every individual Person makes bold to understand it of others, and very wilely removeth his particular Part of the Burthen upon the Shoulders of the World, which are broad enough, and able to bear it. To this Purpose, I have sometimes reflected upon the Difference between Athens and England with Respect to the Point before us. In the + Attic Commonwealth it was the Privilege and Birthright of every Citizen and Poet to rail aloud, and in Publick, or to expose upon the Stage, by Name, any Person they pleased, although of the greatest Figure, whether a Creon, an Hyperbolus, an Alcibiades, or a Demosthenes: But, on * Plutarch.

on the other Side, the least reflecting Word let fall against the People in general, was immediately caught up and revenged upon the Authors, how ever considerable for their Quality or their Merits. Whereas in England it is just the Reverse of all this. Here, you may securely display your utmost Rhetoric against Mankind, in the Face of the World; tell them, " That all are gone " astray; that there is none that doth Good, " no not one; that we live in the very Dregs of " Time ; that Knavery and Atheism are epi-" demic as the Pox; that Honesty is fled with " Astræa;" with any other common Places, equally new and eloquent, which are furnished by the Splendida * bilis. And when you have done, the whole Audience, far from being offended, shall return you Thanks as a Deliverer of precious and useful Truths. Nay farther; it is but to venture your Lungs, and you may preach in Covent-Garden against Foppery and Fornication, and fomething else; against Pride and Dissimulation, and Bribery, at White-Hall, you may expose Rapine and Injustice in the Inns of Court Chapel; and in a City Pulpit, be as fierce as you please against Avarice, Hypocrify, and Extortion. It is but a Ball bandied to and fro, and every Man carries a Racket about him to strike it from himself among the rest of the Company. But, on the other Side, whoever should mistake the Nature of Things so far, as to drop but a fingle Hint in Publick, how fuch a one starved half the Fleet, and half poisoned the rest: How such a one from a true Principle of Love and Honour, pays no Dehts but for Wencher and Play: How fuch a one hath got a Clap and

* Hor. Spleen.

et

W+

erfe ur

of ne

d,

of

piith

es,

cd

VC

ofcr

it

ay nd

de

ull,

ens

25 fy,

nd

im

he ver

as · ba

the

of bes nd

ıns

runs out of his Estate: How * Paris bribed by Juno and Venus, loath to offend either Party, slept out the whole Gause on the Bench: Or how such an Orater makes long Speeches in the Senate with much Thought, little Sense, and to no Purpose; whoever, I say, should venture to be thus particular, must expect to be imprisoned for Scandalum Magnatum; to have Challenges sent him; to be sued for Defamation; and to be brought before the Bar of the House.

But I forget that I am expatiating on a Subject, wherein I have no Concern, having neither a Talent nor an Inclination for Satire: On the other Side, I am so intirely satisfied with the whole present Procedure of human Things, that I have been some Years preparing Materials towards A Panegyrick upon the World; to which I intended to add a second Part, entitled, A modest Defence of the Proceedings of the Rabble in all Ages. Both these I had Thoughts to publish by Way of Appendix to the following Treatife; but finding my Common-place-Book fill much flower than I had Reason to expect, I have chosen to defer them to another Occasion. Besides, I have been unhappily prevented in that Design by a certain domestick Misfortune, in the Particulars whereof, although it would be very feafonable, and much in the modern Way to inform the gentle: Reader, and would also be of great Assistance: towards extending this Preface into the Size now in Vogue, which by Rule ought to be large in G. 5 Proportion:

* Juno and Venus, are Money and a Mistress; very powerful Bribes to a Judge, if Scandal says true. It remember such Restections were cast about that Time, but I cannot six the Person intended here.

Proportion as the subsequent Volume is small; yet I shall now dismiss our impatient Reader from any farther Attendance at the Porch; and, having duly prepared his Mind by a preliminary Discourse, shall gladly introduce him to the sublime Mysteries that ensue.

Line of the control of the Transplace of the he to large or a windown supplied on a water whole present the evilence of himse Third Himse Sees force from the other than of children of the the works of the termination instructed on the say have been to what strend of the free or the the tree to products in the second of the

The state of the second second

Misco , trail be cost a bla of belief

Appendit no constitue de la co

About head of what wind the T

A TALE

In which the second added to

To this End, the Hallospher's May in all

all;

der

nd.

ary

ub-

Sit.

abi ya ya

111

2361 itoi

THE

M.M. 199

MOTTO SCORTEL

may gen joyed tout our sembnos Vill your at [Lil TALE of a TUB. dde Submidion, they leem to labour coder med lock aveniences the Than one is conducted

SECT. In a single section of the sec ed much men inclementies of hir, eleminy

THE INTRODUCTION

Dierefore, towards the juft Performance of in the let North-Well it or shade

WHOEVER hath an Ambition to be heard? in a Crowd, must press, and squeeze, and thrust, and climb, with indefatigable Pains, until he hath exalted himself to a certain Degree of Altitude above them. Now in all Assemblies. though you wedge them ever so close, we may observe this peculiar Property, that over their Heads there is Room enough, but how to reach. it is the difficult Point; it being as hard to get quit of Number, as of Hell. Willer our the Carb ith

Hoc opus, bic labor eft. to not into the original Defigs of he areason, Lion adams and acceptance to † But to return and view the chearful Skies; In this the Talk and mighty Labour lies.

Ages hath been by erecting certain Edifices in the Air: But, whatever Practice and Reputation these Kind of Structures have formerly possessed, or may still continue in, not excepting even that of Socrates, when he was suspended in a Basket to help Contemplation; I think, with due Submission, they seem to labour under two Inconveniences. First, That the Foundations being laid too high, they have been often out of Sight, and ever out of Hearing. Secondly, That the Materials being very transitory, have suffered much from Inclemencies of Air, especially in these North-West Regions.

Therefore, towards the just Performance of this great Work there remain but three Methods. that I can think on; whereof the Wisdom of our Ancestors being highly sensible, has, to encourage all aspiring Adventurers, thought fit to erect three wooden Machines for the Use of those Orators, who defire to talk much without Interruption. These are the Pulpit, the Ladder, and the Stage-Itinerant. For as to the Bar, although it be compounded of the same Matter, and defigned for the fame Ufe, it cannot however be well allowed the Honour of a Fourth, by Read fon of its Level, or inferior Situation, exposing it to perpetual Interruptions from Collaterals. Neither can the Bench itself, although raised to a proper Eminency, put in a better Claim, whatever its Advocates infift on. For, if they please to look into the original Design of its Erection, and the Circumstances or Adjuncts subservient to that Design, they will soon acknowledge the prefent Practice exactly correspondent to the Priall

be

on ef-

en

a

th

NO

ns of

at

er-

lly

of ds,

of

en-

to

er.

ind igh?

de-li be ea-

als.

to

at-ale

on,

re-

TI-

VE

mitive Institution, and both to answer the Etymology of the Name, which in the Phænician Tongue is a Word of great Signification, importing, if literally interpreted, the Place of Sleep; but in common Acceptation, A Seat well bolstered and custioned, for the Repose of old and gouty Limbs: Senes ut in otia tuta recedant. Fortune being indebted to them this Part of Retaliation, that as formerly they have long talked, whilst others slept, so now they may sleep as long, whilst others talk.

But, if no other Argument could occur to exclude the Bench and the Bar from the Lift of Oratorial Machines, it were sufficient, that the Admission of them would overthrow a Number, which I was resolved to establish, whatever Argument it might cost me; in Imitation of that prudent Method, observed by many other Philofophers and great Clerks, whose chief Art in Division hath been to grow fond of some proper mystical Number, which their Imaginations have rendered facred, to a Degree, that they force common Reason to find Room for it in every Part of Nature; reducing, including, and adjusting every Genus and Species within that Compals, by coupling some against their Will, and banishing others at any Rate. Now, among all the rest, the profound Number THREE is that, which hath most employed my sublimest Spacelations, nor ever without wonderful Delight. There is now in the Press, and will be published next Term, a panegyrical Essay of mine upon this Number, wherein I have, by most convincing Proofs, not only reduced the Senfes and the Elements under its Banner, but brought over several Deserters from its two great Rivals, SEVEN thor determines either to the Calleun, or a CANN bas

Now, the first of these Oratorial Machines in Place, as well as Dignity is the Pulpit. Of Pulpits there are in this Island several Sorts; but I esteem only that made of Timber from the Sylva Caledonia, which agrees very well with our Climate. If it be upon its Decay, it is the better, both for Conveyance of Sound, and for other Reasons to be mentioned by and by. The Degree of Perfection in Shape and Size, I take to confift in being extremely narrow, with little Ornament, and best of all without a Cover: (for, by antient Rule, it ought to be the only uncovered Veffel in every Assembly, where it is rightly used) by which Means, from its near Resemblance to a Pillory, it will ever have a mighty Influence on human Ears.

Of Ladders I need say nothing: It is observed by Foreigners themselves to the Honour of our Country, that we excel all Nations in our Practice and Understanding of this Machine. The ascending Orators do not only oblige their Audience in the agreeable Delivery, but the whole World in the early Publication of their Speeches; which I look upon as the choicest Treasury of our British Eloquence, and whereof, I am informed, that worthy Citizen and Bookseller, Mr. John Dunton, hath made a faithful and painful Collection, which he shortly designs to publish in twelve Volumes in Folio, illustrated with Copper-Plates. A Work highly useful and curious, and altogether worthy of such a Hand.

The last Engine of Orators is the Stage Innerant *, erected with much Sagacity, fub Jove

Is the Mountebank's Stage, whose Orators the Au-

n

f

it

e

16

-

10 16 ce

le

1007 ly

e.5

ty

ill II

ed

ur

ac-

he

18-ole

es;

of

in-

er,

and to ted

and 1800

Iti-

Seminary of the two former, and its Orators are sometimes preferred to the one, and sometimes to the other, in Proportion to their Defervings; there being a strict and perpetual Intercourse between all three.

Merizon, to as them make

From this accurate Deduction it is manifest. that for obtaining Attention in Publick, there is of Necessity required, a superior Position of Place. But, although this Point be generally granted, vet the Cause is little agreed in; and it seemeth to me, that very few Philosophers have fallen into a true, natural Solution of this Phanomenon. The deepest Account, and the most fairly digested of any I have yet met with, is this; that Air being a heavy Body, and therefore, according to the System of + Epicurus, continually descending, must needs be more so, when loaden and pressed down by Words; which are also Bodies of much Weight and Gravity, as it is manifest from those deep Impressions they make and leave upon us; and therefore must be delivered from a due Altitude, or else they will neither carry a good Aim, nor fall down with a fufficient Force.

† Corpoream quoque enim vocem constare fatendum

Et sonitum, quoniam possunt impellere Sensus.

Lucr. Lib. 4.

I barred tittle bear annel banking if the problem architect

In the open Air, and in Streets where the greatest Resort is.

+ Lucret. Lib. 2.

I 'Tis certain then, that Voice that thus can wound, Is all material; Body every Sound.

And I am the readier to favour this Conjecture, from a common Observation; that in the several Assemblies of these Orators, Nature itself hath instructed the Hearers to stand with their Mouths open, and erected parallel to the Horizon, so as they may be intersected by a perpendicular Line from the Zenith to the Center of the Earth. In which Position if the Andience be well compact, every one carries home a Share, and little or nothing is lost.

I confess, there is something yet more refined in the Contrivance and Structure of our modern Theatres. For, first, the Pit is sunk below the Stage, with due Regard to the Institution above deduced; that whatever weighty Matter shall be delivered thence, whether it be Lead or Gold, may fall plum into the Jaws of certain Criticks, as I think they are called, which stand ready opened to devour them. Then, the Boxes are built round, and raised to a Level with the Scene, in Deference to the Ladies; because that large Portion of Wit, laid out in Pruriences and Protuberances, is observed to run much upon a Line, and ever in a Circle. The whining Pafsions, and little starved Conceits, are gently wafted up by their own extreme Levity, to the middle Regions, and there fix, and are frozen by the frigid Understandings of the Inhabitants. Bombastry and Buffoonry, by Nature lofty and light, foar highest of all, and would be lost in the Roof, if the prudent Architect had not (with much Forefight) contrived for them a fourth Place, called The Twelvepenny Gallery, and there planted a fuitable Colony, who greedily intercept them in their Passage.

ide.

ec.

the

it-

with

the

er-

ter

-ol

me

14 ned

ern

the

ove

be nav

as I

nec nik in rge

ron a

Pal-

ntly

the

zen nts.

and in in

with urth nere

ter

TOW

Now this Physico-logical Scheme of Oratorial Receptacles or Machines containeth a great Mystery, being a Type, a Sign, an Emblem, a Shadow, a Symbol, bearing Analogy to the Spacious Commonwealth of Writers, and to those Methods by which they must exalt themselves to a certain Eminency above the inferior World. By the Pulpit are adumbrated the Writings of our modern Saints in Great-Britain, as they have spiritualised and refined them from the Dross and Groffness of Sense and Human Reason. rer, as we have faid, is of rotten Wood; and that upon two Considerations: Because it is the Quality of rotten Wood to give Light in the Dark; and secondly, because its Cavities are full of Worms: Which is a * Type with a Pair. of Handles, having a Respect to the two principal Qualifications of the Orator, and the two different Fates attending upon his Works.

The Ladder is an adequate Symbol of Faction, and of Poetry, to both of which so noble a Number of Authors are indebted for their Fame. † Of Faction, because * * *

Historia Grade Grade Registration of the Construction of the Const ravoletad issuegung adi naad das Poetry;

* The two principal Qualifications of a Fanatic Preacher are, his inward Light, and his Head full of Maggots; and the two different Fates of his Writings are, to be burnt or Worm-eaten.

† Here is pretended a Defect in the Manuscript; and this is very frequent with our Author, either when he thinks he cannot say any Thing worth reading, or when he has no Mind to enter on the Subject, or when it is a Matter of little Moment, or perhaps to amuse his Reader, whereof he is frequently very fond; or lastly, with some satirical Intention.

Poetry; because its Orators do perorare with a Song; and because climbing up by slow Degrees, Fate is sure to turn them off before they can reach within many Steps of the Top: And because it is a Preferment, attained by transferring of Propriety, and a confounding of Meum and Tuum.

Under the Stage-Intinerant are couched those Productions designed for the Pleasure and Delight of mortal Man, such as, Six-penny-worth of Wit, Westminster Drolleries, Delightful Tales, Complete Jesters, and the like; by which the Writers of and for GRUB-STREET, have in these latter Ages so nobly triumphed over Time; have clipped his Wings, pared his Nails, siled his Teeth, turned back his Hour-glass, blunted his Scythe, and drawn the Hobnails out of his Shoes. It is under this Class I have presumed to list my present Treatise, being just come from having the Honour conferred on me, to be adopted a Member of that illustrious Fraternity.

Now, I am not unaware, how the Productions of the Grub-street Brotherhood have, of late Years, fallen under many Prejudices, nor how it hath been the perpetual Employment of two junior start-up Societies to ridicule them and their Authors, as unworthy their established Post in the Commonwealth of Wit and Learning. Their own Consciences will easily inform them, whom I mean; nor has the World been so negligent a Looker-on, as not to observe the continual Efforts made by the Societies of Gresham Marie whereof he is frequently very food?

melling with tome delicion Integrion.

es,

can being

and

1001

ins

ole

De-

om-

ters lat-

ave

his

his

his ned

me

to .

ter-

9495

04 uc-

nor t of hed

arna orm.

een

Gresham * and of + Will's to edify a Name and Reputation upon the Ruin of OURS. this is yet a more feeling Grief to us, upon the Regards of Tenderne's as well as of Justice, when we reflect on their Proceedings not only as unjust, but as ungrateful, undutiful, and unnatural. For how can it be forgot by the World or themselves, to say nothing of our own Records, which are full and clear in the Point, that they are both Seminaries not only of our Planting, but our Watering too? I am informed, our two Rivals have lately made an Offer to enter into the Lists with united Forces, and challenge us to a Comparison of Books, both as to Weight and Number. In return to which, with Licence from our President, I humbly offer two Answers: First, we say, the Proposal is like that which Archimedes made upon a 1 smaller Affair, including an Impossibility in the Practice; for, where can they find Scales of Capacity enough for the first, or an Arithmetician of Capacity enough for the second? Secondly, we are ready to accept the Challenge; but with this Condition, that a third indifferent Person be assigned, to whose impartial Judgment it should be left to decide, which Society each Book, Treatife or Pamphlet do most properly belong to. This Point, God knows, is very far from being fixed at present: For we are * Gresham College was the Place where the Royal Society then met, from whence they removed to Crane-Court, in Fleet-Street.

! Viz. About moving the Earth. rough Clouds V

† Will's Coffee-house in Covent-Garden was formerly the Place where the Poets usually met, which, though it be yet fresh in Memory, in some Years may be forgotten, and want this Explanation.

to

1

ready to produce a Catalogue of some thousands, which in all common Justice ought to be entitled to our Fraternity, but by the revolted and new fangled Writers most persidiously ascribed to the others. Upon all which, we think it very unbecoming our Prudence, that the Determination should be remitted to the Authors themselves; when our Adversaries by briguing and caballing have caused so universal a Desection from us, that the greatest Part of our Society hath already deserted to them, and our nearest Friends begin to stand aloof, as if they were half ashamed to own us.

This is the utmost I am authorised to say upon so ungrateful and melancholy a Subject; because we are extreme unwilling to instance a Controversy, whose Continuance may be so fatal to the Interests of us all; desiring much rather that Things be amicably composed; and we shall so far advance on our Side, as to be ready to receive the two Predigals with open Arms whenever they shall think sit to return from their Huston and their Harlots; which, I think, from the present Course of their Studies they may most properly be said to be engaged in; and like an indulgent Parent continue to them our Affection and our Blessing.

But the greatest Maim given to that general Reception, which the Writings of our Society have formerly received, (next to the transitory State of all sublunary Things) hath been a superficial Vein among many Readers of the present Age, who will by no Means be persuaded cotten, and want this Expanded

* Virtuoso Experiments, and modern Comedies.

tds.

tled

new

the un-tion

es;

ling

us.

ady

egin

i to pon

anie

tro-

the

that

U fo

re-

lever

Iu/ks

the

molt

e an

Rion

oled

neral

ciety

itory

i fu-

pre-

to

ston

to inspect beyond the Surface and the Rind of Things; whereas, Wisdom is a Fox, who, after long hunting, will at last cost you the Pains to dig it out : It is a Cheefe, which, by how much the richer, has the thicker, the homelier, and the coarfer Coat; and whereof to a judicious Palate the Maggots are the best : It is a Sack poffet, wherein the deeper you go, you will find it the sweeter. Wildom is a Hen, whose Cackling we must value and consider, because it is attended with an Egg: But then, laftly, it is a Nut. which, unless you chuse with Judgment, may cost you a Tooth, and pay you with nothing but a Worm. In Consequence of these momentous Truths, the Grubaan Sages have always chosen to convey their Precepts and their Arts thut up within the Vehicles of Types and Fables, which having been perhaps more careful and curious in adorning, than was altogether neceffary, it has fared with these Vehicles, after the usual Fate of Coaches over finely painted and gilt; that the transitory Gazers have so dazzled their Eyes, and filled their Imaginations with the outward Lustre, as neither to regard or consider the Person or the Parts of the Owner A Misfortune we undergo with fomewhat less Reluctancy, because it hath been common with us to Pythagoras, Æsop, Socrates, and others of our Predecessors.

However, that neither the World, nor ourselves, may any longer suffer by such Misunderstandings, I have been prevailed on, after much Importunity from my Friends, to travel in a compleat and laborious Dissertation upon the prime Productions of our Societies; which, besides their beautiful Externals for the Gratification

Or definical Determination of superficial Readers, have darkly and deeply couched under them the most finished and refined System of all Sciences and Arts; as I do not doubt to lay open by untwisting or unwinding, and either to draw up by Exantlation, or display by Incision.

This great Work was entered upon some Years ago by one of our most eminent Members: He began with the History of * Reynard the Fox. but neither lived to publish his Essay, nor to proceed farther in so useful an Attempt, which is very much to be lamented, because the Discovery he made, and communicated with his Friends, is now univerfally received; nor do I think, any of the Learned will dispute that famous Treatife to be a complete Body of Civil Knowledge, and the Revelation, or rather the Apocalypse of all State Arcana. But the Progress I have made is much greater, having already finished my Annotations upon several Dozens; from some of which, I shall impart a few Hints to the candid Reader, as far as will be necessary to the Conclusion, at which I aim.

The first Piece I have handled is that of Tom Thumb, whose Author was a Pythagorean Philosopher. This dark Treatise contains the whole Scheme of the Metempsychosis, deducing the Progress of the Soul through all her Stages.

The next is Dr. Faustus, penned by Artephius, an Author bonæ notæ, and an Adeptus; he published feen a Latin Edition of Reynard the Fox above a hundred Years old, which I take to be the Original; for the rest, it has been thought by many People to contain some satirical Design in it.

ply.

red

not

ng,

lay

me

ers:

ox,

ro-

1- IS

his

o I fa-

the ress

ady

ns;

ints

Tom

ilo-

hole

Pro-

nius,

pub-

thed

have han-

; for ntain

lished it in the * Nine Hundred Eighty-fourth Year of his Age. This Writer proceeds wholely by Reincrudation, or in the via humida; And the Marriage between Faustus and Helen doth most conspicuously dilucidate the fermenting of the Male and Female Dragon.

Whittington and his Cat, is the Work of that mysterious Rabbi, Jehuda Hannasi, containing a Desence of the + Gemara of the Jerusalem Misna, and its just Preference to that of Babylon, contrary to the vulgar Opinion.

The Hind and Panther. This is the Masterpiece of a famous † Writer now living, intended for a complete Abstract of Sixteen Thousand School-men from Scotus to Bellarmin.

Tommy Pots. Another Piece supposed by the same Hand, by way of Supplement to the former.

The Wise Men of Goatham cum Appendice. This is a Treatise of immense Erudition, being the great Original and Fountain of those Arguments, bandied about both in France and England, for a just Defence of the Moderns Learning and Wit, against the Presumption, the Pride, and Ignorance of the Antients. This unknown Author

* The Chymists say of him in their Books, that he prolonged his Life to a thousand Years, and then died voluntarily.

† The Gemera is the Decision, Explanation, or Interpretation of the Jewish Rabbies; and the Missa is properly the Code or Body of the Jewish Civil or Common Law.

I John Dryden, Efg. woll donn abam neds doider hath so exhausted the Subject, that a penetrating Reader will easily discover whatever hath been written since upon that Dispute to be little more than Repetition. * An Abstract of this Treatile hath been lately published by a worthy Member of our Society.

These Notices may serve to give the learned Reader an Idea, as well as a Taste, of what the whole Work is likely to produce; wherein I have now altogether circumscribed my Thoughts and my Studies; and, if I can bring it to a Perfection, before I die, + shall reckon I have well employed the poor Remains of an unfortunate This indeed is more than I can justly expect from a Quill worn to the Pith in the Service of the State, in Pro's and Con's, upon Popish Plots and & Meal Tubs, and Exclusion Bills, and Paffive Obedience, and Addresses of Lives and Fortunes; and Prerogative, and Property, and Liberty of Conscience, and Letters to a Friend: From an Understanding and a Conscience thread-bare and ragged with perpetual Turning; from a Head broken in a hundred Places by the Malignants of the opposite Factions; and from a Body spent with Poxes ill cured, by trusting to Bawds and Surgeons, who, as it afterwards appeared,

This I suppose to be understood of Mr. Wotton's Discourse of ancient and modern Learning.

† Here the Author seems to personate L'Estrange, Dryden, and some others, who, after having past their Lives in Vices, Faction, and Falshood, have the Impudence to talk of Merit, and Innocence, and Sufferings.

Account of a Presbyterian Plot, found in a Tub.

which then made much Noise.

ating

been more

Catife

er of a am

urned what erein

ughts

Perwell

unate

justly

Ser-

upon

Bills,

es and

d Li-

From

-bare

om a

Talig-

Body

Bawds

eared,

were

17 M. otton's range,

t their

Impu-

Suffer-

was an

Tub,

were professed Enemies to me and the Government, and revenged their Party's Quarrel upon my Nose and Shins. Fourscore and Eleven Pamphlets have I written under three Reigns, and for the Service of Six and Thirty Factions.
But finding the State hath no farther Occasion for me and my Ink, I retire willingly to draw it out into Speculations more becoming a Philosopher; having to my unspeakable Comfort, passed a long Life with a Conscience void of Offence.

I am fure from the Reader's But to return. Candour, that the brief Specimen I have given, will eafily clear all the rest of our Society's Productions from an Aspersion grown, as it is manifest, out of Envy and Ignorance; that they are of little farther Use or Value to Mankind, beyond the common Entertainments of their Wit and their Style: for thefel am fure have never yet been disputed by our keenest Adversaries. In both which, as well as the more profound and mystical Part, I have throughout this Treatife closely followed the most applauded Originals. And to render all compleat, I have with much Thought and Application of Mind, so ordered, that the chief Title prefixed to it, I mean, that under which I defign it shall pass in the common Conversations of Court and Town, is modelled exactly after the Manner peculiar to our Society.

I confess to have been somewhat liberal in the Business of * Titles, having observed the Hu-Vol. XX. D mour * The Title-Page in the Original was fo torn, that it it was not possible to recover several Titles which the Author here speaks of.

mour of multiplying them to bear great Vogue among certain Writers, whom I exceedingly reverence. And indeed it seems not unreasonable. that Books, the Children of the Brain, should have the Honour to be christened with Variety of Names, as well as other Infants of Quality. Our famous Dryden hath ventured to proceed a Point farther, endeavouring to introduce also a Multiplicity of * God-fathers; which is an Improvement of much more Advantage upon a very obvious Account. It is a Pity this admirable Invention hath not been better cultivated, fo as to grow by this Time into general Imitation, when fuch an Authority serves it for a Precedent, Nor have my Endeavours been wanting to fecond fo useful an Example : But it seems there is an unhappy Expence usually annexed to the calling of a God-father, which was clearly out of my Head, as it is very reasonable to believe, Where the Pinch lay, I cannot certainly affirm: but having employed a World of Thoughts and Pains to fplit my Treatife into Forty Sections, and having entreated Forty Lords of my Acquaintance, that they would do me the Honour to fland, they an made it a Matter of Confcience, and fent me their Excuses. The dollar ride prefixed to it. I mean

The Title Page in the Original ward rais, that it Russ not possible to recover describ Title contact the Author here speaks of.

I confeit to have been formed but abord in the Business of a Tixle, having otherway that I are a Starting otherway and the first of the starting otherway and the first of the starting of the

See Virgil translated, &c. he dedicated the different Parts of Virgil to different Patrons.

gue

re-

ble.

bluc

y of

ity. d a

0 1

Im.

o a

able

o as ion,

ent.

fe.

nere

the

out eve.

m:

and ons,

Ac-

lour

ilci-

"DIC

Pari

1 ads

B 181

MI

Aut

SECTION II.

o seold the Penalties I trave ..

war an floor boy sustant there is to the Indications in every 1. vi

ONCE upon a Time, there was a Man who had three * Sons by one Wife, and all at a Birth, neither could the Midwife tell certainly which was the eldest. Their Father died while they were young; and upon his Death-bed, calling the Lads to him, spoke thus:

" Sons, because I have purchased no Estate, " nor was born to any, I have long considered of some good Legacies to bequeath you; " and at last, with much Care as well as Ex-" pence, have provided each of you (here they " are) a new + Coat. Now, you are to under-" stand, that these Coats have two Virtues con-" tained in them: One is, that with good " wearing they will last you fresh and found as " long as you live: The other is, that they " will grow in the same Proportion with your " Bodies, lengthening and widening of them-" selves, so as to be always fit. Here; let me " see them on you before I die. So; very " well; pray Children wear them clean, and D 2 bruft thes + Duchels a Linear, Medanic * By these three Sons, Peter, Martin, and Jack, Popery, the Church of England, and our Protestant Difsenters are designed. W. Wotton.

† By his Coats, which he gave his Sons, the Garment of the Ifraelites. W. Wotton.

An Error, (with Submission) of the learned Commentator; for by the Coats are meant the Doctrine and Faith of Christianity, by the Wisdom of the Divine Founder fitted to all Times, Places, and Circumstances: brush them often. You will find in my * Will

(here it is) full Instructions in every Particular concerning the wearing and Management of your Coats; wherein you must be very ex act, to avoid the Penalties I have appointed for every Transgression or Neglect, upon which your future Fortunes will entirely de pend. I have also commanded in my Will,

"that you should live together in one House like "Brethren and Friends, for then you will be

" fure to thrive, and not otherwise."

Here the Story says this good Father died, and the three Sons went all together to seek their Fortunes.

Adventures they met for the first seven Years, any farther than by taking Notice, that they carefully observed their Father's Will, and kept their Coats in very good Order; that they travelled through several Countries, encountered a reasonable Quantity of Giants, and sew certain Dragons.

Being now arrived at the proper Age for producing themselves, they came up to Town, and sell in Love with the Ladies, but especially three, who about that Time were in chief Reputation; The † Duchess d'Argent, Madame de Grands lengthening and asker

* The New Testament.

† Their Mistresses are the Duchess d'Argent, Mademoiselle de Grands Titres, and the Countess d'Orgueil, i.e. Eowetousness, Ambition, and Pride; which were the three great Vices that the antient Fathers inveighed against, as the first Corruptions of Christianity. W. Wotton 加 lar of

x.

ted

deill, ike

be

ed,

hat

irs,

ney

ept

rada

ain

ro-

and ree, ands

res,

hree

Titres, and the Countess d'Orgueil. On their first Appearance our three Adventurers met with a very bad Reception; and foon with great Sagacity guesfing out the Reason, they quickly began to improve in the good Qualities of the Town: They writ and rallied, and rhymed, and fung, and faid, and faid nothing: They drank, and fought, and whored, and flept, and fwore, and took Snuff: They went to new Plays on the first Night, haunted the Chocolate Houses, beat the Watch, lay on Bulks, and got Claps: They bilked Hackney Coachmen, ran in Debt with Shopkeepers, and lay with their Wives: They killed Bailiffs, kicked Fidlers down Stairs, eat at Locket's, loitered at Will's: They talked of the Drawing-Room, and never came there: Dined with Lords they never faw: Whispered a Duchels, and spoke never a Word: Exposed the Scrawls of their Laundress for Billetdoux of Quality: Came ever just from Court, and were never feen at it : Attended the Levee fub dio : Got a List of Peers by Heart in one Company, and with great Familiarity retailed them in another. Above all, they constantly attended those Committees of Senators, who are silent in the House, and loud in the Coffee-house, where they nightly adjourn to chew the Cud of Politicks. and are encompassed with a Ring of Disciples, who lie in wait to catch up their Droppings. The three Brothers had acquired forty other Qualifications of the like Stamp, too tedious to recount, and by Consequence were justly reckoned the most accomplished Persons in the Town: But all would not suffice, and the Ladies aforesaid, continued still inflexible. To clear up which Difficulty I must, with the Reader's good Leave and Patience, have Recourse to D 3 fome fome Points of Weight, which the Authors of that Age have not sufficiently illustrated.

For, * about this Time it happened a Sed arose, whose Tenets obtained and spread very far, especially in the Grande Monde, and among every Body of good Fashion. They worthin. ped a Sort of + Idal, who, as their Doctrine de. livered, did daily create Men by a Kind of ma nufactory Operation. This Idol they placed in the highest Parts of the House, on an Altar erected about three Foot: He was shewn in the Posture of a Persian Emperor, sitting on a Superficies, with his Legs interwoven under him. This God had a Goose for his Ensign; whence it is that some learned Men pretend to deduce his Original from Jupiter Capitolinus. At his left Hand, beneath the Altar, Hell seemed to open, and catch at the Animals the Idol was creating; to prevent which, certain of his Priests hourly flung in Pieces of the uninformed Mass, or Substance, and sometimes whole Limbs already enlivened, which that horrid Gulph infatiably swallowed, terrible to behold. The Goofe was also held a subaltern Divinity, or Deus minorum Gentium, before whose Shrine was sacrificed that Creature, whose hourly Food is human Gore, and who is in so great Renown abroad for being the Delight and Favourite of the & Exptian Corcopithecus. Millions of these Animals were cruelly flaughtered every Day to appeale the

† By this Idol is meant a Taylor.

† The Egyptians worshipped a Monkey, which Ammal is very fond of eating Lice, stiled here Creatures that feed on human Gore.

* This is an occasional Satire upon Dress and Fashion in order to introduce what follows.

of

ect

ery

ng

ip.

de.

na.

in

ltar.

the

Su-

im.

e it

his left

en,

ng;

irly

ub-

en-

val-

also Sen-

that ore,

eing

Ger-

vere the nger

thiou

Hunger of that consuming Deity. The chief Idol was also worshipped as the Inventor of the Yard and Needle, whether as the God of Seamen, or on Account of certain other mystical Attributes, hath not been sufficiently cleared.

The Worshippers of this Deity had also a System of their Belief, which seemed to turn upon the following Fundamentals: They held the Universe to be a large Suit of Cloatbs which invests every Thing: That the Earth is invested by the Air; the Air is invested by the Stars; and the Stars are invested by the Primum Mobile. Look on this Globe of Earth, you will find it to be a very compleat and fashionable Dress. What is that which some call Land, but a fine Coat faced with Green? Or the Sea but a Waistcoat of Water-Tabby? Proceed to the particular Works of the Creation, you will find how curious Journeyman Nature hath been to trim up the vegetable Beaux: Observe how sparkish a Perriwig adorns the Head of a Beech, and what a fine Doublet of white Sattin is worn by the Birch. To conclude from all, what is Man himself but a * Micro-Coat, or rather a compleat Suit of Cloaths with all its Trimmings? As to his Body there can be no Dispute; but examine even the Acquirements of his Mind, you will find them all contribute in their Order towards furnishing our an exact Drefs: To instance no more; is not Religion a Cloak, Honesty a Pair of Shoes worn out in the Dirt, Self-love a Surtout, Vanity a Shirt, and Conscience a Pair of Breeches, which, although a Cover for Lewdness as well Dig Sil and I sales as as anonumicari Calada

* Alluding to the Word Microcosm, or a little World, as Man hath been called by Philosophers.

as Nastiness, is easily slipt down for the Service of both.

the and Medic, whereigh as sie C These Postulata being admitted, it will follow in due Course of Reasoning, that those Beings which the World calls improperly Suits of Cloaths. are in Reality the most refined Species of Animals; or to proceed higher, that they are ma tional Creatures, or Men. For, is it not manifest, that they live, and move, and talk, and perform all other Offices of human Life? Are not Beauty, and Wit, and Mien, and Breeding their inseparable Proprieties? In short we see nothing but them, hear nothing but them. Is it not they who walk the Streets, fill up Parliament-, Coffee-, Play-, Bawdy. bouses? It is true indeed, that these Animals, which are vulgarly called Suits of Cloaths, or Dreffes, do according to certain Compositions receive different Appellations. If one of them be trimmed up with a gold Chain, and a red Gown, and a white Rod, and a great Horse, it is called a Lord Mayor: If certain Ermins and Furs be placed in a certain Position we style them a Judge; and so an apt Conjunction of Lawn and black Satin we entitle a Bishop.

Others of these Professors, although agreeing in the main System, were yet more refined upon certain Branches of it; and held, that Man was an Animal compounded of two Dresses, the natural and celestial Suit, which were the Body and the Soul: That the Soul was the outward, and the Body the inward Cloathing; that the latter was ex traduce; but the former of daily Greation and Circumsusion. This last they proved by Scripture, because, in them we live, and move, and both

ICC

国的

WO.

gs,

ini-

mi-

and

Are

ling

fee

Is

·liaudy.

als,

10 ions

n be wn.

alled

s be

m a and

Desil)

51561 eing

upon

was

e na-

and

ation

our Being: As likewise by Philosophy, because, they are All in All, and All in every Part. Bessides, said they, seperate these two, and you will find the Body to be only a senseless unsavoury. Carcass. By all which it is manifest, that the outward Dress must needs be the Soul.

To this System of Religion, were tagged several subaltern * Doctrines, which were entertained with great Vogue; as particularly the Faculties of the Mind were deduced by the Learned among them in this Manner: Embroidery, was sheer Wit; Gold Fringe, was agreeable Conversation; Gold Lace, was Repartee; a huge long Perriwig, was Humour; and a Coat full of Powder, was very good Raillery: All which required Abundance of Finesse and Delicatesse to manage with Advantage, as well as a strict Observance after Times and Fashions.

I have, with much Pains and Reading, collected out of antient Authors this short Summary D. 5:

* The first Part of the Tale is the History of Peter; thereby Popery is exposed: Every Body knows the Papists have made great Additions to Christianity, that indeed is the great Exception which the Church of England makes against them; accordingly Peter begins his Pranks with adding a Shoulder-Knot to his Coat. W. Wotton.

His Description of the Cloth, of which the Coat was made, has a farther Meaning than the Words may seem to import: "The Coats their Father had lett them were of very good Cloth, and besides, so neatly fown, you would swear they were all of a Piece; but at the same Time very plain, with little or no Ornament." This is the distinguishing Character of the Christian Religion: Christiana Religio absoluta fimplex, was Ammianus Marcellinus's Description of it, who was himself a Heathen. W. Wotton.

of a Body of Philosophy and Divinity, which feems to have been composed by a Vein and Race of Thinking, very different from any other System, either antient or modern. And it was not merely to entertain or satisfy the Reader's Curiosity, but rather to give him Light into feveral Circumstances of the following Story; that knowing the State of Dispositions and Opinions in an Age so remote, he may better comprehend those great Events which were the Issue of them. I advise therefore the courteous Reader to peruse with a World of Application, again and again, whatever I have written upon this Matter. And leaving these broken Ends, I carefully gather up the chief Thread of my Story, and proceed.

These Opinions therefore were so universal, as well as the Practices of them, among the refined Part of Court and Town, that our three Brother-Adventurers, as their Circumstances then stood, were strangely at a Loss. For, on the one Side, the three Ladies they addressed themfelves to, whom we have named already, were ever at the very Top of the Fashion, and abhorred all that were below it but the Breadth of a Hair; on the other Side their Father's Will was very precise, and it was the main Precept in it, with the greatest Penalties annexed, not to add to, or diminish from their Coats one Thread, without a positive Command in the Will. Now, the Coats their Father had left them, were, it is true, of very good Cloth, and besides, so neatly sown, you would swear they were all of a Piece; but at the same Time very plain, and with little or no Ornament; and it happened, that before they were a Month hich

and other

Was

der's

o fe-

that ions

hend

hem.

erule

gain,

And

er up

erfal,

e re-

three then

n the hem-

were

d ab-

th of

Will

ecept

, not one

n the

d left

Cloth, Iwear

Time

nent;

Aonth

ed.

in Town, great * Shoulder-knots came up; ftrait, all the World was Shoulder-knots; no approach. ing the Ladies Ruelles without the Quota of Shoulder-knots. " That Fellow (cries one) hath no " Soul, where is his Shoulder-knot?" Our three Brethren soon discovered their Want by sad Experience, meeting in their Walks with forty Mortifications and Indignities. If they went to the Play-house, the Door-keeper shewed them into the Twelve-penny Gallery. If they called a Boat, fays a Waterman, I am first Sculler. they stepped to the Rose to take a Bottle, the Drawer would cry, Friend, we fell no Ale. they went to visit a Lady, a Footman met them. at the Door, with pray fend up your Meffage. this unhappy Cafe they went immediately to confult their Father's Will, read it over and over. but not a Word of the Shoulder-knot : What should they do? What Temper should they find? Obedience was abfolutely necessary, and yet: Shoulder-knots appeared extremely requifite. After much Thought, one of the Brothers, who happened to be more Book-learned than the other. two, said, he had found an Expedient. " It is " true (said he) there is nothing here in this "Will, totidem verbis, making mention of " Shoulder-knots, but I dare conjecture, we may " find them inclusive, or totidem syllabis." This Distinction was immediately approved by all, and so they fell again to examine; but their evil-Star had so directed the Matter, that the first Syllable * By this is understood the first introducing of Pageantry, and unnecessary Ornaments in the Church, such as were neither for Convenience nor Edification, as a Shoulder-knot in which there is neither Symmetry, nor Use.

Syllable was not to be found in the whole Write. ings. Upon which Disappointment he, who found the former Evasion, took Heart, and said. " Brothers, there is yet Hopes; for though we " cannot find them totidem verbis, nor tridem " fyllabis, I dare engage we shall make them " out tertio modo, or totidem literis." This Dif. covery was also highly commended, upon which they fell once more to the Scrutiny, and picked out S, H, O, U, L, D, E, R; when the same Planet, Enemy to their Repose, had wonderfully contrived that a K was not to be found. Here was a weighty Difficulty! But, the diffinguishing Brother, for whom we shall hereafter find a Name, now his Hand was in, proved by a very good Argument, that K was a modern illegeri. mate Letter, unknown to the learned Ages, nor any where to be found in antient Manuscripts, Calenda hath in * Q. V. C. been sometimes written with a K, but erroneously; for in the best Copies it has been ever spelt with a C. And by Consequence it was a gross Mistake in our Language to spell Knot with a K; but that from henceforward, he would take Care it should be written with a C. Upon this all farther Difficulty vanished; Shoulder-knots were made clearly out to be jure paterno; and our three Gentlemen Swaggered with as large and as flaunting ones as the best.

But, as human Happiness is of very short Duration, so in those Days were human Fashions, upon which it entirely depends. Shoulder knots had their Time, and we must now imagine them

* Quibusdam veteribus codicibus. Some antient

e.

hò

id,

We

em

em

)if-ich

ced

me

illy

ere

hda

ery

eti-

10n

pts.

mes

the

And

our rom

d be

Dif-

arly

men

s as

Du-

ons,

em

in ent

200 in their Decline; for a certain Lord came just from Paris with fifty Yards of Gold-Lace upon his Coat, exactly trimmed after the Court Fashion of that Month. In two Days all Mankind appeared closed up in Bars of * Gold-Lace: Whoever durst peep abroad without his Complement of Gold-Lace, was as scandalous as a and as ill received among the Women. What should our three Knights do in this momentous Affair? They had sufficiently strained a Point already in the Affair of Shoulder-knots: Upon Recourse to the Will, nothing appeared there, but altum filentium. That of the Shoulderknots was a loose, flying, and circumstantial Point; but this of Gold-Lace seemed too considerable an Alteration without better Warrant: it did aliquo modo essentia adharere, and therefore required a positive Precept. But about this Time it fell out, that the learned Brother aforefaid. had read Aristotelis dialectica, and especially that wonderful Piece de Interpretatione, which has the Faculty of teaching its Readers to find out a Meaning in every Thing but itself; like Commentators on the Revelations, who proceed Prophets without understanding a Syllable of the Text. " Brothers, (faid he) you are to be in-" formed, that of Wills duo funt genera +, nun-" cupatory and fcriptory; that in the fcriptory. " Will here before us, there is no Precept or " Mention about Gold-Lace, conceditur: " si idem affirmetur de nuncupatoria, negatur. For,

" Brothers,

† By this is meant Tradition, allowed to have equal-Authority with the Scripture, or rather greater.

I cannot tell whether the Author means any new Innovation by this Word, or whether it be only to introduce the new Methods of forcing and perverting the Scripture.

"Brothers, if you remember, we heard a Fel"low say, when we were Boys, that he heard
"my Father's Man say, that he heard my Fa"ther say, that he would advise his Sons to get "Gold-Lace on their Coats, as soon as ever
"they could procure Money to buy it." "By "G— that is very true," cries the other; "I "remember it perfectly well," said the third.
And so without more ado they got the largest Gold-Lace in the Parish, and walked about as fine as Lords.

A while after there came up all in Fashion a pretty Sort of Flame-coloured Sattin + for Linings; and the Mercer brought a Pattern of it immediately to our three Gentlemen: "An please your

When the Papists cannot find any Thing which they want in Scripture, they go to Oral Tradition; thus Peter is introduced diffatisfied with the tedious Way of looking for all the Letters of any Word, which he has Occasion for in the Will, when neither the constituent Syllables, nor much less the whole Word, were there in Terminis. W. Wotton.

† This is Purgatory, whereof he speaks more particularly hereaster; but here, only how Scripture was perverted to prove it, which was done, by giving equal Authority with the Canon to Apocrypha, called here a Codicil annexed.

It is likely the Author, in every one of these Changes in the Brothers Dresses, refers to some particular Error in the Church of Rome; though it is not easy, I think, to apply them all; but by this of Flame-coloured-Sattinis manifestly intended Purgatory; by Gold-Lace, may perhaps be understood, the losty Ornaments and Plate in the Churches; the Shoulder-knots and Silver Fringe are not so obvious, at least to me; but the Indian Figures of Men, Women, and Children, plainly relate to the Pictures in the Romish Churches, of God like an old Man, of the Virgin Mary, and our Saviour as a Child.

el-

ard Fa-

get

By

ird.

gest

fine on a gs;

me-

eale our hich

thus

y of

has.

uent

here

par-

was qual

re a nges.

Er-

attin

may Plate

ringe

n old

hild.

" your Worships, (faid he) * my Lord C-, " and Sir J. W. had Linings out of this very " Piece last Night; it takes wonderfully, and " I shall not have a Remnant left, enough to " make my Wife a Pin-Cushion, by To-mor-" row Morning at Ten o'Clock." Upon this they fell again to rummage the Will, because the present Case also required a positive Precept, the Lining being held by orthodox Writers to be of the Essence of the Coat. After long Search they could fix upon nothing to the Matter in Hand, except a short Advice of their Father in the Will + to take Care of Fire, and put out, their Candles before they went to fleep. This although a good deal for the Purpose, and helping very far towards Self-Conviction, yet not feeming wholely of Force to establish a Command; (being refolved to avoid farther Scruple. as well as future Occasion for Scandal,) says he that was the Scholar, "I remember to have " read in Wills of a Codicil annexed, which is "indeed a Part of the Will, and what it " contains hath equal Authority with the " rest. Now, I have been considering of this " same Will here before us, and I cannot reckon " it to be compleat for want of such a Codicil: " I will therefore fasten one in its proper Place " very dextroufly; I have had it by me some " Time; it was written by a Dog-keeper of " my † Grandfather's, and talks a great deal as good * This shews the Time the Author writ, it being about fourteen Years since those two Persons were reckoned the sine Gentlemen of the Town.

† That is, to take Care of Hell; and, in order to t I believe this refers to that Part of the Apoerypha, where mention is made of Tobit and his Dog.

"good Luck would have it of this very flame." Coloured Sattin." The Project was immediately approved by the other two; an old Parchment was tagged on according to Art, in the Form of a Codicil annexed, and the Satisf bought and worn.

Next Winter a Player, hired for the Purpole by the Corporation of Fringe-makers, afted his Part in a new Comedy all covered with * Silver Fringe, and according to the laudable Custom gave Rife to that Fashion. Upon which the Brothers consulting their Father's Will, to their great Astonishment found these Words; " Item, "I charge and command my faid three Sons to " wear no Sort of Silver-Fringe upon or about " their said Coats, &c." with a Penalty in Case of Disobedience, too long here to insert. However, after some Pause, the Brother so often mentioned for his Erudition, who was well kil-"led in Criticisms, had found in a certain Author, which he faid should be nameless, that the same Word, which in the Will is called Fringe, doth also signify a Broom-flick +; and doubtless ought to have the same Interpretation in this Paragraph. This another of the Brothers difliked, because of that Epithet Silver, which could not, he humbly conceived, in Propriety of Speech, be reasonably applied to a Broomstick; But it was replied upon him, that this Epithet was understood in a Mythological and Allegorical Sense. However,

This is certainly the farther introducing the Pomps of Habit and Ornament.

† The next Subject of our Author's Wit, is the Glosses and Interpretations of Scripture, very many absurd ones of which are allowed in the most authentic Books of the Church of Rome. W. Wotton.

me-

me-

old

i, in ation

pole

his

ilver

ftom

their

Item,

ns to about

Cale

How-

often

1 skilthor,

fame

doth

ought graph.

caule

e, he

h, be t was inder-

Senie.

Pomps

is the many hentic

234

However, he objected again, why their Father should forbid them to wear a Broom-stick on their Coats, a Caution that seemed unnatural and impertinent; upon which he was taken up short, as one that spoke irreverently of a Mystery, which doubtless was very useful and significant, but ought not to be over-curiously pried into, or nicely reasoned upon. And in short, their Father's Authority being now considerably sunk, this Expedient was allowed to serve as a lawful Dispensation for wearing their full Proportion of Silver Fringe.

A while after was revived an old Fashion, long antiquated, of Embroidery with Indian Figures of Men, Women, and Children. Here they remembered but too well, how their Father had always abhorred this Fashion; that he made leveral Paragraphs on Purpose, importing his utter Detellation of it, and bestowing his everlasting Curse to his Sons, whenever they should bear it. For all this, in a few Days, they appeared higher in the Fashion than any Body else in the Town. But they folved the Matter by faying, that these Figures were not at all the same with those that were formerly worn, and were meant in the Will. Besides, they did not wear them in the Sense, as forbidden by their Father, but as they were a commendable Custom, and of great Use to the Publick. That these rigorous Clauses in the Will did therefore require some Allowances, and

The Images of Saints, the bleffed Virgin, and our Saviour an Infant.

Ibid. Images in the Church of Rome give him but too fair a Handle, the Brothers remembered, &c. The Algegory here is direct. W. Wotton.

and a favourable Interpretation, and ought to be understood cum grano Salis.

But Fashions perpetually altering in that Age, the Scholastick Brother grew weary of fearthing farther Evalions, and folving everlafting Contradictions. Resolved therefore at all Hazards to comply with the Modes of the World; they concerted Matters together, and agreed unanimoully to * lock up their Father's Willin a from Box, brought out of Greece or Italy, I have forgotten which, and trouble themselves no farther to examine it, but only refer to its Authority whenever they thought fit. In Confequence whereof, a while after it grew a general Mode to wear an infinite Number of Points, most of them tagged with Silver: Upon which the Scho. lar pronounced + ex Gathedra, that Points were absolutely Jure paterno, as they might very well remember. It is true indeed, the Fathion prefcribed somewhat more than were directly named in the Will; however, that they, as Heirs general of their Father, had Power to make and

* The Papists formerly forbad the People the Use of Scripture in a vulgar Tongue, Peter therefore locks up his Father's Will in a strong Box, brought out of Greece or Haly: These Countries are named because the New Testament is written in Greek; and the only ar Latin, which is the authentic Edition of the Bible in the Church of Rome, is in the Language of old Italy.

The Popes, in their Decretals and Bulls, have given their Sanction to very many gainful Doctrines, which are now received in the Church of Rome, that are not mentioned in Scripture, and are unknown to the primitive Church: Peter, accordingly, pronounces ex Cathedra, that Points tagged with Silver were abfoliated Jure Paterno; and so they wore them in great Numbers. W. Wotton.

o be teres)

100)

Age, hing

atra-

is to they

nanitrong

have faratho.

ence

de to

A of cho-

were well

I DIC amed

ge.

and add 1 100 Ufe of

ocks up

eece or New

Latin, Church

otton.

have

Arines,

e, that a to the ounces bsolutely

Num.

add certain Clauses for the public Emolument, not deducible, totidem verbis, from the Letter of the Will, or elfe, multa abfurda sequerentur. This was understood for Canonical, and therefore on the following Sunday they came to Church all covered with Points.

The learned Brother so often mentioned, was reckoned the best Scholar in all that, or the next Street to it; infomuch as, having run fomething behind hand in the World, he obtained the Fayour of a certain Lord *, to receive him into his House, and teach his Children. A while after the Lord died, and he by long Practice of his Father's Will, found the Way of contriving a Deed of Conveyance of that House to himself, and his Heirs: Upon which he took Poffession, turned the young Squires out, and received his Brothers in their Stead +. iff and only beamer

* This was Constantine the Great, from whom the Popes pretend a Donation of St. Peter's Patrimony, which they have never been able to produce.

† Ibid. The Bishops of Rome enjoyed their Privileges in Rome at first by the Favour of Emperors, whom at last they shut out of their own Capital City, and then forged a Donation from Constantine the Great, the better to justify what they did. In Imitation of this, Peter, " having run something behind-hand in " the World, obtained Leave of a certain Lord, &c." aids to the boy W. Wotton.

in all Conversions, there has his wash a burill banking histor leividg which, a caseful Readersmight inorgation of the same as I

Rocks and Pancolline I nder i en etimpel dedi bog se ger Se VI eti bin seviermen se setti qu

SECT. III.

was discounted with the description of the Lar thornerous sites on the public standards

ATTALE OF TUR

A Digression concerning Critickse

LTHOUGH I have been hitherto as cantious as I could, upon all Occasions, mol nicely to follow the Rules and Methods of Writeing laid down by the Example of our illustrious Moderns; yet has the unhappy Shortness of my Memory led me into an Error, from which I must extricate myself, before I can decently purfue my principal Subject. I confess with Shame, it was an unpardonable Omission to proceed to far as I have already done, before I had performed the due Discourses, Expostulatory, Supplicatory, or Deprecatory, with my good Lords the Criticks. Towards some Atonement for this grievous Neglect, I do here make humbly bold to present them with a short Account of themfelves and their Art, by looking into the Original and Pedigree of the Word, as it is generally understood among us, and very briefly confidering the antient and present State thereof.

By the Word Critick, at this Day so frequent in all Conversations, there have sometimes been distinguished Three very different Species of mortal Men, according as I have read in antient Books and Pamphlets. For, first, by this Term was understood such Persons as invented or drew up Rules for themselves and the World; by observing which, a careful Reader might be able to pronounce pron form the . ter o it: out t Fulfe the ( burg care out t to ol Ordi padd fign Men unde Senf to pr lets 1 and ] Fudg > the Wor

all M

fome cour my F

> TRU antie born

pronounce upon the Productions of the Learned form his Tafte to a true Relish of the Sublime and the Admirable, and divide every Beauty of Matter or of Style from the Corruption that apeth it: In their common Perusal of Books, fingling out the Errors and Defects, the Nauseous, the Fullome, the Dull, and the Impertinent, with the Caution of a Man that walks through Edinburgh Streets in a Morning, who is indeed as careful as he can to watch diligently, and for out the Filth in his Way; not that he is curious to observe the Golour and Complexion of the Ordure, or take its Dimensions, much less to be paddling in, or tasting it; but only with a Defign to come out as cleanly as he may. Thefe Men feem, although very erroneously, to have understood the Appellation of Critick in a literal Sense; that one principal Part of his Office was to praise and acquit; and that a Critick, who lets up to read only for an Occasion of Censure and Reproof, is a Creature as barbarous as a Judge, who should take up a Resolution to hang all Men that came before him upon a Trial.

9

0 ri-

nent

een

of

ient

rm

ew ob-

to:

nce

Again; by the Word Critick have been meant, the Restorers of antient Learning from the Worms, and Graves, and Dust of Manuscripts.

Now, the Races of those two have been for some Ages utterly extinct; and, besides, to discourse any farther of them would not be all to my Purpose.

The Third, and Noblest Sort, is that of the TRUE CRITICK, whose Original is the most antient of all. Every True Critick is a Hero born, descending in a direct Line from a Celestial

tial Stem by Momus and Hybris, who begat Zoilus, who begat Tigellius, who begat Et. cætera the Elder, who begat Bentley, and Ry. mer, and Wotton, and Perrault, and Dennis who begat Etcætera the Younger. on the Errors and Defects, the Nauteons, the

And these are the Criticks, from whom the Commonwealth of Learning hath in all Ages received fuch immense Benefits, that the Gratitude of their Admirers placed their Origin in Heaven, among those of Hercules, Theleus, Perseus, and other great Deservers of Mankind But Heroic Virtue itself hath not been exempt from the Obloquy of evil Tongues. For it hath been objected, that those antient Heroes, famous for their combating fo many Giants, and Dugons, and Robbers, were in their own Persons greater Nuisance to Mankind, than any of those Monsters they subdued; and therefore, to render their Obligations more compleat, when all other Vermin were destroyed, should in Conscience have concluded with the same Justice upon themselves. Hercules most generously did and hath upon that Score, procured to himfelf more Temples and Votaries than the best of his Fellows. For these Reasons, I suppose it is, why some have conceived, it would be very expedient for the public Good of Learning, that every True Critick, as foon as he had finished his Task assigned, should immediately deliver himfelf up to Ratibane, or Hemp, or from fome convenient Altitude; and that no Man's Preterfions to so illustrious a Character should by an Means be received, before that Operation were performed.

word defeending in a direct Line from a Celar and it is Tru thro and then fron Hea Dun Fow der t like Fruit

1

T quate Disco may lowin amino antien media nour have b with t and N Subject ginatio with t Quinte diffil in appears

Criticif

Now, from this heavenly Descent of Criticism, and the close Analogy it bears to Heroic Virtue, it is easy to assign the proper Employment of a True Antient Genuine Critick; which is to travel through this vast World of Writings; to pursue and hunt those monstrous Faults bred within them; to drag out the lurking Errors like Cacus from his Den; to multiply them like Hydra's Heads; and rake them together like Augeas's Dung; or else drive away a Sort of dangerous Fowl, who have a perverse Inclination to plunder the best Branches of the Tree of Knowledge, like those Stymphalian Birds that eat up the Fruit.

t

n S nall

0-ce

id.

elf

his 15, ex.

hat

his im-

me

en-

....

These Reasonings will furnish us with an adequate Definition of a True Critick; that he is a Discoverer and Collector of Writers Faults; which may be farther put beyond Dispute by the following Demonstration: That whoever will examine the Writings in all Kinds, wherewith this antient Sect hath honoured the World, shall immediately find from the whole Thread and Tenour of them, that the Ideas of the Authors have been altogether conversant, and taken up with the Faults, and Blemishes, and Oversights, and Mistakes of other Writers; and, let the Subject treated on be whatever it will, their Imaginations are so entirely possessed and replete with the Defects of other Pens, that the very Quintessence of what is bad doth of Necessity diffil in their own; by which Means the whole appears to be nothing elfe but an Abstract of the Criticisms themselves have made.

gaines I medden han insime to notice I carning wh

tien

blin

ner

too

tur

Co

tha

Im

fro

fof

tire

of

mon

ftru

Pre

refe

by and

Tin

tha

into acc

or t

that vent

phici

ficia

agai

the '

nece

ceiv

coul

Nun

conf

5

Having thus briefly considered the Original and Office of a Critick, as the Word is understood in its most noble and universal Acceptation. I proceed to refute the Objections of those. who argue from the Silence and Pretermission of Authors; by which they pretend to prove, that the very Art of Criticism as now exercised, and by me explained, is wholely Modern; and confequently, that the Criticks of Great-Britain and France have no Title to an Original so antient and illustrious as I have deduced. Now, if I can clearly make out on the contrary, that the antient Writers have particularly described both the Person and the Office of a True Critical agreeable to the Definition laid down by me; their grand Objection, from their Silence of Authors, will fall to the Ground.

I confess to have for a long Time born a Part in this general Error; from which I should never have acquitted myself, but through the Assistance of our noble Moderns; whose most edifying Volumes I turn indefatigably over Night and Day for the Improvement of my Mind, and the Good of my Country: These have with unwearied Pains made many useful Searches into the weak Side of the Antients, and given us a comprehensive * Besides, they have proved be Lift of them. yond Contradiction, that the very finest Thing delivered of old, have been long fince invented and brought to Light by much later Pens; and that the noblest Discoveries those Antients ever made of Art or Nature have all been produce by the transcending Genius of the present Age which clearly shews, how little Merit those Antients can justly pretend to; and takes off that blind Admiration paid them by Men in a Corner, who have the Unhappiness of conversing too little with present Things. Reflecting maturely upon all this, and taking in the whole Compais of human Nature, I eafily concluded. that these Antients, highly sensible of their many Imperfections, must needs have endeavoured from some Passages in their Works to obviate. soften, or divert the censorious Reader, by Satire or Panegyrick upon the Criticks, in Imitation of their Masters the Moderns. Now in the Common-Places of * both these, I was plentifully instructed, by a long Course of useful Study in Prefaces and Prologues; and therefore immediately resolved to try what I could discover of either. by a diligent Perusal of the most antient Writers. and especially those who treated of the earliest Times. Here I found to my great Surprize, that although they all entered, upon Occasion, into particular Descriptions of the true Critick, according as they were governed by their Fears or their Hopes; yet whatever they touched of that Kind, was with Abundance of Caution, adventuring no farther than Mythology and Hierogly-This, I suppose, gave Ground to superficial Readers, for urging the Silence of Authors against the Antiquity of the true Critick, although the Types are so apposite, and the Application so necessary and natural, that it is not easy to conceive, how any Reader of a modern Eye and Taffe could overlook them. I shall venture from a great Number to produce a few, which, I am very confident will put this Question beyond Dispute. Vor. XX.

See Wotton of antient and modern Learning.

er

0-or of

ns

ive

nich

It well deserves considering, that these antient Writers, in treating anigmatically upon the Subject, have generally fixed upon the very same Hieroglyph, varying only the Story, according to their Affections, or their Wit. For, first, Paufanias is of Opinion, that the Perfection of writing correct, was entirely owing to the In-Aitution of Criticks; and, that he can possibly mean no other than the true Critick, is, I think, manifest enough from the following Description, He fays, "They were a Race of Men, who " delighted to nibble at the Superfluities and " Excrescencies of Books; which the Learned " at length observing, took warning of their " own Accord, to lop the Luxuriant, the Rotten, " the Dead, the Saples, and the Overgrown " Branches from their Works." But now, all this he cunningly shades under the following Allegory; "That the * Nauplians in Argos " learned the Art of pruning their Vines by " observing, that when an ASS had browsed upon one of them, it thrived the better, and bore fairer Fruit." But + Herodotus holding the fame Hieroglyph, speaks much plainer, and almost in Terminis. He hath been so bold as to tax the true Critick of Ignorance and Malice; telling us openly, for I think nothing can be plainer, that " in the Western Parts of Libya there were ASSES with HORNS." Upon which Relation & Ctelias yet refines, mentioning the very same Animal about India, adding, " That whereas all other ASSES wanted a Gall, these horned ones were so redundant in that * Lib. — † Lib. 4.

† Vide excerpta ex eo apud Photium.

" Part, that their Flesh was not to be eaten,

" because of its extreme Bitterness."

Now, the Reason why those antient Writers treated this Subject only by Types and Figures, was, because they durst not make open Attacks against a Party so potent and terrible, as the Criticks of those Ages were; whose very Voice was so dreadful, that a Legion of Authors would tremble, and drop their Pens at the Sound; for fo Herodotus telleth us expressly in another. * Place, how " a vast Army of Scythians was " put to Flight in a panic Terror by the Braying " of an ASS." From hence it is conjectured by certain profound Philologers, that the great Awe and Reverence paid to a true Critick, by the Writers of Britain, have been derived to us from those our Scythian Ancestors. In short, this Dread was so universal, that in Process of Time those Authors who had a Mind to publish their Sentiments more freely, in describing the true Criticks of their several Ages, were forced to leave off the Use of their former Hieroglyph, as too nearly approaching the Prototype, and invented other Terms instead thereof, that were more cautious and mystical: So + Diodorus, speaking to the same Purpose, ventures no farther, than to fay, that " in the Mountains of Helicon, " there grows a certain Weed, which bears a "Flower of so damned a Scent, as to poison those who offer to smell it." Lucretius giveth exactly the same Relation:

E 2

ER

* Est etiam in magnis Heliconis montibus arbos, Floris odore hominem tetro consueta necare.

Lib. 6.

But Ctesias, whom we lately quoted, hath been a great deal bolder; he had been used with much Severity by the true Criticks of his own Age, and therefore could not forbear to leave behind him, at least, one deep Mark of his Vengeance against the whole Tribe. Meaning is so near the Surface, that I wonder how it possibly came to be overlooked by those, who deny the Antiquity of true Criticks. For, pretending to make a Description of many strange Animals about India, he hath fet down these remarkable Words : " Amongst the rest (says he) " there is a Serpent that wants Teeth, and con-" fequently cannot bite; but if its Vomit (to " which it is much addicted) happens to fall " upon any Thing, a certain Rottennels or " Corruption ensues : These Serpents are ge-" nerally found among the Mountains where "Jewels grow, and they frequently emit a poi"Jonous Juice, whereof whoever drinks, that "Person's Brains sty out of his Nostrils."

There was also among the Antients a Sort of Criticks, not distinguished in Specie from the former, but in Growth or Degree, who seem to have been only the Tyro' or junior Scholars; yet, because of their different Employments, they they are frequently mentioned as a Sect by themfelves. The usual Exercise of these younger Students was to attend constantly at Theatres, and learn to spy out the worst Parts of the Play, whereof they were obliged carefully to take Note, and render a rational Account to their Tutors. Fleshed at these smaller Sports, like young Wolves, they grew up in Time to be nimble and strong enough for hunting down large Game. For it hath been observed, both among Antients and Moderns, that a true Critick hath one Quality in common with a Whore and an Alderman, never to change his Title or his Nature; that a Grey Critick hath been certainly a Green one, the Perfections and Acquirements of his Age being only the improved Talents of his Youth; like Hemp, which some Naturalists inform us is bad for Suffocations, although taken but in the Seed. I esteem the Invention. or at least the Refinement of Prologues to be owing to these younger Proficients, of whom Terence makes frequent and honourable Mention, under the Name of Maleveli.

* Near Helicon, and round the learned Hill, Grows Trees, whose Blossoms with their Odour kill.

Now, it is certain, the Institution of the true Criticks was of absolute Necessity to the Commonwealth of Learning. For all human Actions seem to be divided, like Themistocles and his Company; one Man can Fiddle, and another Man can make a small Town a great City; and he that cannot do either one or the other, deserves to be kicked out of the Creation. The avoiding of which Penalty has doubtless given the first Birth to the Nation of Criticks, and withal, an Occasion for their secret Detractors to report, that a true Critick is a Sort of Mechanick, set up with a Stock and Tools for his E 3

Trade, at as little Expence as a Taylor; and that there is much Analogy between the Utenfils and Abilities of both: That the Taylor's Hell is the Type of a Critick's Common-place. Book, and his Wit and Learning held forth by the Goose: That it requires at least as many of these to the making up of one Scholar, as of the others to the Composition of a Man: That the Valour of both is equal, and their Weapons near of a Size. Much may be faid in Answer to those invidious Reflections; and I can positively affirm the first to be a Falshood: For on the contrary, nothing is more certain, than that it requires greater Layings out, to be free of the Critick's Company, than of any other you can name. For, as to be a true Beggar, it will coft the richest Candidate every Groat he is worth; fo, before one can commence a true Critick, it will coft a Man all the good Qualities of his Mind; which, perhaps, for a less Purchase would be thought but an indifferent Bargain.

Having thus amply proved the Antiquity of Criticism, and described the primitive State of it; I shall now examine the present Condition of this Empire, and shew how well it agrees with its antient self. * A certain Author, whose Works have many Ages since been entirely lost, doth, in his fifth Book, and eighth Chapter, say of Criticks, that their Writings are the Mirrors of Learning. This I understand in literal Sense, and suppose our Author must mean, that whoever designs to be a perfect Writer, must inspect into the Books of Criticks, and correct his year Ohich is a Soir of Mecha.

Vide Bentley's Differtations, &c.

his Invention there, as in a Mirror. Now, whoever considers, that the Mirrors of the Antients were made of Brass and fine Mercurio. may presently apply the two principal Qualifieations of a true modern Critick, and confequently must needs conclude, that these have always been, and must be for ever the same. For, Brass is an Emblem of Duration, and when it is skilfully burnished, will cast Reflections from its own Superficies without any Affistance of Mercury from behind. All the other Talents of a Critick will not require a particular Mention, being included, or eafily reducible to thefe. However, I shall conclude with three Maxims. which may serve both as Characteristicks to diffinguilh a true modern Critick from a Pretender, and will also be of admirable Use to those worthy Spirits, who engage in so useful and honourable an Art.

The first is, that Criticism, contrary to all other Faculties of the Intellect, is ever held the truest and best, when it is the very first Result of the Critick's Mind: As Fowlers reckon the first Aim for the surest, and seldom fail of missing the Mark, if they stay for a second.

Secondly, the true Criticks are known by their Talent of swarming about the noblest Writers, to which they are carried meerly by Instinct, as a Rat to the best Cheese, or a Wasp to the fairest Fruit. So, when the King is on Horseback, he is sure to be the dirtiest Person of the Company; and they that make their Court best, are such as bespatter him most.

Transfer of the Land Land Land

Lastly, a true Critick, in the Perusal of a Book, is like a Dog at a Feast, whose Thoughts and Stomach are wholely set upon what Guests fling away, and consequently is apt to snarl most when there are the sewest Bones.

Thus much, I think, is sufficient to serve by way of Address to my Patrons, the true modern Criticks, and may very well atone for my past Silence, as well as that which I am like to observe for the suture. I hope, I have deserved so well of their whole Body, as to meet with generous and tender Usage from their Hands, supported by which Expectation, I go on boldly to pursue those Adventures already so happily begun.

The confidence of the Councillation of the Councill to which they are council and river to the child of a Restabliant of the child of a Restabliant of the child of a Restabliant of the child of the ch without the transfer of Tanas a great traffic brook, a tol year you to hair niedryd megad, our finiad who oil is E C T.

Month him moth

dering moch the Order they came out in ; leadenie, I unlak, Authors are not well agreed as

AUTO A COLUB

A TALE of a TUB.

to the source when this Treatile of mine that the

I HAVE now with much Pains and Study conducted the Reader to a Period, where he must expect to hear of great Revolutions. For no sooner had our learned Brother, so often mentioned, got a warm House of his own over his Head, than he began to look big, and take mightily upon him; insomuch that, unless the gentle Reader out of his great Candour will please a little to exalt his Idea, I am afraid he will henceforth hardly know the Hero of the Play, when he happens to meet him; his Part, his Dress, and his Mein being so much altered.

He told his Brothers, he would have them toknow that he was their Elder, and consequently his Father's sole Heir; nay, a while after he would not allow them to call him Brother, but Mr. PETER; and then he must be styled Father PETER; and sometimes, My Lord PETER. To support this Grandeur, which he soon began to consider could not be maintained without a better Fande, than what he was borne to; after much Thought, he cast about at last to turn Projector and Virtuoso, wherein he so well succeeded, that many famous Discoveries, Projects and Machines, which bear great Vogue and Practice at present in the World, are owing entirely to Lord PETER's Invention, I will de-

4 3

That is Furgatory.

duce the best Account 1 have been able to collect of the chief amongst them, without considering much the Order they came out in; because, I think, Authors are not well agreed as to that Point.

I hope, when this Treatise of mine shall be translated into foreign Languages (as I may without Vanity affirm, that the Labour of collecting, the Faithfulnels in recounting, and the great Usefulness of the Matter to the Public, will amply deserve that Justice) that the worthy Members of the feveral Academies Abroad, efpecially those of France and Italy, will favourably accept these humble Offers for the Advancement of universal Knowledge. I do also advertife the most Reverend Fathers, the Eastern Milsionaries, that I have, purely for their Sakes, made Use of such Words and Phrases, as will best admit an easy Turn into any of the Oriental Languages, especially the Chinese. And so I proceed with great Content of Mind, upon reflecting, how much Emolument this whole Globe of Earth is like to reap by my La-WER: and then he must be flyli

The first Undertaking of Lord Peter was to purchase a large * Continent, lately said to have been discovered in Terra australis incognita. This Tract of Land he bought at a very great Pennyworth from the Discoverers themselves, (although some pretended to doubt whether they had ever been there) and then retailed it into several Gantons to certain Dealers, who carried over Colonies, but were all shipwrecked in the Voyage

* That is Purgatory.

Voyage. Upon which Lord Peter fold the same Continent to other Customers again, and again, and again, with the same Success.

The second Project I shall mention, was his fovereign Remedy for the Worms, especially those in the Spleen. † The Patient was to eat nothing after Supper for three Nights; as soon as he went to Bed, he was carefully to lie on one Side, and when he grew weary, to turn upon the other; he must also duly confine his two Eyes to the same Object; and by no Means break Wind at both Ends together, without manifest Occasion. These Prescriptions diligently observed, the Worms would void insensibly by Perspiration, ascending through the Brain.

A third Invention was the erecting of a *Whilpering-Office for the publick Good and Eafe of all such as are hypochondriacal, or troubled with the Cholick; as Midwives, small Politicians,. Friends fallen out, repeating Poets, Lovers happy or in Despair, Bawds, Privy counsellors, Pages, Penance and Absolution are played upon under the Notion of a fovereign Remedy for the Worms, especially in the Spleen, which by observing Peter's Prescription would void insensibly by Perspiration, ascending through the Brain, &c. W. Wotton.

the Brain, &c. W. Wotton.

† Here the Author ridicules the Penances of the Church of Rome, which may be as easy to the Sinner as he pleases, provided he will pay for them accord-

1 By his Whispering Office for the Relief of Eves-Droppers, Phylicians, Bawds, and Privy-Counsellors, he ridicules auricular Confession; and the Priest who takes it is described by the Ass Head. W. Wotton.

W. Wotton.

as Infects in Amber.

Pages. Parafites and Buffoons: In fhort, of all fuch as are in Danger of burfting with too much Wind. An As's Head was placed so conveniently, that the Party affected might eafily with his Mouth accost either of the Animal's Ears; to which he was to apply close for a certain Space, and by a fugitive Faculty, peculiar to the Ears of that Animal, receive immediate Benefit either by Eructation, or Expiration, or Evomitation were no nedw bag .ebil and a des other the modelfo daly confine to Another very beneficial Project of Lord Peter's was an * Office of Insurance for Tobacco. pipes, Martyrs of the modern Zeal; Volumes of Poetry, Shadows, - and Rivers: That thefe, nor any of thefe, shall receive Damage by Fire. From whence our Friendly Societies may plainly find themselves to be only Transcribers from this Original; although one and the other have been of great Benefit to the Undertakers, as well as of equal to the Public.

Lord Peter was also held the original Author of + Puppets and Raree-Shows; the great Usefulness whereof being so generally known, I shall not enlarge farther upon this Particular.

But another Discovery, for which he was much renowned, was his famous universal 1 Pickle. For having remarked how your com-

This I take to be the Office of Indulgences, the gross Abuses whereof first gave Occasion for the Reformation.

† I believe are the Monkeries and ridiculous Proces-fions, &c. among the Papifts.

† Holy Water, he calls an universal Pickle, to pre-ferve Houses, Gardens, Towns, Men, Women, Children and Cattle, wherein he could preserve them as found as Insects in Amber. W. Wotton.

mon * Pickle, in Use among Housewives, was of no farther Benefit than to preferve dead Flesh, and certain Kinds of Vegetables; Peter, with great Coft as well as Art, had contrived a Pickle proper for Houses, Gardens, Towns, Men, Women, Children, and Cattle; wherein he could preserve them as sound as Insects in Amber. Now, this Pickle to the Tafte, the Smell, and the Sight, appeared exactly the fame, with what is in common Service for Beef, and Butter, and Herrings, and hath been often that way applied with great Success, but for its many sovereign Virtues was a quite different Thing, For Peter would put in a certain Quantity of his + Powder Pimperlimpimp, after which it never failed of Success. The Operation was performed by t Spargefaction in a proper Time of the Moon! The Patient who was to be pickled. if it were a House, would infallibly be preserved from all Spiders, Rats and Weazels; if the Party affected were a Dog, he should be exempt from Mange, and Madness, and Hunger. It also infallibly took away all Scabs and Lice. and scalled Heads from Children, never hindering the Patient from any Duty, either of Bed or Board and Their Detra Briston to be a Feat of Art; to be nothing to terrible

But appeared; proceeding only from their ule

This is easily understood to be Holy Water. composed of the same Ingredients with many other Pickles.

1 Sprinkling.

011100

.

y

.

ır

e

10

-

S

at

e

y

15

e

1

† And because Holy Water differs only in Consecration from common Water, therefore he tells us, that his Pickle by the Powder of Pimperlimpimp receives new Virtues, although it differs not in Sight nor Smell from the common Pickles, which preserve Beef, and Butter, and Herrings. W. Wotton.

mon & Relle, in Us among Honsewires, was of But of all Peter's Racities, he most valued a certain Set of * Bulls, whose Race was by great Fortune preserved in a lineal Descent from those that guarded the Golden Fleece. Although fome who pretended to observe them curiously, doubted the Breed had not been kept entirely chafte; because they had degenerated from their Ancestors in some Qualities, and had acquired others very extraordinary, but a Foreign Mixture. The Bulls of Colchis are recorded to have Brazen Feet; but whether it happened by ill Pasture and Running, by an Allay from the Intervention of other Parents, from stolen Intrigues; whether a Weakness in their Progenitors had impaired the feminal Virtue, or by a Decline necessary through a long Course of Time, the Originals of Nature being depraved in these latter sinful Ages of the World; whatever was the Caufe, it is certain that Lord Peter's Bulls were extremely vitiated by the Rust of Time in the Metal of their Feet, which was now funk into common Lead: However, the terrible Roaring, peculiar to their Lineage was preferred; as likewife that Eaculty of breathing out Fire from their Noftrils; which notwithstanding many of their Detractors took to be a Feat of Art; to be nothing fo terrible as it appeared; proceeding only from their usual Courfe

The Papal Bulls are ridiculed by Name, so that here we are at no Loss for the Author's Meaning. W. Wotton.

underflood to be Holy Wate

Ibid. Here the Author has kept the Name, and means the Pape's Balls, or rather his Fulminations and Excommunications of heretical Princes, all figned with Lead and the Seal of the Fisherman, and therefore faid to have Leaden Feet and Fishes Tails.

Course of Diet, which was of * Squibs and Crackers. However, they had two peculiar Marks, which extremely distinguished them from the Bulls of Jason, and which I have not met together in the Description of any other Monster, besides that in Horace:

Varias inducere plumas;

For these had Fishes Tails, yet upon Occasion could out-fly any Bird in the Air. Peter put these Bulls upon several Employs. Sometimes he would fet them a roaring to fright * naughty Boys, and make them quiet. Sometimes he would fend them out upon Errands of great Importance; where it is wonderful to recount, and perhaps the cautious Reader may think much to believe it; an Appetitus sensibilis deriving itself through the whole Family from their noble Ancestors, Guardians of the Golden Fleece, they continued to extremely fond of Gold, that if Peter fent them Abroad, although it were only on a Compliment, they would roar, and fpit, and belch, and pifs, and fart, and faivel out Fire, and keep a perpetual Coil, until you flung them a Bit of Gold; but then pulveris exigui jactu, they would grow calm and quiet as Lambs. In short, whether by fecret Connivance, or Encourage. ment from their Master, or out of their own liquorish

These are the Fulminations of the Pope, threatening Hell and Damnation to those Princes who offend him.

† That is, Kings who incurred his Displeasure.

liquorish Affection to Gold, or both; it is certain they were no better than a Sort of sturdy, swaggering Beggars; and, where they could not prevail to get an Alms, would make Women miscarry, and Children fall into Fits, who to this very Day usually call Sprights and Hobgoblins by the Name of Bull-Beggars. They grew at last so very troublesome to the Neighbourhood, that some Gentlemen of the North-west got a Parcel of right English Bull-Dogs, and baited them so terribly, that they felt it ever after.

I must needs mention one more of Lord Peter's Projects, which was very extraordinary, and discovered him to be Master of a high Reach, and profound Invention. Whenever it happened that any Rogue in Newgate was condemned to be hanged, Peter would offer him a Pardon for a certain Sum of Money, which when the poor Caitiff had made all Shifts to scrape up, and send, his Lordship would return a * Piece of Paper in this Form.

To all Mayors, Sheriffs, Jailors, Conftables, Bailiffs, Hangmen, &c.
Whereas we are informed, that A. B. remains in the Hands of you, or some of you, under the Sentence of Death. We will and command you, upon Sight hereof, to let the said Prisoner depart to his own Habitation, whether he stands condemned for Murder, Sodomy, Rape,

This is a Copy of a general Pardon, figned fer-

Ibid. Absolution in Articulo Mortis, and the Tax Carmera Apostolica, are jested upon in Emperor Peter's Letter, W. Wotton,

"Rape, Sacrilege, Incest, Treason, Blasphemy,
"Ec. for which this shall be your sufficient
"Warrant: And if you fail hereof, G—"d—mn you and yours to all Eternity. And "so we bid you heartily farewel.

Your most humble

Man's Man,

Emperor PETER.

The Wretches trusting to this, lost their Lives and Money too.

I desire of those, whom the Learned among Posterity will appoint for Commentators upon this elaborate Treatise, that they will proceed with great Caution upon certain dark Points, wherein all, who are not verè adepti, may be in Danger to form rash and hasty Conclusions, especially, in some mysterious Paragraphs, where certain Arcana are joined for Brevity sake, which in the Operation must be divided. And I am certain, that suture Sons of Art will return large Thanks to my Memory for so grateful, so useful an Innuendo.

It will be no difficult Matter to persuade the Reader, that so many worthy Discoveries met with great Success in the World; although I may justly assure him, that I have related much the smallest Number; my Design having been only to single out such as will be of most Benefit for public Imitation, or which best served to give some Idea of the Reach and Wit of the Inventor. And therefore it need not be wondered, dered, if by this Time Lord Peter was become exceeding rich : But alas ! he had kept his Brain fo long and violently upon the Rack, that at last it shook itself, and began to turn round for a little Eafe. In short, what with Pride, Projects. and Knavery, poor Peter was grown distracted, and conceived the strangest Imaginations in the World. In the Height of his Fits, as it is usual with those who run mad out of Pride, he would call himself * God Almighty, and sometimes Mo. narch of the Universe. I have seen him (says my Author) take three old + high-crowned Hats, and clap them all on his Head, three Story high, with a huge Bunch of t Keys at his Girdle, and an Angling-Rod in his Hand. In which Guife, whoever went to take him by the Hand in the Way of Salutation, Peter with much Grace, like a well educated Spaniel, would prefent them with his & Foot; and if they refused his Civility, then be would raise it as high as their Chops, and give them a damned Kick on the Mouth, which hath ever fince been called a Salate. Whoever walked by without paying him their Compliments, having a wonderful strong Breath, he would blow their Hats off into the Dirt. Thanks to my Idemory for to grateful, fo uleful an Isuvendo.

+ The triple Crown.

* The Pope is not only allowed to be the Vicar of Christ, but by feveral Divines is called God upon Earth, and other blafphenious Titles are given him! 1999

The Keys of the Church. The Church is here taken for the Gate of Heaven; for the Keys of Heaven are affumed by the Pope, in Consequence of what our Lord faid to Peter! " I will give unto thee the &quot;Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven." I side of Ibid. The Pope's universal Monarchy, and his triple Crown, and Fisher's Ring. W. Wotton.

§ Neither does his arrogant Way of requiring Men to kils his Slipper escape Reflection. W. Wotton.

C

n

ft

le

5, le

al

ld

0-ıy

s,

1, rd ne

e, m

15, ħ,

te.

cie

h, rt.

an

U

of rtb,

ere ea-

hat

the iple

den

Mean Time, his Affairs at Home went upfide down, and his two Brothers had a wretched Time: where his first * Boutade was to kick both their + Wives one Morning out of Doors, and his own too; and in their Stead, gave Orders to pick up the first three Strollers that could be met with in the Streets. A while after he nailed up the Cellar-Door, and would not allow his Brothers a & Drop of Drink to their Victuals. Dining one Day at an Alderman's in the City, Peter observed him expatiating, after the Manner of his Brethren, in the Praises of his Sirloin of Beef. " Beef, faid the fage Magif-" trate, is the King of Meat; Beef compre-" hends in it the Quintessence of Partridge, " and Quail, and Venison, and Pheasant, and " Plum-Pludding and Custard." When Peter came Home, he would needs take the Fancy of cooking up this Doctrine into Ule, and apply the Precept, in Default of a Sirloin, to his brown " Bread, faid be, dear Brothers, is the " Staff of Life; in which Bread is contained, " inclusive, the Quintessence of Beef, Mutton; " Veal, Venison, Partridge, Plum-Pudding, and " Custard: And to render all compleat, there is " intermingled a due Quantity of Water, whose " Crudities are also corrected by Yeast or Barm, " through which Means it becomes a wholefome " fermented Liquor, diffused through the Mass overeque I andivision and or beload b 65 of * This Word properly fignifies a fudden Jerk, or Lash of an Horse, when you do not expect it.

† The Gelibacy of the Romift Clergy is struck at in Peter's beating his own and Brother's Wives out of Doors. W. Wotton.

I The Pope's refusing the Cup to the Laity, perfuading them that the Blood is contained in the Bread, and that the Bread is the real and intire Body of Christ.

4

61

6

"How, faid Peter, appearing in great Surprize, I "do not comprehend this at all."——Upon which the younger Brother interpoling to let the Buliness aright; "My Lord, faid he, my Bro"ther I suppose is hungry, and longs for the Mutton your Lordship hath promised us to Dinner." "Pray, faid Peter, take me along with you; either you are both mad, or disposed to be merrier than I approve of;

" if you there do not like your Piece, I will carve

Many Harris when you do not exped * Transubstantiation. Peter turns his Bread into Mutton, and, according to the Popish Doctrine of Concomitants, his Wine too, which in his Way he calls palming bis damned Crusts upon the Brothers for Mutton. W. Wotton.

ıt

ı, h

h ic 's

·I

oc

re

ft

10 ch

le I

I

he

ohe

to ne d,

f;

ve

ut-

co-

lm-

W.

" carve you another; although I should take " that to be the choice Bit of the whole Shoul-" der." " What then, my Lord, replied the " first, it seems this is a Shoulder of Mutton " all this while. " Pray, Sir, Says Peter, eat " your Victuals, and leave off your Imper-" tinence, if you please, for I am not disposed to relish it at present:" But the other could not forbear being over-provoked at the affected Seriousness of Peter's Countenance. " By G-" my Lord, faid he, I can only fay, that to my " Eyes, and Fingers, and Teeth, and Nofe, " it feems to be nothing but a Crust of Bread." Upon which the second put in his Word: " I " never faw a Piece of Mutton in my Life fo " nearly resembling a Slice from a Twelve-" penny Loaf." " Look ye, Gentlemen, " cries Peter in a Rage, to convince you what a " Couple of blind, positive, ignorant, wilful " Puppies you are, I will use but this plain Ar-" ment; by G-, it is true, good, natural Mut-" ton as any in Leaden-ball Market; and G-" confound you both eternally, if you offer to " believe otherwife." Such a thundering Proof as this left no further Room for Objection; the two Unbelievers began to gather and pocket up their Mistake as hastily as they could. "Why "truly, said the first, upon more mature Consideration"—"Ay, says the other interrupting " him, now I have thought better on the Thing, " your Lordship seems to have a great deal of. "Reason." Very well, faid Peter; here, " Boy, fill me a Beer-Glass of Claret; here's " to you both with all my Heart." The two Brethren much delighted to fee him fo readily appealed, returned their most humble Thanks, and faid, they would be glad to pledge his s Reptere is meant the Reformation.

" That you shall, faid Peter; I am Lordship. " not a Person to refuse you any Thing that is " reasonable; Wine, moderately taken, is a " Cordial; here is a Glass a-piece for you; " it is true natural Juice from the Grape, none of your damned Vintner's Brewings." Having spoke thus, he presented to each of them another large dry Crust, bidding them drink it off. and not be bashful, for it would do them no The two Brothers, after having performed the usual Office in such delicate Conjunctures, of staring a sufficient Period at Lord Peter and each other, and finding how Matters were likely to go, refolved not to enter on a new Dispute, but let him carry the Point as he pleased; for he was now got into one of his mad Fits, and to argue or expostulate further would only ferve to render him a hundred Times more untractable.

I have chosen to relate this worthy Matter in all its Circumstances, because it gave a principal Occasion to that great and famous * Rupture, which happened about the same Time among these Brethren, and was never afterward made up. But of that I shall treat at large in another Section.

However, it is certain, that Lord Peter even in his lucid Intervals was very lewelly given in his common Conversation, extreme wilful and positive, and would at any Time rather argue to the Death, than allow himself once to be in an Error. Besides he had an abominable Faculty of telling huge palpable Lyes upon all Occasions; and

tl

th

By this Rupture is meant the Reformation.

end not only swearing to the Truth, but cursing the whole Company to Hell, if they pretended to make the least Scruple of believing him. One Time he swore he had a * Cow at Home, which gave as much Milk at a Meal, as would fill three thousand Churches; and what was yet more extraordinary, would never turn four. Another Time he was telling of an old + Signpost, that belonged to his Father, with Nails and Timber enough in it to build fixteen large Men of War. Talking one Day of Chinese Waggons, which were made so light as to fail over Mountains: " Z-ds, faid Peter, where's the "Wonder of that? by G-, I saw a t large " House of Lime and Stone travel over Sea and " Land, granting that it flopped fometimes to " bait, above two thousand German Leagues." And that which was the good of it, he would swear desperately all the while, that he never told a Lye in his Life; and at every Word;

The ridiculous multiplying of the Virgin Mary's Milk amongst the Papists, under the Allegory of a Cow, which gave as much Milk at a Meal, as would fill three thousand Churches. W. Wotton.

† By this Sign-post is meant the Gross of our Blessed Saviour; and, if all the Wood, that is shewn for Parts of it, was collected, the Quantity would suf-heiently justify this Sarcasm.

e

g

-

0

-

-

d

3

2

e

is

7:

25 n al

e

1:

n

15

-

0

B

y

The Chapel of Loretto. He falls here only upon the ridiculous Inventions of Popery: The Church of Rome intended by these Things to gull filly, superstitious People, and rook them of their Money; the World had been too long in Slavery, our Ancestors gloriously redeemed us from that Yoke. The Church of Rome therefore ought to be exposed, and he deserves wall of Mankind that does expose it. W. Wotton.

Ibid. The Chapel of Loretto, which travelled from the Holy Land to Italy 1 to asservand out bowells. I

B

h

V

fa

th

C

fr hi

ar

by

OL

ui

fol

the

be

Su

the

" by G—, Gentlemen, I tell you nothing but the Truth; and the D—I broil them eternally, that will not believe me."

In short, Peter grew so scandalous, that all the Neighbourhood began in plain Words to fay, he was no better than a Knave. And his two Brothers, long weary of his ill Usage, resolved at last to leave him; but first, they humbly defired a Copy of their Father's Will, which had now lain by neglected Time out of Mind. In. stead of granting this Request, he called them damned Sons of Whores, Rogues, Traitors, and the rest of the vile Names he could muster up. How. ever, while he was Abroad one Day upon his Projects, the two Youngsters watched their Opportunity, made a Shift to come at the * Will, and took a Copia vera, by which they presently faw how grosly they had been abused; their Father having left them equal Heirs; and frielly commanded, that whatever they got should lie in common among them all. Pursuant to which, their next Enterprize was to break open the Cellar-Door, and get a little good + Drink to spirit and comfort their Hearts. In copying the Will they had met another Precept against Whoring, Divorce, and separate Maintenance; upon which their next † Work was to discard their Concubines, and fend for their Wives. Whilst all this was in Agitation, there enters a Solicitor from Newgate, defiring Lord Peter would please to procure a Parden for a Thief that Wheen too lone in Slavery, our Ancesters gioriculty talesment us frequencing Yoles. The Church of Rome

* Translated the Scriptures into the vulgar Tongues.

† Administred the Cup to the Laity at the Communion.

<sup>1</sup> Allowed the Marriages of Priefts. 17 DED I violes ut

y,

all

y, vo ed

lead n-

m

he

W.

his lp.

ill,

a.

ly

Tie

ch,

the

to

the inst

ce;

card

ves.

rs a eter

that

Was

gues. 1mu-

oli să

was to be hanged To-morrow. But the two Brothers told him, he was a Coxcomb to feek Pardons from a Fellow, who deserved to be hanged much better than his Client; and discovered all the Method of that Imposture, in the fame Form I delivered it a while ago, advising the Solicitor to put his Friend upon obtaining a * Pardon from the King. In the Midst of all this Clutter and Revolution, in comes Peter with a File of † Dragoons at his Heels, and gathering from all Hands what was in the Wind, he and his Gang, after feveral Millions of Scurrilities and Curses, not very important here to repeat, by main Force, very fairly kicks them both out of Doors, and would never let them come under his Roof from that Day to this.

* Directed Penitents not to trust to Pardons and Abfolutions procured for Money, but sent them to implore the Mercy of God, from whence alone Remission is to be obtained.

† By Peter's Dragoons is meant the civil Power, which those Princes, who were bigotted to the Romish Superstition, employed against the Reformers.

† The Pope shuts all who dissent from him, out of the Church.

of the of the action preferre it no longer. Upon which lls du til or sandy. Hassyn's an exist Contedure, and in due grediens in one enother, live to affirm, that believe care Neture I have found a very from that I carrendy to flow a compact thereof to all cerious Guelless and

Vol. XX. F Today S E C T.

Ma

fair fair ma

> my kir

> > ep

an E lit

A

th

b

A Digression in the modern Kind.

WE, whom the Word is pleased to honour with the Title of modern Authors, should never have been able to compass our great Design of an everlasting Remembrance, and neverdying Fame, if our Endeavours had not been so highly serviceable to the general Good of Mankind. This, O Universe, is the adventurous Attempt of me thy Secretary;

Suadet & inducit noctes vigilare serenas.

To this End I have some Time since, with a World of Pains and Art, diffected the Carcals of human Nature, and read many useful Lectures upon the feveral Parts both containing and contained; until at last it smelt so strong, I could preserve it no longer. Upon which I have been at a great Expence to fit up all the Bones with exact Contecture, and in due Symmetry; so that I am ready to fnew a complete Anatomy thereof to all curious Gentlemen and others. But not to digress farther in the midst of a Digression, as I have known some Authors inclose Digressions in one another, like a Nest of Boxes; I do affirm, that having carefully cut up human Nature, I have found a very strange, new, and important Discovery; that the public Good of Mankind Mankind is performed by two Ways, Instruction and Diversion. And I have farther proved in my faid several Readings (which perhaps the World may one Day see, if I can prevail on any Friend to steal a Copy, or on any certain Gentleman of my Admirers to be very importunate) that as Mankind is now disposed, he receives much greater Advantage by being diverted than instructed; his epidemical Diseases being Fastidiosity, Amorphy, and Oscitation; whereas in the present universal Empire of Wit and Learning, there feems but little Matter left for Instruction. However, in Compliance with a Lesson of great Age and Authority, I have attempted carrying the Point in all its Heights; and accordingly throughout this divine Treatife have skilfully kneaded up both together with a Layer of Utile, and a Layer of Dulce.

ur

uld

le-

er-

To

in-

11-1 8

ass

res

inuld

en

ith

fo

ny

3ut

ef-Oi-; I

nan

ind

of

ind

When I consider how exceedingly our illustrious Moderns have eclipsed the weak glimmering Lights of the Antients, and turned them out of the Road of all fashionable Commerce, to a Degree, that our choice Town * Wits of most refined Accomplishments are in grave Dispute, whether there have been ever any Antients or no: In which Point we are like to receive wonderful Satisfaction from the most useful Labours and Lucubrations of that worthy Modern, Dr. Bentley: I say, when I consider all this, I cannot but bewail, that no famous Modern hath ever * The learned Person here meant by our Author, hath been endeavouring to annihilate so many antient Writers, that, until he is pleased to stop his Hand, it will be dangerous to affirm, whether there have been any Antients in the World.

46

46

46

"

46

"

66

th

17 b

2

A

n

a

E

t

f

(

F

yet attempted an universal System, in a small portable Volume, of all Things that are to be known, or believed, or imagined, or practised in Life. I am however forced to acknowledge that such an Enterprize was thought on some Time ago by a great Philosopher of * O. Brazile. The Method he proposed, was, by a certain curious Receipt, a Nostrum, which after his untimely Death I found among his Papers; and do here, out of my great Affection to the modern Learned, present them with it, not doubting it may one Day encourage some worthy Undertaker.

" You take fair correct Copies, well bound " in Galf-skin, and lettered at the Back, of all " modern Bodies of Arts and Sciences whatfo-" ever, and in what Language you please. "These you distil in balneo Maria, infusing " Quintessence of Poppy, Q. S. together with three Pints of Lethe, to be had from the Apothe-" caries. You cleanse away carefully the Sordes and Caput Mortuum, letting all that is volatile " evaporate. You preserve only the first Running, which is again to be distilled seventeen Times, until what remains will amount to " about two Drams. This you keep in a Glals " Vial bermetically sealed for one and twenty "Days. Then you begin your Catholic Trea-" tise, taking every Morning fasting, first shaking " the Vial, three Drops of this Elixir, Inuffing

West of the states

* This is an imaginary Island, of Kin to that which is called the Painters Wives Island, placed in some unknown Part of the Ocean, merely at the Fancy of the Map-maker.

" it strongly up your Nose. It will dilate itself about the Brain (where there is any) in four-

" teen Minutes, and you immediately perceive

" in your Head an infinite Number of Abstracts,

" Summaries, Compendiums, Extracts, Collections, "Medulla's, Excerpta quedam's, Florilegia's, and

" the like, all disposed into great Order, and

" reducible upon Paper."

Ш

90

ed

10

le.

in n-

0-g

.

br

all

0.

e.

ng

ee

edes ile

n-

en

to ity

ng

ng it

ich

imthe

Sign of the second

TES.

I must needs own, it was by the Assistance of this Arcanum, that I, who although otherwise impar, have adventured upon fo daring an Attempt, never atchieved or undertaken before, but by a certain Author called Homer; in whom although otherwise a Person not without some Abilities, and for an Antient, of a tolerable Genius, I have discovered many gross Errors, which are not to be forgiven his very Ashes, if by chance any of them are left. For whereas we are affured he designed his Work for a * compleat Body of all Knowledge, human, divine, political, and mechanic; it is manifest, he hathwholely neglected fome, and been very imperfect in the rest. For, first of all, as eminent a Cabalist as his Disciples would represent him, his Account of the Opus magnum is extremely poor and deficient; he seems to have read but very superficially either Sendivogus, Behmen, or + Anthropo-Sophia Theomogica. He is also quite mistaken about

* Homerus omnes res humanus Poematis complexus

est. Xenoph. in conviv.

† A Treatise written about fifty Years ago, by a Welsh Gentleman of Cambridge, his Name, as I remember, was Vaughan, as appears by the Answer to it, written by the learned Dr. Henry Moor; it is a Piece of the most unintelligible Fustian, that perhaps was ever published in any Language.

ob

for $\mathbf{F}_{\mathbf{c}}$ rec

Aş

th

A

hi po

al iľ

n

S

1

the Sphara Pyroplastica, a Neglect not to be atoned for; and, if the Reader will admit fo fevere a Censure, Vix crederem Autorem hunc unquam audiviffe ignis vocem. His Failings are not less prominent in Several Parts of the Mechanicks. For. having read his Writings with the utmost Appli. cation usual among modern Wits, I could never yet discover the least Direction about the Structure of that useful Instrument, a Save-all. For want of which, if the Moderns had not lent their Assistance, we might yet have wandered in the Dark. But I have still behind a Fault far more notorious to tax the Author with: I mean * his gross Ignorance in the common Laws of this Realm, and in the Doctrine as well as Discipline of the Church of England. A Defect indeed for which both he and all the Antients stand most justly censured by my worthy and ingenious Friend, Mr. Wotton, Bachelor of Divinity, in his incomparable Treatife of antient and modern Learning; a Book never to be sufficiently valued, whether we consider the happy Turns and Flowings of the Author's Wit, the great Usefulness of his sublime Discoveries upon the Subject of Flies and Spittle, or the laborious Eloquence of his Style. And I cannot forbear doing that Author the Justice of my public Acknowledgments, for the great Helps and Liftings I had out of his incomparable Piece, while I was penning this Treatife.

But besides these Omissions in Homer already mentioned, the curious Reader will also observe * Mr. Wotton (to whom our Author never gives any Quarter) in his Comparison of antient and modern Learning, numbers Divinity, Law, &c. among those Points of Knowledge wherein we excel the Antients.

red

a diro-

or.

於 rer

IC-

or nt

in

ar

n,

his ne

ed

nd

us

y,

2.

ns

at 10

0.

ar

e-

7-

le

fo

16

H

ıy

m

observe several Defects in that Author's Writings, for which he is not altogether fo accountable. For whereas every Branch of Knowledge hath received fuch wonderful Acquirements fince his Age, especially within these last three Years, or thereabouts; it is almost impossible, he could be so very perfect in modern Discoveries, as his Advocates pretend. We freely acknowledge: him to be the Inventor of the Compass, of Gunpowder, and the Circulation of the Blood: But I challenge any of his Admirers to shew me, in all his Writings, a compleat Account of the Spleen; doth he not also leave us wholely to seek in the Art of Political Wagering? What can be more defective and unfatisfactory than his long Differtation upon Tea? And as to his Method of Salivation without Mercury, so much celebrated of late, it is, to my own Knowledge and Experience, a Thing very little to be relied on.

It was to supply such momentous Defects, that I have been prevailed on, after long Solicitation, to take Pen in Hand; and I dare venture to promise, the judicious Reader shall find nothing neglected here, that can be of Use upon any Emergency of Life. I am confident to have included and exhausted all, that human Imagination can rife or fall to. Particularly, I recommend to the Perusal of the learned, certain Discoveries that are wholely untouched by others; whereof I shall only mention, among a great many more, " My new Help for Smatterers, " or the Art of being deep-learned and shallow-"read.—A curious Invention about Moule-" traps.—An universal Rule of Reason, or every "Man his own Carver;" together with a molt useful Engine for catching of Owls. All which F 4 the judicious Reader will find largely treated on in the feveral Parts of this Discourse.

I hold myself obliged to give as much Light as is possible into the Beauties and Excellencies of what I am writing, because it is become the Fashion and Humour most applauded among the first Authors of this polite and learned Age. when they would correct the ill Nature of critical, or inform the Ignorance of courteous Readers. Besides, there have been several famous Pieces lately published, both in Verse and Prose; wherein, if the Writers had not been pleased, out of their great Humanity and Affection to the Public, to give us a nice Detail of the fublime, and the admirable they contain, it is a thousand to one, whether we should ever have discovered one Grain of either. For my own Particular, I cannot deny, that whatever I have faid upon this Occasion, had been more proper in a Preface, and more agreeable to the Mode, which usually directs it thither. But I here think fit to lay hold on that great and honourable Privilege, that of being the last Writer; I claim an absolute Authority in Right, as the freshest Modern, which gives me a despotic Power over all Authors before me. In the Strength of which Title, I do utterly disapprove and declare against that pernicious Custom, of making the Preface a Bill of Fare to the Book. For I have always looked upon it as a high Point of Indifcretion in Monster-mongers, and other Retailers of Arange Sights, to hang out a fair large Picture over the Door, drawn after the Life, with a most eloquent Description underneath: This hath saved me many a Three-pence; for my Curiofity was fully.

ht

es

1e

16

e, ıl,

S.

es

e-

of

c,

10

e,

1C

1.

S

e, d

of 1-

h

rs

I

at

a :

78

n

25 e

It'

e

13

y.

fully fatisfied, and I never offered to go in, although often invited by the urging and attending Orator with his last moving and standing Piece of Rhetorick; Sir, upon my Word, we are just going to begin. Such is exactly the Fate at this Time of Prefaces, Epifles, Advertisements, Introductions, Prolegomena's, Apparatus's, To the Readers. This Expedient was admirable at first; our great Dryden has long carried it as far as it would go; and with incredible Success. He hath often faid to me in Confidence, that the World would never have suspected him to be so great a Poet, if he had not affured them so frequently in his Prefaces, that it was impossible they could either: doubt or forget it. Perhaps it may be fo; however, I much fear, his Instructions have edified out of their Place, and taught Men to grow wifer in certain Points, where he never intended they should; for, it is lamentable to behold, with what a lazy Scorn many of the yawning Readers of our Age do now a-days twirl over forty or fifty Pages of Preface and Dedication (which is the usual modern Stint) as if it were so Although it must be allowed on: much Latin. the other Hand, that a very confiderable Number is known to proceed Criticks and Wits by reading nothing else. Into which two Factions, I think, all present Readers may justly be divided. Now for myself, I profess to be of the former Sort; and therefore having the modern Inclination to expatiate upon the Beauty of my own Productions, and display the bright Parts of my Discourse, I thought best to do it in the Body of the Work, where, as it now lies, it makes a very considerable Addition to the Bulk of the Volume; " A Circumstance by no Means to be " neglected by a skilful Writer."

F 5

Having

Having thus paid my due Defermed and Acknowledgment to an establishment duttom of our newest Authors, by a long Digression unsought for, and an universal Censure unprovoked; by forcing into the Light with much Pains and Dextenty my own Excellencies and other Men's Defaults, with great Justice to myself and Candour to them, I now happily resume my Subject, to the infinite Satisfaction both of the Reader and the Author.

helidade Caralalequa o Legendale in his Vicface, that it was proposed they could either doubt or parette. I whops to may be for however, I show to an antimologist bave edified out of their (Vecc. and trustee then to grow whether courses Pours, was a convenience of any include term is a temperature to be old-

Acaders of our hoe dames added twist cour

(which is abendud water Stind as if in were for much Latin. Allowed on the other Latin. Allowed on the other lating, that a very confidenable liver beautiful and a very confidenable liver and the confidenable lin all increding havings the site of any one production tions, and difficult the builts Pairs of my Discounties. I thought both to do with the Bound the Walls, while e, as it may elice in a land one way comiderable duthing a the are in the crais Volume:

Standard tottal a ve kerdslysa"!

neding the pride that we have the pride and pride a second pride to the pride and the second pride and the second

.IV .T D 3 Brence

1600 T

ATALE of a TUB.

TE left Lord Peter in open Rupture with his two Brethren; both for ever difcarded from his House, and resigned to the wide World, with little or nothing to trust to; which are Circumstances that render them proper Objects for the Charity of a Writer's Pen to work on; Scenes of Misery ever affording the fairest Harvest for great Adventurers. And in this the World may perceive the Difference between the Integrity of a generous Author, and that of a common Friend. The latter is observed to adhere close in Prosperity, but on the Decline of Fortune to drop suddenly off. Whereas, the generous Author, just on the contrary, finds his Hero. on the Dunghill, from thence by gradual Steps. raiseth him to a Throne, and then immediately withdraws, expecting not fo much as Thanks. for his Pains: In Imitation of which Example, I have placed Lord Peter in a noble House, given him a Title to wear, and Money to spend. There I shall leave him for some Time; returning where common Charity directs me, to the Affistance of his two Brothers, at their lowest Ebb. However, I shall by no Means forget my Character of an Historian, to follow the Truth, Step by Step, whatever happens, or where-ever. it may lead me.

The two Exiles, fo nearly united in Fortune and Interest, took a Lodging together; where, at their first Leisure, they began to reflect on the numberless Misfortunes and Vexations of their Life past, and could not tell, on the sudden, to what Failure in their Conduct they ought to impute them; when, after some Recollection, they called to Mind the Copy of their Father's Will, which they had fo happily recovered. was immediately produced, and a firm Refolution taken between them to alter whatever was already amis, and reduce all their future Meafures to the strictest Obedience prescribed there. in. The main Body of the Will (as the Reader cannot easily have forgot) consisted in certain admirable Rules about the wearing of their Coats; in the Perulal whereof, the two Brothers at every Period duly comparing the Doctrine with the Practice, there was never feen a wider Difference between two Things; horrible, downright Transgressions of every Point. Upon which they both resolved, without further Delay, to fall immediately upon reducing the whole exactly after their Father's Model.

But, here it is good to stop the hasty Reader, ever impatient to see the End of an Adventure, before we Writers can duly prepare him for it. I am to record, that these two Brothers began to be distinguished at this Time by certain Names. One of them desired to be called * MARTIN, and the other took the Appellation of † JACK. These two had lived in much Friendship and Agreement under the Tyranny of their Brother Peter,

Martin Luther.

Peter, as it is the Talent of Fellow-Sufferers to do; Men in Misfortune being like Men in the Dark, to whom all Colours are the same: But when they came forward into the World, and began to display themselves to each other, and to the Light, their Complexions appeared extremely different; which the present Posture of their Affairs gave them sudden Opportunity to discover.

is n

15

1-21

1-

in ir

rs

ne,

er

n-

on

)e-,

he

11

1111

er,

re,

it,

to es.

N,

CK.

and

her

But, here the severe Reader may justly tax me as a Writer of short Memory, a Deficiency to which a true Modern cannot but, of Necelsity, be a little subject. Because, Memory being an Employment of the Mind upon Things past, is a Faculty, for which the learned in our illustrious Age have no Manner of Occasion, who deal entirely with Invention, and strike all Things out of themselves, or at least by Collision from each other: Upon which Account we think it highly reasonable to produce our great Forgetfulness, as an Argument unanswerable of our great Wit. I ought in Method to have informed the Reader about fifty Pages ago, of a Fancy Lord Peter took, and infused into his Brothers. to wear on their Coats whatever Trimmings came up in Fashion; never pulling off any, as they went out of the Mode, but keeping on all together; which amounted in Time to a Medley the most antic, you can possibly conceive; and this to a Degree, that, upon the Time of their falling out, there was hardly a Thread of the original Coat to be seen; but an infinite Quantity of Lace, and Ribbands, and Fringe, and Embroidery, and Points (I mean, only those and the story of the control of the tagged * tagged with Silver, for the rest fell off.) Now this material Circumstance having been forgot in due Place, as good Fortune hath ordered, comes in very properly here, when the two Brothers are just going to reform their Vestures into the primitive State, prescribed by their Father's Will.

They both unanimously entered upon this great Work, looking fometimes on their Coats. and fometimes on the Will. Martin laid the first Hand; at one Twitch brought off a large Hand. ful of Points; and, with a fecond Pull, stripped away ten Dozen Yards of Fringe. But when he had gone thus far, he demurred a while: He knew very well there yet remained a great deal more to be done; however, the first Heat being over, his Violence began to cool, and he resolved to proceed more moderately in the rest of the Work; having already narrowly escaped a swinging Rent in pulling off the Points, which being tagged with Silver (as we have observed before) the judicious Workman had with much Sagacity double fown to preferre them from falling. Refolving therefore to rid his Coat of a huge Quantity of Gold Lace, he picked up the Stitches with much Caution, and diligently gleaned out all the loofe Threads as he went, which proved to be a Work of Time. Then he fell about the embroidered Indian Figures of Men, Women, and Children; against which, as you have heard in due Place, their Father's Testament was extreamly exact and severe: Thefe

u

Points tagged with Silver, are those Doctrines that promote the Greatness and Wealth of the Church, which have been therefore woven deeper in the Body of Popery.

S,

e l.

s, rft

d-

ed

en

e :

eat

eat he rest

ped

ich

beuch fal-

of a

the

ntly

ent,

hen s of iich,

ner's

ere:

hele

s that urch,

Body

These with much Dexterity and Application were after a while quite eradicated, or utterly defaced. For the rest, where he observed the Embroidery to be worked so close, as not to be got away without damaging the Cloth, or where it served to hide or strengthen any Flaw in the Body of the Coat, contracted by the perpetual Tampering of Workmen upon it; he concluded, the wisest Course was to let it remain, resolving in no Case whatsoever, that the Substance of the Stuff should suffer Injury; which he thought the best Method for serving the true Intent and Meaning of his Father's Will. And this is the nearest Account I have been able to collect of Martin's Proceedings upon this great Revolution.

But, his Brother Jack, whose Adventures will be so extraordinary, as to furnish a great Part in the Remainder of this Discourse, entered upon the Matter with other Thoughts, and a quite different Spirit. For the Memory of Lord Peter's Injuries produced a Degree of Hatred and Spight, which had a much greater Share of inciting him, than any Regards after his Father's Commands, fince these appeared at best only secondary and subservient to the other. However, for this Medley of Humour he made a Shift to find a very plaufible Name, honouring it with the Title of Zeal; which is perhaps the most fignificant Word, that hath been ever yet produced in any Language; as, I think, I have fully proved in my excellent analytical Discourse upon that Subject; wherein I have deduced a histori-theo-physilogical Account of Zeal, shewing how it first proceeded from a Notion into a Word, and from thence in a hot Summer ripened into a tangible Subftance. This Work, containing three large large Volumes in Folio, I design very shortly to publish by the modern Way of Subscription, not doubting but the Nobility and Gentry of the Land will give me all possible Encouragement, having had already such a Taste of what I am able to perform.

I record therefore, that Brother Jack, brimful of this miraculous Compound, reflecting with Indignation upon Peter's Tyranny, and farther provoked by the Despondency of Mer. tin, prefaced his Resolutions to this Purpose. "What (said he) a Rogue that locked up his "Drink, turned away our Wives, cheated us " of our Fortunes; palmed his damned Crusts " upon us for Mutton; and at last, kicked us " out of Doors; must we be in his Fashions, " with a Pox! a Rascal, besides, that all the " Street cries out against." Having thus kindled and inflamed himself, as high as possible, and by Consequence, in a delicate Temper for beginning a Reformation, he fet about the Work immediately, and in three Minutes made more Dispatch than Martin had done in as many Hours. For, courteous Reader, you are given to understand, that Zeal is never so highly obliged, as when you fet it a tearing; and Tack, who doated on that Quality in himself, allowed it at this Time its full Swing. Thus it happened, that fripping down a Parcel of Gold Lace a little too hastily, he rent the main Body of his Coat from Top to Bottom; and whereas his Talent was not of the happiest in taking up a Stitch, he knew no better Way, than to darn it again with a Packthread and a Skewer. But the Matter was yet infinitely worse (I record it with Tears) when he proceeded to the Embroidery: For, large being

66

"

"

"

66

"

66

66

"

"

46

"

**

0 ot

t,

m ni i

n-ng nd

ar-

le.

his

us

ults

us

ms,

the dled

and

beork

nore

ours.

ider-

pated

that

e too

from

t was

knew rith a

was

For, being

MARTIN

being clumfy by Nature, and of Temper impatient; withal, beholding Millions of Stitches that required the nicest Hand, and sedatest Constitution, to extricate; in a great Rage, he tore off the whole Piece, Cloth and all, and flung it into the Kennel, and furiously thus continued his Career: " Ah, good Brother Martin (faid he) " do as I do, for the Love of God; strip, " tear, pull, rend, flay off all, that we may appear as unlike the Rogue Peter as it is " possible; I would not for an hundred " Pounds carry the least Mark about me, that " might give Occasion to the Neighbours of suf-" pecting, that I was related to fuch a Rascal." But Martin, who at this Time happened to be extremely flegmatic and fedate, " begged his "Brother of all Love not to damage his Coat " by any Means; for he would never get fuch " another: Defired him to consider, that it was " not their Business to form their Actions by " any Reflection upon Peter, but by observing "the Rules prescribed in their Father's Will. "That he should remember Peter was still their " Brother, whatever Faults or Injuries he had " committed; and therefore they should, by all " Means, avoid such a Thought, as that of " taking Measures for Good and Evil from no " other Rule than of Opposition to him. That " it was true, the Testament of their good " Father was very exact in what related to the " wearing of their Coats; yet was it no less " penal and strict in prescribing Agreement, and "Friendship, and Affection between them. "And therefore, if straining a Point were at " all dispensable, it would certainly be so, " rather to the Advance of Unity, than Increase " of Contradiction."

MARTIN had still proceeded as gravely as he began; and doubtless would have delivered an admirable Lecture of Morality, which might have exceedingly contributed to my Reader's Repose both of Body and Mind, the true ultimate End of Ethics; but Jack was already gone a Flight-shot beyond his Patience. And, as in scholastic Disputes nothing serves to rouse the Spleen of him that opposeth so much, as a Kind of pedantic affected Calmness in the Respondent; Disputants being for the most Part like unequal Scales, where the Gravity of one Side advances the Lightness of the other, and causeth it to fly up and kick the Beam : So it happened here, that the Weight of Martin's Argument exalted Fack's Levity, and made him fly out and spurn against his Brother's Moderation. In thort, Martin's Patience put Jack in a Roge; but that which most afflicted him was, to observe his Brother's Goat fo well reduced into the State of Innocence; while his own was either wholely rent to his Shirt; or those Places, which, had escaped his cruel Clutches; were still in Peter's Livery. So that he looked like a drunken Beau, half rifled by Bullies; or like a fresh Tenant of Newgate, when he hath refused the Payment of Garnis; or like a discovered Shop-lifter, left to the Mercy of Exchange women *; or tike a Bawd in her old Velvet * The Galleries over the Piazzas in the Royal Exchange were formerly filled with Shops, kept chiefly by Women; the fame Use was made of a Building called the New Exchange in the Strand; this Edifice has been pulled down; the Shopkeepers have removed from the Royal Exchange into Cornhill, and the adjacent Streets; and there are now no Remains of Exchange swomen but in Exeter-'change, and they are no longer deemed the first Ministers of Fashion.

as

ed

ht r's

ite

a

in

he

of ual

ees

up.

hat

ek's

inst

in's

noft

oat

ce;

his:

his.

So

fled

gate,

ercy

r old

elvet

LEX-

fly by called

been

m the reets

en but

d the

Velvet Petticoat, resigned into the secular Hands of the Mobile. Like any, or like all of these, a Medley of Rags, and Lace, and Rents, and Fringes, unfortunate Jack did now appear. He would have been extremely glad to see his Coat in the Condition of Martin's, but infinitely gladder to find that of Martin in the same Predicament with his. However, fince neither of these was likely to come pals, he thought fit to lend the whole Business another Turn, and to dress up Necessity into a Virtue. Therefore, after as many of the Fox's Arguments * as he could mufter for bringing Martin to Reason, as he called it; or, as he meant it, into his own ragged, bobtailed Condition; and observing he said all to little Purpose; what, alas! was left for the forlorn Jack to do, but, after a Million of Scurrilities against his Brother, to run mad with Spleen, and Spight, and Contradiction. To be fhort, here began a mortal Breach between those Jack went immediately, to new Lodgings, and in a few Days it was for certain reported, that he had run out of his Wits. In a short Time after he appeared Abroad, and confirmed the Report by falling into the oddest Whimsies, that ever a fick Brain conceived.

And now the little Boys in the Streets began to salute him with several Names. Sometimes they would call him + Jack the Bald; sometimes † Jack with a Lanthorn; sometimes § Dutch Jack, sometimes

* The Fox in the Fable, who having been caught in a Trap, and lost his Tail, used many Arguments to persuade the rest to cut off theirs; that the Singularity of his Deformity might not expose him to Derision.

† That is, Calvin, from Calvus bald.

All those who pretend to inward Light.

I Jack of Leyden, who gave Rife to the Anabaptifis.

fometimes * French Hugh; fometimes + Tom the Beggar; and sometimes & Knocking fack of the North. And it was under one, or some, or all of these Appellations, which I leave the learned Reader to determine, that he hath given Rise to the most illustrious and epidemic Sect of Eolists, who, with honourable Commemoration, do still acknowledge the renowned JACK for their Author and Founder. Of whose Religion as well as Principles, I am now advancing to gratify the World with a very particular Account.

-Melleo contingens cuncta Lepore.

* The Hugonots.

+ The Guefes, by which Name some Protestants in landers were called.

1 John Knox, the Reformer of Scotland. Flanders were called.

hors, here lagen a mortel Bienen between thele two. Fack went immediately to man Letymer.

contenes plates and so without the self uniting that he had the care of his Wils. To a there

I maraller a figis abacada barangas ad sons canif the Report by fulling land the effect weller, that ever a field Brillin conceived.

And now the little Days in the Sanets began rendismag . escal, Names . Sponeinas.

they would call been t Year the Ball a Conceinnes truck with a Louisors, sometimes & Sures hove. Lameting !

The For in the Fable, who having been capple in a Trup, and left lie! Tail, and many Argameirs to purtue de thought to got of theirs that the sungularity othis Informity withit not error him to Delikeed t That is, Calcon from Count back.

LARthole who protend to leavest to be.

Light, tubo gove it is to an alight.

SECT. VII. via of i Coll. 100 hour, cha war

all ed to ts,

ill

u-ell the

Milli

guil.

two.

isil

TOTA ומדונבי

AI

LOWES HAR DIG NO 1

A Digression in Praise of Digressions. collection and still active

Netions of drive them into

T HAVE sometimes heard of an Iliad in a Nutshell; but it hath been my Fortune to have much oftener feen a Nut-shell in an Iliad. There is no Doubt that human Life hath received most wonderful Advantages from both; but to which of the two the World is chiefly indebted, I shall leave among the Curious, as a Problem worthy of their utmost Enquiry. For the Invention of the latter, I think the Commonwealth of Learning is chiefly obliged to the great Modern Improvement of Digreffions: The late Refinements in Knowledge, running parallel to those of Diet in our Nation, which among Men of a judicious Taste, are dressed up in various Compounds; confisting in Soups, and Olios, Fricassees, and Ragousts.

It is true, there is a Sort of morose, detracting, ill-bred People, who pretend utterly to difrelish these polite Innovations; and as to the Similitude from Diet, they allow the Parallel, but are so bold to pronounce the Example itself a Corruption and Degeneracy of Taste. They tell us, that the Fashion of jumbling fifty Things together in a Dish, was at first introduced in Compliance

Compliance to a depraved and debauched Appetite, as well as to a crazy Constitution; and to see a Man hunting through an Olio after the Head and Brains of a Goose, a Widgeon, or a Woodcock, is a Sign he wants a Stomach and Digestion for more substantial Victuals. Farther they affirm, that Digressions in a Book are like Foreign Troops in a State, which argue the Nation to want a Heart and Hands of its own, and often either subdue the Natives, or drive them into the most unfruitful Corners.

But, after all that can be objected by these fupercilious Cenfors, it is manifest, the Society of Writers would quickly be reduced to a very inconsiderable Number, if Men were put upon making Books with the fatal Confinement of delivering nothing beyond what is to the Purpole. It is acknowledged, that were the Case the same among us, as with the Greeks and Romans, when Learning was in its Cradle, to be reared, and fed, and cloathed by Invention; it would be an easy Task to fill up Volumes upon particular Occasions, without farther expatiating from the Subjects, than by moderate Excursions, helping to advance or clear the main Design. Knowledge, it hath fared as with a numerous Army, encamped in a fruitful Country; which for a few Days maintaineth itself by the Product of the Soil it is on; until, Provisions being spent, they are fent to forage many a Mile, among Friends or Enemies it matters not. Mean while, the neighbouring Fields, trampled and beaten down, become barren and dry, affording no Sustenance but Clouds of Dust.

1

Ci

a

br

a

at a art

due vitele

iety

ery

pon de-

ole. ame

ans,

ared,

d be

cular

n the lping

with s Arch for et of

spent,

mong

while,

g no

(1)2304

The

The whole Course of Things being thus entirely changed between Us and the Antients, and the Moderns wifely sensible of it, we of this Age have discovered a shorter, and more prudent Method, to become Scholars and Wits, without the Fatigue of Reading or of Thinking. most accomplished Way of using Books at prefent is twofold: Either first, to serve them as some Men do Lords, learn their Titles exactly, and then brag of their Acquaintance. Or, fecondly, which is indeed the choicer, the profounder, and politer Method, to get a thorough Infight into the Index, by which the whole Book is governed and turned, like Fishes by the Tail. For, to enter the Palace of Learning at the great Gate requireth an Expence of Time and Forms; therefore Men of much Haste and little Ceremony are content to get in by the Back door. For the Arts are all in a flying March, and therefore more easily subdued by attacking them in the Rear. Thus Physicians discover the State of the whole Body by confulting only what comes from behind. Thus Men catch Knowledge by throwing their Wit on the Posteriors of a Book, as Boys do Sparrows with flinging Salt upon their Tails. Thus Human Life is best understood by the wife Man's Rule of regarding the End. Thus are the Sciences found, like Hercules's Oxen, by tracing them backwards. Thus are old Sciences unravelled like old Stockings, by beginning at the Foot.

Besides all this, the Army of the Sciences hath been of late, with a World of martial Discipline, drawn into its close Order, so that a View, or a Muster may be taken of it with Abundance of Expedition. For this great Blessing we are wholely indebted to Systems and Abstracts, in which the modern Fathers of Learning, like prudent Usurers, spent their Sweat for the Ease of us their Children. For Labour is the Seed of Idleness, and it is the peculiar Happiness of our Noble Age to gather the Fruit.

Now the Method of growing wise, learned, and sublime, having become so regular an Affair, and so established in all its Forms; the Number of Writers must needs have encreased accordingly, and to a Pitch that hath made it of absolute Necessity for them to interfere continually with each other. Besides, it is reckoned, that there is not at this present a sufficient Quantity of new Matter lest in Nature to surnish and adora any one particular Subject to the Extent of a Volume. This I am told by a very skilful Computer, who hath given a full Demonstration of it from the Rules of Arithmetick.

This perhaps may be objected against by those, who maintain the Infinity of Matter, and therefore will not allow, that any Species of it can be exhausted. For Answer to which, let us examine the noblest Branch of modern Wit or Invention, planted and cultivated by the present Age, and which of all others hath borne the most, and the fairest Fruit. For, although some Remains of it were left us by the Antients, yet have not any of those, as I remember, been translated or compiled into Systems for modern Use. Therefore we may affirm to our own Honour, that it hath, in some Sort, been both invented, and brought to a Perfection by the same Hands. What I mean is, that highly celebrated Talent among

f

èr

1-

)-

ly

at

TR

mit

fe,

rebe

Ka-

enge,

and

ins

not

or ere-

it it

nds. lent

ong

among the modern Wits, of deducing Similitudes, Allusions, and Applications, very furpriling, agreeable, and appolite, from the Pudenda of either Sex, together with their proper Uses. And truly having observed, how little Inntion bears any Vogue, besides what is derived to these Channels, I have sometimes had a Thought, that the happy Genius of our Age and Country was prophetically held forth by that antient typical * Description of the Indian Pygmies; whose Stature did not exceed above two Foot; sed quorum pudenda crassa, et ad talos usque pertingentia. Now, I have been very curious to inspect the late Productions, wherein the Beauties of this Kind have most prominently appeared; and although this Vein hath bled fo freely, and all Endeavours have been used in the Power of human Breath, to dilate, extend, and keep it open; like the Scythians, who + had a Cuftom. and an Instrument, to blow up the Privities of their Mares, that they might yield the more Milk: Yet I am under an Apprehension, it is near growing dry, and past all Recovery; and that either some new Fonde of Wit, should, if possible, be provided, or else, that we must even be content with Repetition here, as well as upon all other Occasions.

This will stand as an incontestible Argument that our modern Wits are not to reckon upon the Infinity of Matter for a constant Supply. What remains therefore, but that our last Recourse must be to large Indexes, and little Compendiums; Quotations must be plentifully gathered, and booked in Alphabet; to this End, although Vol. XX.

* Ctefia fragm. apud Photius. † Herodot. L. 4.

Authors need be little consulted, yet Critichs, and Commentators, and Lexicons, carefully must. But above all, those judicious Collectors of bright Parts and Flowers, and Observandas are to be nicely dwelt on, by some called the Sieves and Boulters of Learning; although it is left undetermined, whether they dealt in Pearls or in Meal; and consequently, whether we are more to value that which passed through, or what staid behind.

By these Methods, in a few Weeks, there flasts up many a Writer, capable of managing the profoundest, and most universal Subjects. For, what although his Head be empty, provided his Common-place Book be full; and if you will bate him but the Circumstances of Method, and Style, and Grammar, and Invention, allow him but the common Privileges of transcribing from others, and digressing from himself, as often as he shall see Occasion; he will desire no more Ingredients towards fitting up a Treatife, that shall make a very comely Figure on a Bookseller's Shelf, there to be preserved neat and clean for a long Eternity, adorned with the Heraldry of its Title, fairly inscribed on a Label; never to be thumbed or greafed by Students, nor bound to everlasting Chains of Darkness in a Library: But when the Fulness of Time is come, shall happily undergo the Trial of Purgatory, in order to afcend the Sky.

Without these Allowances, how is it possible, we modern Wits should ever have an Opportunity to introduce our Collections, listed under so many thousand Heads of a different Nature; for want of which, the learned World would be deprived Praise of DIGRESSIONS. 89 prived of infinite Delight, as well as Instruction, and we ourselves buried beyond Redress, in an inglorious and undiffinguished Oblivion.

From such Elements as these, I am alive to behold the Day, wherein the Corporation of Authors can outvie all its Brethren in the Guild. A Happiness derived to us with a great many others from our Scythian Ancestors; among whom the Number of Pens was so infinite, that the * Grecian Eloquence had no other Way of expressing it, than by faying, " that in the Re-"gions, far to the North, it was hardly possible " for a Man to travel, the very Air was fo re-" plete with Feathers."

The Necessity of this Digression will easily excuse the Length; and I have chosen for it as proper a Place as I could readily find. If the judicious Reader can assign a sitter, I do here impower him to remove it to any other Corner he pleafeth. And fo I return with great Alacrity, to pursue a more important Concern.

* Heredot. L. 4.

SECT. egon gheir Company I, Lecter, whise is the ufels, but as it is commonly called, the Break of our Wolalls I. Whence is to very julily the or Amias; what teachlibele benefice lations for Wisk, which is the calleg of

SECT. VIII.

DE LEMOTERES TOTALS AND AND A COMPANION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE

- ATALE of a TUB.

THE learned * Eolists maintain the original Cause of all Things to be Wind, from which Principle this whole Universe was at first produced, and into which it must at last be resolved; that the same Breath, which had kindled and blew up the Flame of Nature, should one Day blow it out:

Quod procul a nobis flectat Fortuna gubernans.

This is what the Adepti understand by their Anima Mundi; that is to say, the Spirit, or Breath, or Wind of the World; for, examine the whole System by the Particulars of Nature, and you will find it not to be disputed. For whether you please to call the Forma informans of Man, by the Name of Spiritus, Animus, Afflatus, or Anima; what are all these but several Appellations for Wind, which is the ruling Element in every Compound, and into which they all resolve upon their Corruption? Farther, what is Life itself, but as it is commonly called, the Breath of our Nostrils? Whence it is very justly observed ferved by Naturalists, that Wind still continues of great Emolument in certain Mysteries not to be named, giving Occasion for those happy Epithets of Turgidus, and Inflatus, applied either to the Emittent, or Recipient Organs.

* All Pretenders to Infpiration what soever.

By what I have gathered out of antient Records, I find the Compass of their Doctrine took in two and thirty Points, wherein it would be tedious to be very particular. However, a few of their most important Precepts, deducible from it, are by no Means to be omitted; among which the following Maxim was of much Weight; that fince Wind had the Master-share, as well as Operation in every Compound, by Consequence those Beings must be of chief Excellence, wherein that Primordium appears most prominently to abound; and therefore Man is in highest Perfection of all created Things, as having, by the great Bounty of Philosophers, been endued with three distinct Animas or Winds, to which the fage Æolifts, with much Liberality, have added a fourth of equal Necessity, as well as Ornament, with the other three; by this quartum principium, taking in our four Corners of the World; which gave Occasion to that renowned Cabalift * Bumbastus, of placing the Body of Man in due Position to the four Cardinal Points.

In Gonsequence of this, their next Principle was, that Man brings with him into the World, a peculiar Portion or Grain of Wind, which may be called a Quinta effentia, extracted from the other four. This Quintessence is of a Catholic G 3

n

e

)-

d

† This is one of the Names of Paracelsus; he was called Christophorus Theophrasius Paracelsus Bumbastus.

Use upon all Emergencies of Life, is improve. able into all Arts and Sciences, and may be wonderfully refined as well as enlarged, by certain Methods of Education. This, when blown up to its Perfection, ought not to be coverously hoarded up, stifled, or hid under a Bushel, but freely communicated to Mankind. Upon these Reasons, and others of equal Weight, the wife Æolists affirm the Gift of BELCHING to be the noblest Act of a rational Creature. To cultivate which Art, and render it more serviceable to Mankind, they made Use of several Methods. At certain Seasons of the Year, you might behold the Priests among them in vast Numbers with their * Mouths gaping wide enough against a Storm. At other Times were to be feen several hundreds linked together in a circular Chain, with every Man a Pair of Bellows applied to his Neighbour's Breech, by which they blew up each other to the Size and Shape of a Tun; and for that Reason, with great Propriety of Speech, did usually call their Bodies their Vessels. When by these and the like Performances, they were grown sufficiently replete, they would immediately depart, and difembogue, for the Public Good, a plentiful Share of their Acquirements into their Disciples Chaps. For we must here observe, that all Learning was esteemed among them to be compounded from the same Principle. Because, first, it is generally affirmed, or confessed, that Learning puffeth Men up: And secondly, they prove it by the following Syllogifm: " Words are but Wind, and Learning

* This is meant of those seditious Preachers, who blow up the Seeds of Rebellion.

" is nothing but Words; Ergo, Learning is " nothing but Wind." For this Reason, the Philosophers among them did, in their Schools. deliver to their Pupils all their Doctrines and Opinions by Erustation, wherein they had acquired a wonderful Eloquence, and of incredible Variety. But the great Characteristic, by which their chief Sages were best distinguished, was a certain Polition of Countenance, which gave undoubted Intelligence to what Degree or Proportion the Spirits agitated the inward Mass. For, after certain Gripings, the Wind and Vapours issuing forth, having first by their Turbulence and Convulsions within, caused an Earthquake in Man's little World, distorted the Mouth, bloated the Cheeks, and gave the Eyes a terrible Kind of Relievo. At which Junctures, all their Belches were received for facred, the fourer the better. and swallowed with infinite Consolation by their meagre Devotees. And, to render thefe yet more compleat, because the Breath of Man's Life is in his Nostrils, therefore the choicest, most edifying, and most enlivening Belches were very wifely conveyed through that Vehicle, to give them a Tincture as they passed.

Their Gods were the four Winds, whom they worshipped, as the Spirits that pervade and enliven the Universe, and as those from whom alone all Inspiration can properly be said to proceed. However, the chief of these, to whom they performed the Adoration of Latria *, was the Almighty North; an antient Deity, whom the Inhabitants of Megalopolis in Greece had G4 likewise likewise in the highest Reverence: * Omnium Deorum Boream maxime celebrant. This God. although endued with Ubiquity, was yet supposed by the prefounder Æolists to possess one peculiar Habitation, or (to speak in Form) a Coelum Empyræum, wherein he was more intimately present. This was situated in a certain Region. well known to the antient Greeks, by them called, Enoria, or the Land of Darkness. And although many Controversies have arisen upon that Matter; yet so much is undisputed, that, from a Region of the like Denomination the most refined Æolists have borrowed their Original; from whence in every Age the Zealous among their Priesthood have brought over their choicest Inspiration, fetching it with their own Hands from the Fountain head in certain Bladders, and disploding it among the Sectaries in all Nations, who did, and do, and ever will, daily gasp and pant after it.

10

* Latria is that Worship which is paid only to the Supreme Deity.

Now, their Mysteries and Rites were performed in this Manner. It is well known among the Learned, that the Virtuolos of former Ages had a Contrivance for carrying and preserving Winds in Casks or Barrels, which was of great Assistance upon long Sea-Voyages; and the Loss of so useful an Art at present is very much to be lamented, although, I know not how, with great Negligence omitted by Pancirollos +. It was an Invention ascribed to Æolus himself, from whom this Sect is denominated, and who, in Honour of their Founder's Memory.

Paufan. L. 8. + An Author who writ De Artibus perditis, &c. of Arts loft, and of Arts invented.

Memory, have to this Day preferved great Num-. bers of those Barrels, whereof they fix one in each of their Temples, first beating out the Top; into this Barrel, upon folemn Days, the Priest enters; where, having before duly prepared himself by the Methods already described, a secret Funnel is also conveyed from his Posteriors to the Bottom of the Barrel, which admits new Supplies of Inspiration from a Northern Chink or Cranny. Whereupon, you behold him swell immediately to the Shape and Size of his Veffel. In this Posture he disembogues whole Tempests upon his Auditory, as the Spirit from beneath gives him Utterance; which issuing exadytis et penetralibus, is not performed without much Pain and Gripings. And, the Wind in breaking forth deals with his Face as it does with that of the Sea, first blackening, then wrinkling, and, at last, burfling it into a Foam. It is in this Guise, the sacred Æolist delivers his oracular Belches to his panting Disciples; of whom, some are greedily gaping after the sanctified. Breath; others are all the while hymning out the Praises of the Winds; and, gently wasted to and fro by their own Humming, do thus represent: the fost Breezes of their Deities appealed.

It is from this Custom of the Priests, that some Authors maintain these Æolists to have been very antient in the World. Because the Delivery of their Mysteries, which I have just now mentioned, appears exactly the same with that of other antient Oracles, whose Inspirations were owing to certain subterraneous Efficients of Wind, delivered with the same Pain to the Priest, and much about the fame Influence on the People. It is true indeed, that these were frequently managed and directed by Female Officers, whose Organs were understood to be better disposed for the Admission of those oracular Gufts, as entering and passing up through a Receptacle of greater Capacity, and causing also a Pruriency by the Way, such as, with due Management, hath been refined from carnal into a spiritual Extasy. And, to strengthen this profound Conjecture, it is further inlifted, that this Custom of * Female Priests is kept up still in certain refined Colleges of our modern Æolists, who are agreed to receive their Inspiration, derived through the Receptacle aforefaid, like their Ancestors, the Sibyls.

G.5

* This is an exact Description of the Changes mades in the Face by enthusiastic Preachers.

And, whereas the Mind of Man, when he gives the Spur and Bridle to his Thoughts, doth never stop, but naturally sallies out into both Extremes of High and Low, of Good and Evil; his first Flight of Fancy commonly transports him to Ideas of what is most perfect, finished, and exalted; until having foared out of his own Reach and Sight, not well perceiving how near the Frontiers of Height and Depth border upon each other; with the same Course and Wing, he falls down plum into the lowest Bottom of Things; like one who travels the East into the West; or like a strait Line drawn by its own Length into a Circle. Whether, a Tincture of Malice in our Natures makes us fond of furnishing every bright Idea with its Reverse; or, whether ther Reason, reflecting upon the Sum of Things, can like the Sun serve only to enlighten one half of the Globe, leaving the other by Necessity under Shade and Darkness; or, whether Fancy,. flying up to the Imagination of what is highest and best, becomes over-short, and spent, and weary, and fuddenly falls, like a dead Bird of Paradife, to the Ground: Or whether, after all these metaphysical Conjectures, I have not entirely missed the true Reason; the Proposition however, which hath stood me in so much Circumstance, is altogether true; that, as the most uneivilized Parts of Mankind have some way or other climbed up into the Conception of a God, or Supreme Power, fo they have feldom forgot. to provide their Fears with certain ghaffly Notions, which, instead of better, have served them: pretty tolerably for a Devil. And this Proceeding feems to be natural enough; for it is with. Men, whose Imaginations are lifted up very high, after the same Rate, as with those, whole: Bodies are fo; that, as they are delighted with the Advantage of a nearer Contemplation upwards, fo they are equally terrified with the difmal Prospect of the Precipice below. Thus, in the Choice of a Devil, it hath been the ufual? Method of Mankind to fingle out fome Being, either in Act or in Vision, which was in most Antipathy to the God they had framed. Thus. also the Sect of Eolists possessed themselves. with a Dread, and Horror, and Hatred of twomalignant Natures, betwirt whom, and the Deities they adored, perpetual Enmity was effablished. The first of these was the * Camelion. sva fworn .

* Quakers, who fuffer their Women to preach and pray.

* I do not well understand what the Author aims at here, any more than by the terrible Monster, mentioned in the following Lines, called Moulin a went, which is the French Name for a Windmill.

fworn Foe to Inspiration, who in Scorn devoured large Influences of their God, without refunding the smallest Blast by Erustation. The other was a huge terrible Animal called Moulinavent, who, with four strong Arms, waged eternal Battle with all their Divinities, dextrously turning to avoid the Blows, and repay them with Interest.

Thus furnished, and set out with Gods, as well as Devils, was the renowned Sect of Æolists, which maketh at this Day so illustrious a Figure in the World, and whereof, that polite Nation of Laplanders are, beyond all Doubt, a most authentic Branch; of whom I therefore cannot, without Injustice, here omit to make honourable Mention; since they appear to be so closely allied in Point of Interest, as well as Inclinations, with their Brother Æolists among us, as not only to buy their Winds by Wholesale from the same Merchants, but also to retail them after the same Rate and Method, and to Customers much alike.

Now, whether the System here delivered was wholely compiled by Jack; or, as some Writers believe, rather copied from the Original at Delphos, with certain Additions and Emendations, suited to the Times and Circumstances; I shall not absolutely determine. This I may affirm, that Jack gave it at least a new Turn, and formed it into the same Dress and Model, as it lies deduced by me.

I have long fought after this Opportunity of doing Justice to a Society of Men, for whom I have a peculiar Honour; and whose Opinions, as well as Practices, have been extremely mifrepresented, and traduced, by the Malice or Ignorance of their Adversaries. For, I think it one of the greatest, and best of human Actions to remove Prejudices, and place Things in their truest and fairest Light; which I therefore boldly undertake, without any Regards of my own; besides the Conscience, the Honour, and the Thanks.

A Treated the state of the stat

Alle 211 Indian a company such a basilist Les Clif.

Les Company such a significant such a section of the significant such a section of the significant such a section of the significant such as the theren car of tributed Policies policies constant constant in force of color a flut emper, had refer by the Name of Localed on Demon 2 has a we take a survey of the treatest of largers t have been a force of the treatest of largers to Hoomer of Angle Sulen; which says to remove the Translate Orie to engine in orner M. 19 to now to published one for yield but the font, who can the ideas of the decase in the real Rerobations of the area deliced licenses, together while the particular contract of the real real mate, the last contract of the can't be are the real contact of the can't be a second of the real contact of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the can't be a second of the mean Arpealance of the can't be a second of the can 15

i di two 'i satisfició way lo patrologia edi-''.
- These sychorosoft to in to are 'S E C.T.

SECT. IX.

A Digression concerning the Original, the Use, and Improvement of Madness in a Commonwealth.

NOR shall it any ways detract from the just Reputation of this famous Sect, that its Rife and Institution, are owing to such an Author as I have described Jack to be; a Person whose Intellectuals were overturned, and his Brain shaken out of its natural Position; which we commonly suppose to be a Distemper, and called by the Name of Madness or Phrenzy. For, if we take a Survey of the greatest Actions, that have been performed in the World under the Influence of fingle Men; which are, " the Esta-" blishment of new Empires by Conquests; the and Progress of new Schemes " Advance " in Philosophy; and the contriving as well as " the propagating of new Religions;" we shall find the Authors of all of them to have been Perfons, whose natural Reason had admitted great Revolutions from their Diet, their Education, the Prevalency of some certain Temper, together with the particular Influence of Air and Climate. Besides, there is something Individual in human Minds, that easily kindles at the accidental Approach and Collision of certain Circumstances, which, although of paultry and mean Appearance, do often flame out into the greatest Emergencies of Life. For great Turns

A DIGRESSION, &c. 101 are not always given by strong Hands, but by lucky Adaption, and at proper Seasons; and it is of no Import, where the Fire was kindled, if the Vapour hath once got up into the Brain. For, the upper Region of Man is furnished like the middle Region of the Air; the Materials are formed from Gauses of the widest Difference, yet produce at last the same Substance and Effect. Mists arise from the Earth, Steams from the Dunghills, Exhalations from the Sea, and Smoke from the Fire; yet all Clouds are the fame in Composition, as well as Consequences; and the Fumes issuing from a Jakes will furnish as comely and useful a Vapour, as Incense from an Altar. Thus far, I suppose, will easily be granted me; and then it will follow, that as the Pace of Nature never produceth Rain, but when it is overcast and disturbed; so human Underflanding, feated in the Brain, must be troubled and overfpread by Vapours, ascending from the lower Faculties, to water the Invention, and render it fruitful. Now, although these Vapours (as it hath been already faid) are of as various Originals, as those of the Skies; yet the Crops they produce, differ both in Kind and Degree, merely according to the Soil. I will produce two Instances to prove and explain, what I am now advancing.

A certain great Prince raised a mighty Army, filled his Coffers with infinite Treasures, provided an invincible Fleet, and all this without giving the least Part of his Design to his greatest Ministers, or his nearest Favourites. Immediately the whole World was alarmed; the neighbouring neighbouring Crowns in trembing Expectation. towards what Point the Storm would burft; the small Politicians every where forming profound Conjectures. Some believed, he had laid a Scheme for universal Monarchy; others, after much Inlight, determined the Matter to be a Project for pulling down the Pope, and fetting up the Reformed Religion, which had once been his own. Some again, of a deeper Sagacity, fent him into Asia to subdue the Turk, and recover Palestine. In the midst of all these Projects and Preparations, a certain * State Surgeon, gathering the Nature of the Disease by these Symptoms, attempted the Cure, at one Blow performed the Operation, broke the Bag, and out flew the Vapour; nor did any Thing want to render it a complete Remedy: only, that the Prince unfortunately happened to die in the Performance. Now is the Reader exceeding curious to learn, from whence this Vapour took its Rife, which had so long set the Nations at a Gaze, what fecret Wheel, what hidden Spring could put into Motion so wonderful an Engine. It was afterwards discovered, that the Movement of this whole Machine had been directed by an absent Female, whose Eyes had raised a Protuberance, and before Emission she was removed into an Enemy's Country. What should an unhappy Prince do in such ticklish Circumstances as these? He tried in vain the Poet's never-failing Receipt of Corpora quaque; for, Idque petit Corpus mens, unde est saucia amore; Unde feritur, eo tendit, gestitque coire. Lucr.

* This was Henry the Great of France.

Having,

* Ravillac, a Jesuit, who stabbed Henry the Great

Having to no Purpose used all peaceable Endeavours, the collected Part of the Semen, raised and inflamed, became adust, converted to Choler, turned Head upon the spinal Duct, and ascended to the Brain: The very same Principle, that influenceth a Bully to break the Windows of a Whore, who hath jilted him, naturally stirs up a great Prince to raise mighty Armies, and dream of nothing but Sieges, Battles, and Victories.

Teterrimi belli moll dan nas ste Caufa— and ste dan and and caufa—

The other * Instance is, what I have read somewhere in a very antient Author of a mighty King, who, for the Space of above thirty Years, amused himself to take and lose Towns; beat Armies, and be beaten; drive Princes out of their Dominions; fright Children from their Bread and Butter; burn, lay waste, plunder, dragoon, massacre Subject and Stranger, Friend and Foe, Male and Female. It is recorded, that the Philososophers of each Country were in grave Dispute upon Causes natural, moral, and politcal, to find out where they should assign an original Solution of this Phenomenon. At last, the Vapour or Spirit, which animated the Hero's Brain, being in perpetual Circulation, seized upon that Region of the human Body fo renowned for furnishing the + Zibeta Occidentalis.

* This is meant of the present French King, Lewis

† Paracelfus, who was fo famous for Chymiltry, tried an Experiment upon human Excrement, to make a Perfume of it; which, when he had brought to Perfection, he called Zibeta Occidentalis, or Western Givet, the back Parts of Man (according to his Division mentioned by the Author, Page 95.) being the West.

and gathering there into a Tumor, left the rest of the World for that Time in Peace. Of such mighty Consequence it is, where those Ex. halations fix; and of so little from whence they proceed. The same Spirits which in their superior Progress would conquer a Kingdom, defeending upon the Anus, conclude in a Fistula.

H

b nearbhash assistant Let us next examine the great Introducers of new Schemes in Philosophy, and search until we can find, from what Faculty of the Soul the Disposition ariseth in mortal Man, of taking it into his Head to advance new Systems, with fuch an eager Zeal, in Things agreed on all Hands impossible to be known; from what Seeds this Disposition springs, and to what Quality of human Nature these grand Innovators have been indebted for their Number of Disciples, Because it is plain, that several of the Chief among them, both antient and modern, were usually mistaken by their Adversaries, and indeed by all, except their own Followers, to have been Persons crazed, or out of their Wits; having generally proceeded in the common Course of their Words and Actions, by a Method very different from the vulgar Dictates of unrefined Reason; agreeing for the most Part in their feveral Models with their present undoubted Successors in the Academy of modern Bedlan (whose Merits and Principles I shall farther examine in due Place). Of this Kind were Epicurus, Diogenes, Appollonius, Lucretius, Paracelfus, Des Cartes, and others; who, if they were now in the World, tied fast, and separate from their Followers, would, in this our undistinguishing Age, incur manifest Danger of Phlebotomy, and Whips, and Chains, and dark Chambers, and Straw, ı

y

f

il

t

1

;

,

0

Straw. For, what Man in the natural State or Course of Thinking did ever conceive it in his Power to reduce the Notions of all Mankind exally to the same Length, and Breadth, and Heighth of his own ? Yet, this is the first humble and civil Delign of all Innovators in the Empire of Reason. Epicurus modestly hoped, that one Time or other a certain fortuitous Concourse of all Men's Opinions, after perpetual Justlings the sharp with the smooth, the light and the heavy, the round and the square, would by certain Clinamina unite in the Notions of Atoms and Void, as these did in the Originals of all Things. Cartefius reckoned to see before he died, the Sentiments of all Philosophers, like so many lesser Stars in his romantic System, wrapt and drawn within his own Vortex. Now, I would gladly be informed, how it is possible to account for such Imaginations as these in particular Men, without Recourse to my Phanomenon of Vapours, ascending from the lower Faculties to overshadow the Brain, and there distilling into Conceptions, for which the Narrowness of our Mother-tongue has not yet affigned any other Name, besides that of Madness or Phrenzy. Let us therefore now conjecture, how it comes to pals, that none of these great Prescribers do ever fail providing themselves and their Notions with a Number of implicit Disciples. And, I think, the Reason is easy to be assigned; for, there is a peculiar String in the Harmony of human Understanding, which in several Individuals is exactly of the fame Tuning. This if you can dexteroully screw up to its right Key, and then strike gently upon it; whenever you have the good Fortune to light among those of the same Pitch, they will by a secret necessary Sympathy, strike ex-of U( ha

th

W

lil

up

V

actly at the same Time. And, in this one Circumstance, lies all the Skill or Luck of the Matter; for, if you chance to jar the String among those, who are either above or below your own Heighth, instead of subscribing to your Doctrine, they will tie you fast, call you mad, and feed you with Bread and Water. It is therefore a Point of the nicest Conduct to dif. tinguish and adapt this noble Talent with Respect to the Differences of Persons and of Times. Cicero understood this very well, when writing to a Friend in England, with a Caution, among other Matters, to beware of being cheated by our Hackney Coachmen (who, it feems, in those Days were as errant Rascals as they are now) has these remarkable Words: * Eft quod gaudeas te in ista loca venisse, abi aliquid sapere viderere. For, to speak a bold Truth, it is a fatal Miscarriage so ill to order Affairs, as to pass for a Fol in one Company, when in another you might be treated as a Philosopher. Which I desire some certain Gentlemen of my Acquaintance to lay up in their Hearts, as a very seasonable Innuends.

This indeed, was the fatal Mistake of that worthy Gentleman, my most ingenious Friend, Mr. Wotton; a Person, in Appearance, ordained for great Designs, as well as Personmances; whether you will consider his Notions or his Looks, surely no Man ever advanced into the Public with sitter Qualifications of Body and Mind for the Propagation of a new Religion. Oh, had those happy Talents, misapplied to vain Philosophy, been turned into their proper Channels of Dreams and Visions, where Distortion of will by a factor nearly are foreignly, drive our core N centro ves Long the 3 7 0

. ggye

13

.

.

d

t

18

D

tt

١,

-

.

70

10

d

1.

0

er

of

of Mind and Countenance are of such sovereign Use; the base detracting World would not then have dared to report, that something is amiss, that his Brain hath undergone an unlucky Shake; which even his Brother Modernists themselves, like Ungrates, do whisper so loud, that it reaches up to the very Garret I am now writing in.

Lastly, whosoever pleaseth to look into the Fountains of Enthusiasm, from whence in all Ages have eternally proceeded fuch fattening Streams, will find the Spring-head to have been as troubled and muddy as the Current: Of such great Emolument is a Tincture of this Vapour. which the World calls Madness, that without its Help the World would not only be deprived of those two great Bleffings, Conquests and Systems, but even all Mankind would unhappily be reduced to the same Belief in Things invisible. Now, the former Postulatum being held, that it is of no Import from what Originals this Vapour proceeds. but either in what Angles it strikes and spreads over the Understanding, or upon what Species of Brain it ascends; it will be a very delicate Point to cut the Feather, and divide the several Reasons to a nice and curious Reader, how this numerical Difference in the Brain can produce Effects of lo valt a Difference from the same Vapour, as to be the sole Point of Individuation between Alexander the Great, Jack of Leyden, and Monsieur Des Cartes. The present Argument is the most abstracted that ever I engaged in; it strains my Faculties to their highest Stretch; and I desire the Reader to attend with the utmost Propensity; for I now proceed to unravel this knotty Point.

CO1 Sei

fely on bri

op

wi

an

Tw

th

E

by its fh

of

to

W

ar

I

d

0

V

tl

I

7

t

1

a

n

n

6

F

5

+ There is in Mankind, a certain

Hic multa defiderantur.

And this I take to be a clear Solution of the Matter.

Having therefore so narrowly passed through this intricate Difficulty, the Reader will, I am fure, agree with me in the Conclusion; that if the Moderns meant by Madnefs only a Disturbance or Transposition of the Brain, by Force of certain Vapours iffuing up from the lower Faculties, then has this Madness been the Parent of all those mighty Revolutions that have happened in Empire, in Philosophy, and in Religion. For, the Brain in its natural Position and State of Serenity, disposeth its Owner to pass his Life in the common Forms, without any Thoughts of fubduing Multitudes to his own Power, his Reafon, or his Visions; and the more he shapes his Understanding by the Pattern of human Learning, the less he is inclined to form Parties after his particular Notions; because that instructs him in his private Infirmities, as well as in the stubborn Ignorance of the People. But when a Man's Fancy gets affride on his Reason; when Imagination is at Cuffs with the Senfes; and common common Understanding, as well as common Sense, is kicked out of Doors; the first Proselyte he makes, is himself; and when that is once compassed, the Difficulty is not so great in bringing over others; a strong Delusion always operating from without, as vigorously as from within. For Cant and Vision are to the Ear and the Eye the same, that Tickling is to the Those Entertainments and Pleasures we most value in Life, are such as dupe and play the Wag with the Senses. For, if we take an Examination of what is generally understood by Happiness, as it hath Respect either to the Understanding or the Senses, we shall find all its Properties and Adjuncts will herd under this fhort Definition: That, it is a perpetual Possession of being well deceived. And first, with Relation to the Mind or Understanding, it is manifest, what mighty Advantages Fiction has over Truth. and the Reason is just at our Elbow, because Imagination can build nobler Scenes, and produce more wonderful Revolutions, than Fortune or Nature will be at the Expence to furnish. Nor is Mankind fo much to blame in his Choice thus determining him, if we consider that the Debate merely lies between Things past, and Things conceived: And fo the Question is only this; whether Things, that have Place in the Imagination, may not as properly be faid to exist, as those that are seated in the Memory? which may be justly held in the Affirmative, and very much to the Advantage of the former, fince this is acknowledged to be the Womb of Things, and the other allowed to be no more than the Again, if we take this Definition of Happiness, and examine it with Reference to the Senses, it will be acknowledged wonderfully adapt

† Here is another Defect in the Manuscript; but I think the Author did wisely, and that the Matter, which thus strained his Faculties, was not worth a Solution; and it were well if all metaphysical Cobweb Problems were no otherwise answered.

to

ough lam lat if ance

certries, those Em-

the See in ts of Reas his

arnafter him

Ruben a when

and

but I which tion; blems

h

01 fi

f

b

h

P

a

h

t

1

r

adapt. How fading and infipid do all Objects accost us that are not conveyed in the Vehicle of Delufion! how shrunk is every Thing, as it appears in the Glass of Nature! so that if it were not for the Assistance of artificial Mediumi, false Lights, refracted Angles, Varnish and Tin. sel, there would be a mighty Level in the Fe. licity and Enjoyments of mortal Men. If this were seriously considered by the World, as I have a certain Reason to suspect it hardly will. Men would no longer reckon among their high Points of Wisdom, the Art of exposing weak Sides, and publishing Infirmities; an Employment, in my Opinion, neither better nor worse than that of Unmasking, which, I think, has never been allowed fair Usage either in the World or the Play-House.

In the Proportion, that Credulity is a more peaceful Possession of the Mind, than Curiosity, fo far preferable is that Wisdom, which converseth above the Surface, to that pretended Philosophy, which enters into the Depth of Things, and then comes gravely back with Informations and Discoveries, that in the Inside The two Senses to they are good for nothing. which all Objects first address themselves, are the Sight and the Touch; these never examine farther than the Colour, the Shape, the Size, and and whatever other Qualities dwell, or are drawn by Art upon the outward Bodies, and then comes Reason officiously with Tools for cutting, and opening, and mangling, and piercing, offering to demonstrate, that they are not of the same Consistence quite through. Now, I take all this to be the last Degree of perverting Nature; one of whose eternal Laws it is, to put her eas licle

as it

if it

ums,

Cin-

Fe-

this is I vill.

nigh

eak

oy-

orle

has

the ore

nty,

onded

of

In-

fide

s to

the far-

and

nwe

hen

ing,

of-

the

take

Na-

put

her

her best Furniture forward. And therefore, in order to fave the Charges of all fuch expensive Anatomy for the Time to come, I do here think fit to inform the Reader, that in fuch Conclufions as thefe, Reason is certainly in the Right; and that in most corporeal Beings, which have fallen under my Cognizance, the Outside hath been infinitely preferable to the In: Whereof I have been farther convinced from some late Experiments. Last Week I saw a Woman flayed, and you will hardly believe, how much it altered her Person for the worse. Yesterday I ordered the Carcass of a Beau to be stripped in my Prefence; when we were all amazed to find fo many unsuspected Faults under one Suit of Cloaths. Then I laid open his Brain, his Heart, and his Spleen: But, I plainly perceived at every Operation, that the farther we proceeded, we found the Defects increase upon us in Number and Bulk: From all which, I justly formed this Conclusion to myself; that whatever Philosopher or Projector can find out an Art to solder and patch up the Flaws and Imperfections of Nature, will deserve much better of Mankind. and teach us a more useful Science, than that so much in present Esteem, of widening and expoling them, like him, who held Anatomy to be the ultimate End of Physick. And he, whose Fortunes and Dispositions have placed him in a convenient Station to enjoy the Fruits of this noble Art; he that can with Epicurus content his Ideas with the Films and Images that fly off upon his Senses from the Superficies of Things; luch a Man, truly wife, creams off Nature, leaving the Sour and the Dregs for Philosophy and Reason to lap up. This is the sublime and refined Point of Felicity, called the Poffession Vor. XX.

of being well deceived; the serene peaceful State of being a Fool among Knaves.

But to return to Madnefs. It is certain, that according to the System I have above deduced, every Species thereof proceeds from a Redundancy of Vapours; therefore, as some Kind of Phrenzy gives double Strength to the Sinews, fo there are of other Species, which add Vigour, and Life, and Spirit to the Brain : Now, it usually happens, that these active Spirits, getting Possession of the Brain, refembles those that haunt other waste and and empty Dwellings, which for want of Business either vanish, and carry away a Piece of the House, or else stay at Home and sling it all out of the Windows. By which are mystically displayed the two principal Branches of Madnels, and which some Philosophers, not considering fo well as I, have mistaken to be different in their Causes, overhaltily assigning the first to Deficiency, and the other to Redundance.

I think it therefore manifest, from what I have here advanced, that the main Point of Skill and Address is to furnish Employment for this Redundancy of Vapour, and prudently to adjust the Season of it; by which Means it may certainly become of cardinal and catholic Emolument in a Commonwealth. Thus one Man chusing a proper Juncture, leaps into a Gulph, from thence proceeds a Hero, and is called the Saver of his Country; another atchieves the same Enterprize, but, unluckily timing it, has lest the Brand of Madness fixed as a Reproach upon his Memory; upon so nice a Distinction are we taught to repeat the Name of Curtius with Reverence and Love; that of Empedocles with Hatred and Contemps.

tate

that æd.

ncy.

nzy

are ife,

the

and usi-

of all

ally ress,

ing

De-

ave

and

Re-

the nly

n a ro-

nce his ze,

y; re-

and on-ıpt.

tempt. Thus also, it is usually conceived, that the Elder Brutus only personated the Fool and Madman for the Good of the Public; but this was nothing else, than a Redundancy of the same Vapour long misapplied, called by the Latins, * Ingenium par negotiis; or, to translate it as nearly as I can; a Sort of Phrenzy, never in its right Element, until you take it up in the Business of the State.

Upon all which, and many other Reasons of equal Weight, although not equally curious, I do here gladly embrace an Opportunity I have long fought for, of recommending it as a very noble Undertaking to Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Christopher Musgrave, Sir John Bowls, John How, Esq; and other Patriots concerned, that they would move for Leave to bring in a Bill for appointing Commissioners to inspect into Bedlam, and the Parts adjacent; who shall be impowered to send for Persons, Papers, and Records; to examine into the Merits and Qualifications of every Student and Professor; to observe with utmost Exactness their several Dispositions and Behaviour; by which Means, duly distinguishing and adapting their Talents, they might produce admirable Instruments for the several Offices in a State, + military; proceeding in such Methods as I shall here humbly propose. And, I hope the gentle Reader will give some Allowance to my great Solicitude in this important Affair, upon Account of the high Esteem I have ever borne that honourable Society, whereof I had some Time the Happiness to be an unworthy Member.

H 2

311

* Tacit.

Is any Student tearing his Straw in piece-meal, fwearing and blaspheming, biting his Grate. foaming at the Mouth, and emptying his Piffpot in the Spectators Faces? Let the Right Worshipful the Commissioners of Inspection give him a Regiment of Dragoons, and fend him into Flanders among the Reft. Is another eternally talking, sputtering, gaping, bawling, in a Sound without Period or Article? What wonderful Talents are here missaid! Let him be furnished immediately with a green Bag and Papers, and * Three-pence in his Pocket, and away with him to Westminster-Hall. You will find a third gravely taking the Dimensions of his Kennel; a Person of Foresight and Insight, although kept quite in the Dark; for why, like Moses, Ecu t cornuta erat ejus facies. He walks duly in one Pace, intreats your Penny with due Gravity and Ceremony,; talks much of hard Times, and Taxes, and the Whore of Babylon; bars up the wooden Windows of his Cell constantly at eight o'Clock: Dreams of Fire, and Shop-lifters, and Court-Customers, and privileged Places. Now, what a Figure would all these Acquirements amount to, if the Owner were fent into the City among his Brethren! Behold a fourth, in much and deep Conversation with himself, biting his Thumbs at proper Junctures; his Countenance chequered with Business and Design; sometimes walking very fast, with his Eyes nailed to a Paper that he holds in his Hands: A great Saver

* A Lawyer's Coach-hire, when four together, from any of the Inns of Court to Westminster.

† Cornutus is either horned or shining, and by this Term Moses is described in the vulgar Latin of the Bible.

al, iff-

or-

1 a

an-lk-

ind

a-

m-

and im

ird

el;

ept

cce

one

and and

the ght ers,

nts

City

ach

his ace nes ver

of om

this

the

of Time, somewhat thick of Hearing, very thort of Sight, but more of Memory: A Man ever in Haste, a great Hatcher and Breeder of Business, and excellent at the famous Art of whispering Nothing: A huge Idolator of Monyfyllables and Procrastination; so ready to give his Word to every Body, that he never keeps it :: One that has forgot the common Meaning of Words, but an admirable Retainer of the Sound: Extremely subject to the Loofeness, for his Occasions are perpetually calling him away. If you approach his Grate in his familiar Intervals; "Sir, " (fays he) give me a Penny, and I'll fing you " a Song : But give me the Penny first." (Hence comes the common Saying, and commoner Practice, of parting with Money for a Song.) What a compleat System of Court-Skill is here described in every Branch of it, and all utterly loft with wrong Application! Accost the Hole of another Kennel (first stopping your Nose) you will behold a furly, gloomy, nafty, flovenly Mortal, raking in his own Dung, and dabbling in his Urine. The best Part of his Diet is the Reversion of his own Ordure, which, expiring into Steams, whirls perpetually about, and at last reinfunds. His Complexion is of a dirty yellow, with a thin scattered Beard, exactly agreeable to that of his Diet upon its first Declination; like other Infects, who having their Birth and Education in an Excrement, from thence borrow their Colour and their Smell. The Student of this Apartment is very sparing of his Words, but somewhat over-liberal of his Breath; he holdeth his Hand out ready to receive your Penny, and immediately upon Receipt withdraws to his former Occupations. Now, is it not amazing to think, the Society H 3

th

I

d

h

of * Warwick-lane should have no more Concern for the Recovery of so useful a Member. who, if one may judge from those Appearances, would become the greatest Ornament to that illustrious Body? Another Student struts up fiercely to your Teeth, puffing with his Lips, half squeezing out his Eyes, and very graciously holds you out his Hand to kifs. The Keeper defires you not to be afraid of this Professor, for he will do you no Hurt: To him alone is allowed the Liberty of the Anti-chamber, and the Orator of the Place gives you to understand, that this folemn Person is a Taylor run mad with Pride. This Considerable Student is adorned with many other Qualities, upon which at prefent I shall not farther enlarge. - + Hark in your Ear. - I am strangely mistaken, if all his Address, his Motions, and his Airs, would not then be very natural, and in their proper Element.

I shall not descend so minutely, as to insist upon the vast Number of Beaux, Fidlers, Poets and Politicians, that the World might recover by such a Reformation: But what is more material, besides the clear Gains redounding to the Commonwealth by so large an Acquisition of Persons to employ, whose Talents and Acquirements, if I may be so bold to affirm it, are now buried, or at least misapplied; it would be a mighty Advantage accruing to the Public from this Enquiry, that all these would very much excel, and arrive at great Persection in their several Kinds; which . The College of Physicians.

+ I cannot conjecture what the Author means here, or how this Chasm could be filled, although it is capable of more than one Interpretation.

which, I think, is manifest from what I have already shewn, and shall inforce by this one plain Instance; that, even I myself, the Author of these momentous Truths, am a Person whose Imaginations are hard mouthed, and exceedingly disposed to run away with his Reason, which I have observed from long Experience to be a very light Rider, and easily shaken off; upon which Account, my Friends will never trust me alone, without a solemn Promise to vent my Speculations in this, or the like Manner, for the universal Benefit of human Kind; which perhaps the gentle, courteous, and candid Reader, brimful of that modern Charity and Tenderness usually annexed to his Office, will be very hardly persuaded to believe.

with the Prince The Sinficks of this all South at the were survivaled the advisers of programme the party

Tolonia Code it is hit place of Land a variation the test of the state of

ASSESSED FOR FRANCES TO A CONTRACTOR OF STREET

complete of the of the second of the Wently for the reneral Recently and siderally shound to be fromer the plainter, and bould to color to the Part want from spaid off to threat sai the out the found and the fine manual Line viscin bon H4 SECT

A FURTHER DIGRESSION*

T is an unanswerable Argument of a very refined Age, the wonderful Civilities that have passed of late Years between the Nation of Authors, and that of Readers. There can hardly + pop out a Play, a Pamphlet, or a Poem, without a Preface full of Acknowledgment to the World, for the general Reception and Applause they have given it, which the Lord knows where, or when, or how, or from whom it was received. In due Deference to so laudable a Custom, I do here return my humble Thanks to his Majesty, and both Houses of Parliament; to the Lords of the King's most honourable Privy-Council; to the Reverend the Judges; to the Clergy, and Gentry, and Yeomanry of this Land: But in a more especial Manner, to my worthy Brethren and Friends at Will's Coffeehouse, and Gresham-college, and Warwicklane.

† This is literally true, as we may observe in the Prefaces to most Plays, Poems, &c.

* This Section has in former Editions been intitled, A Tale of a Tub; but the Tale not being continued until Section XI. and this being only a further Digreffion, no Apology can be thought necessary for making the Title correspond with the Contents.

lane, and Moor-fields, and Scotland-yard, and Westminster-hall, and Guild-hall: In short, to all Inhabitants and Retainers whatsoever, either in Court, or Church, or Camp, or City, or Country; for their generous and universal Acceptance of this divine Treatise. I accept their Approbation and good Opinion with extreme Gratitude, and, to the utmost of my poor Capacity, shall take hold of all Opportunities to return the Obligation.

I am also happy, that Fate hath flung me into. so blessed an Age for the mutual Felicity of Booksellors and Authors, whom I may fafely. affirm to be at this Day the only two fatisfied Parties in England. Ask an Author how his last: Piece hath succeeded? "Why, truly, he thanks. " his Stars, the World has been very favour-" able, and he has not the least Reason to com-" plain: And yet, by G-, he writ it in a "Week at Bits and Starts, when he could steal " an Hour from his urgent Affairs;" as it is a hundred to one, you may see farther in the Preface, to which he refers you; and for the rest,. to the Bookseller. There you go as a Customer, and make the same Question: " He blesses " his God, the Thing takes wonderfully, he is " just printing the second Edition, and has but " three left in his Shop." You beat down the Price: " Sir we shall not differ;" and, in: Hopes of your Custom another Time, lets you. have it as reasonable as you please; " and pray " fend as many of your Acquaintances as you " will, I shall upon your Account furnish them. all at the same Rate."

Now, it is not well enough considered, to what Accidents and Occasions the World is in. debted for the greatest Part of those noble Writeings, which hourly start up to entertain it. If it were not for a " a rainy Day, a drunken Vi-" gil, a Fit of the Spleen, a Course of Phylick, " a fleepy Sunday, an ill Run at Dice, a long " Taylor's Bill, a Beggar's Purse, a factious " Head, a hot Sun, costive Diet, want of Books, " and a just Contempt of Learning:" But for these Events, I say, and some others too long to recite (especially, a prudent Neglect of taking Brimstone inwardly) I doubt the Number of Authors, and of Writings, would dwindle away to a Degree most woeful to behold. To confirm this Opinion, hear the Words of the famous Troglodyte Philosopher: " It is certain (said he) " fome Grains of Folly are of Course annexed, " as Part of the Composition of human Nature, " only the Choice is left us, whether we pleafe " to wear them inlaid, or emboffed: And we need " not go very far to feek how that is usually de-" termined, when we remember, it is with hu-" man Faculties, as with Liquors, the lightest " will be ever at the Top."

There is in this famous Island of Britain, a certain paultry Scribler, very voluminous, whose Character the Reader cannot wholely be a Stranger to. He deals in a pernicious Kind of Writings called Second Parts, and usually passeth under the Name of The Author of the First. I easily foresee that as soon as I lay down my Pen, this nimble Operator will have stosen it, and treat me as inhumanly as he hath already done Dr. Blackmore, L'Estrange, and many others who shall

to

nte-

If

7i-k,

ng

us

KS,

or

ng

u-

to

m

us

e)

d, e, ife

ed

eu-est

2 se

a

th I

D,

at

r.

10

all

shall here be nameless; I therefore sty for Justice and Relief into the Hands of that great Rectifier of Saddles*, and Lover of Mankind, Dr. Bentley, begging he will take this enormous Grievance into his most modern Consideration: And, if it should so happen that the Furniture of an Ass, in the Shape of a Second Part, must for my Sins be clapped by a Mistake upon my Back, that he will immediately please, in the Presence of the World, to lighten me of the Burthen, and take it home to his own House, till the true Beast thinks sit to call for it.

In the mean Time, I do here give this public Notice, that my Resolutions are to circum. scribe within this Discourse the whole Stock of Matter, I have been fo many Years providing. Since my Vein is once opened, I am content to exhaust it all at a Running, for the peculiar Advantage of my dear Country, and for the universal Benefit of Mankind. Therefore hospitably confidering the Number of my Guests, they shall have my whole Entertainment at a Meal; and I scorn to set up the Leavings in the Cupboard. What the Guests cannot eat may be given to the Poor; and the + Dogs under the Table may gnaw the Bones. This I understand for a more generous Proceeding, than to turn the Company's Stomach, by inviting them again To-morrow to a feurvy Meal of Scraps.

all was that whatever Difference may b shelver swert Cosis Charles they wi

* Alluding to the trite Phrase, Place the Saddle on the right Horse, p. 46.

† By Dogs, the Author means common injudicious Criticks, as he explains it himself before in his Digreffion upon Criticks, p. 46.

re

W

tl

f

r

b

H

If the Reader fairly considers the Strength of what I have advanced in the foregoing Section, I am convinced it will produce a wonderful Revolution in his Notions and Opinions; and he will be abundantly better prepared to receive and relish the concluding Part of this miraculous Treatife. Readers may be divided into three Class fes, the Superficial, the Ignorant, and the Learned. And I have with much Felicity fitted my Pen to the Genius and Advantage of each. The Superficial Reader will be strangely provoked to Laughter; which clears the Breast and the Lungs, is fovereign against the Spleen, and the most innocent of all Discreticks. The Ignorant Reader, between whom and the former the Distinction is extremely nice, will find himself disposed to flare; which is an admirable Remedy for ill Eyes, serves to raise and enliven the Spirits, and wonderfully helps Perspiration. But the Reader truly Learned, chiefly for whose Benefit I wake when others fleep, and fleep when others wake, will here find sufficient Matter to employ his Speculations for the rest of his Life. It were much to be wished, and I do here humbly propose for an Experiment, that every Prince in Christendom will take seven of the deepest Scholars in his Dominions, and thut them close for feven Years, in feven Chambers, with a Command to write feven ample Commentaries on this comprehensive Discourse. I shall venture to affirm, that whatever Difference may be found in their feveral Conjectures, they will be all, without the last Distortion, manifestly deducible from the Text. Mean Time, it is my earnest Request, that so useful an Undertaking may be entered entered upon, if their * Majesties please, with all convenient Speed; because I have a strong Inclination before I leave the World, to taste a Blessing, which we mysterious Writers can seldom reach, until we have gotten into our Graves; whether it is, that Fame, being a Fruit grafted on the Body, can hardly grow, and much less tipen, until the Stock is on the Earth: Or, whether she be a Bird of Prey, and is lured among the rest to pursue after the Scent of the Carcass: Or, whether she conceiveth her Trumpet soundeth best and farthest, when she standeth on a Tomb, by the Advantage of a rising Ground, and the Echo of a hollow Vault.

It is true, indeed, the Republick of dark Authors, after they once found out this excellent Expedient of Dying, have been peculiarly happy in the Variety, as well as Extent of their Reputation. For, Night being the universal Mother of Things, wife Philosophers hold all Writings to be fruitful in the Proportion they are dark; and therefore, the † True Illuminated (that is to say, the darkest of all) have met with such numberless Commentators, whose Scholastic Midwifery, hath delivered them of Meanings, that the Authors themselves, perhaps, never conceived, and yet may very justly be allowed the lawful

or 1-

n

to ıd:

11, le

£

* Nothing is more frequent, than for Connectal

* William III. and Mary.

† A Name of the Rosycrucians. These were fanatic Alchymists, who in Search after the great Secret had invented a Means altogether proportioned to their End; it was a Kind of Theological Philosophy, made up of almost equal Mixtures of Pagan Platonism, Christian Quietism, and the Jewish Cabbala. Warburton on the Rape of the Lock.

lawful Parents of them *, the Words of fuch Writers, being like Seed, which, however feat. tered at Random, when they light upon a fruit. ful Ground, will multiply far beyond either the Hopes or Imagination of the Sower.

And therefore, in order to promote so useful a Work, I will here take Leave to glance a few Innuendoes, that may be of great Affistance to those sublime Spirits, who shall be appointed to labour in a universal Comment upon this wonderful Discourse. And first +, I have couched a very profound Mystery in the Number of O's multiplyed by Seven, and divided by Nine. Also if a devout Brother of the Rofy Cross will pray fervently for fixty-three Mornings, with a lively Faith, and then transpose certain Letters and Syllables according to Prescription in the second and fifth Section; they will certainly reveal into a full Receipt of the Opus magnum. Laftly, whoever will be at the Pains to cultivate the whole Number of each Letter in this Treatile. and fum up the Difference exactly between the several Numbers, assigning the true natural Cause for every such Difference; the Discoveries in the Product will plentifully reward his Labour. But then he must beware of 1 Bythus * Nothing is more frequent, than for Commentators to force Interpretations, which the Author never meant.

+ This is what the Cabbalists among the Jews have done with the Bible, and pretend to find wonderful Mysteries by it.

I I was told by an eminent Divine, whom I consulted on this Point, that these two barbarous Words, with that of Achamoth, and its Qualities, as here fet down, are quoted from Irenaus. This he discovered by fearchand Sigé, and be sure not to forget the Qualities of Achamoth; A cujus lacrymis humesta prodit Sub-flantia, a risu lucida, a tristitia solida, et a timore mobilis; wherein * Eugenius Philalethes hath committed an unpardonable Mistake.

ing that antient Writer for another Quotation of our Author, which he has placed in the Title Page, and refers to the Book and Chapter; the Curious were very inquisitive, whether those barbarous Words, Basma Cacabasa, Sc. are really in Irenaus, and upon Enquiry it was found they were a Sort of Cant or Jargon of certain Hereticks, and therefore very properly prefixed to such a Book as this of our Author.

* Vid. Anima magica abscondita.

.

5 bl

W

to

to nda

)'s lso

ray

ely

and

ond nto

tly,

the tife,

the

ural

Lauthus

entar

never derful

fulted

with down,

fearching To the above-mentioned Treatise, called Anthroposophia Theomagica, there is another annexed, called Anima magica abscondita, written by the same Author, Vaughan, under the Name of Eugenius Philalethes, but in neither of those Treatises is there any mention of Achamoth, or its Qualities, so that this is nothing but Amusement, and a Ridicule of dark unintelligible Writers; only the Words A cujus lacrymis, &c. are, as we have said, transcribed from Irenaus, though I know not from what Part. I believe one of the Author's Designs was to set curious Men a hunting through Indexes, and enquiring for Books out of the common Road,

inid Frank al a field SECT.

him clearly to tacker morell Road, be a been for we said to a final and them sw and William and Convertidon on the State of their Journey coery Splatte, and Pinepe, and hearthy with one another at the Doubli and Sies, and he fare not to fe get the Qualides

A FURTHER DIGHTSSION.

ATALE of a TUB.

incolar to the thore the base arous W. eds. Larguer Confession of the confession of mitted an ur anderible laifiale...

FTER fo wide a Compass as I have wandered, I do now gladly overtake, and close in with my Subject, and shall henceforth hold on with it in an even Pace to the End of my Journey, except some beautiful Prospect appears within Sight of my way; whereof, although at present I have neither Warning nor Expectation, yet upon such an Accident, come when it will, I shall beg my Reader's Favour and Company, allowing me to conduct him through it along with myself. For in Writing, it is as in Travelling, if a Man is in Hafte to be at Home (which I acknowledge to be none of my Case, having never so little Business, as when I am there) if his Horse be tired with long Riding, and ill Ways, or be naturally a Jade, I advice him clearly to make the straitest and the commonest Road, be it ever so dirty; but then surely we must own such a a Man to be a scurvy Companion at best; he spatters himself and his Fellow Travellers at every Step: All their Thoughts, and Wishes, and Conversation, turn intirely upon the Subject of their Journey's End; and at every Splash, and Plunge, and Stumble, they heartily wish one another at the Devil.

On

al

W

da

01

Go Bl

ho

tur

Dil

doe

laft

forr

be 1

Sch

Unc

fue.

Critici

On the other Side, when a Traveller and his Horse are in Heart and Plight; when his Purse is full, and the Day before him; he takes the Road only where it is clean and convenient; entertains his Company there as agreeably as he can; but upon the first Occasion, carries them along with him to every delightful Scene in View, whether of Art, of Nature, or of both; and if they chance to refuse, out of Stupidity or Weariness; let them jog on by themselves, and be d-n'd, he will overtake them at the next Town; at which arriving, he rides furiously through; the Men, Women and Children run out to gaze; a hundred * noify Curs run barking after him, of which if he honours the boldest with a Last of his Whip, it is rather out of Sport than Revenge: But should some fourer Mongrel dare too near an Approach, he receives a Salute on the Chops by an accidental Stroke from the Courfer's Heels, nor is any Ground lost by the Blow, which fends him yelping and limping home.

1

n-

nd

rth

of ect

al-

nor

me

our

im

, it

my

n I ng,

vile om-

rely om-

Fel-hts,

up-

d at they

On

I now proceed to sum up the singular Adventures of my renowned fack; the State of whose Dispositions and Fortunes the careful Reader does, no Doubt, most exactly remember, as I last parted from them in the Conclusion of a former Section. Therefore his next Care must be from two of the foregoing, to extract a Scheme of Notions, that may best fit his Understanding for a true Relish of what is to enfue.

WOAL with Coats, with Log vies and I

By these are meant what the Author calls, the true Criticks, Page 45.

di

"

66

"

W

th

0

it

fo

la

ha

of

W

fin

11 cir

tha

Wil

fra

lov

abl

00 ma

rity,

on a their

mak who

IACK had not only calculated the first Revolution of his Brain so prudently, as to give Rife to that epidemic Sect of Holifts, but succeeding also into a new and strange Variety of Conceptions, the Fruitfulness of his Imaginations led him into certain Notions, which, although in Appearance very unaccountable, were not without their Mysteries and their Meanings, nor wanted Followers to countenance and improve them. I shall therefore be extremely careful and exact in recounting such material Passages of this Nature as I have been able to collect, either from undoubted Tradition, or indefatigable Reading, and shall describe them as graphically as it is possible, and as far as Notions of that Height and Latitude can be brought within the Compass of a Pen. Nor do I at all question, but they will furnish Plenty of noble Matter for fuch, whose converting Imaginations dispose them to reduce all Things into Types, who can make Shadows, no Thanks to the Sun; and then mould them into Substances, no Thanks to Philosophy; whose peculiar Talent lies in fixing Tropes and Allegories to the Letter, and refining what is literal into Figure and Mystery.

JACK had provided a fair Copy of his Father's Will, engrossed in Form upon a large Skin of Parchment; and resolving to act the Part of a most dutiful Son, he became the sondest Greature of it imaginable. For although, as I have often told the Reader, it consisted wholely in certain plain, easy Directions about the Management and Wearing their Coats, with Legacies and Penalties in Case of Obedience or Neglect; yet he began to entertain a Fancy that the Matter was deeper and darker, and therefore must needs have a great deal more of Mystery at the Bottom. "Gentlemen, (faid he) I will prove this very "Skin of Parchment to be Meat, Drink, and " Cloth, to be the Philosopher's Stone, and the " universal Medicine." * In Consequence of which Raptures, he resolved to make Use of it in the most necessary, as well as the most paltry Occasions of Life. He had a way of working it into any Shape he pleased; so that it served him for a Night-cap when he went to Bed, and for an Umbrella in rainy Weather. He would lap a Piece of it about a fore Toe, or when he had Fits, burn two Inches under his Nose; or, if any Thing lay heavy on his Stomach, scrape off, and swallow as much of the Powder as would lie on a Silver Penny; they were all infallible Remedies. With Analogy to these Refinements, his common Talk and Conversation tran wholely in the Phrase of his Will, and he circumscribed the utmost of his Eloquence within that Compass, not daring to let slip a Syllable without Authority from thence. Once, at a strange House, he was suddenly taken short upon an urgent Juncture, wherein it may not be allowed too particularly to dilate; and being not able to call to Mind, with that Suddeness the Occasion required, an authentic Phrase for demanding the Way to the Backfide, he chose ra-

e ly

at

he

n,

10 ose

an ınd

to

ing

re-

Fa-

skin t of reae ofrtain

and

nal-

he he

was

* The Author here lashes those Pretenders to Punity, who place so much Merit in using Scripture Phrase on all Occasions.

† The Protestant Dissenters use Scripture Phrases in their serious Discourses and Composures, more than the Church-of. England Men; accordingly Jack is introduced, making his common Talk and Conversation to run wholely in the Phrase of his WILL. W. Wotton.

ther as, the most prudent Course, to incur the Penalty in such Cases usually annexed. Neither was it possible for the united Rhetorick of Man. kind to prevail with him to make himself clean again; because having consulted the Will upon this Emergency; he met with a * Passage near the Bottom (whether foisted in by the Transcriber is not known) which seemed to forbid it.

He made it a Part of his Religion never to fay + Grace to his Meat, nor could all the World persuade him, as the common Phrase is, to t eat his Victuals like a Christian.

He bore a strange Kind of Appetite to & Snap-Dragon, and to the livid Snuffs of a burning

t h V

.60

41

66

64

46

"

56

46

46

66

46

. 66

44

46

46

* I cannot guess the Author's Meaning here, which I would be very glad to know, because it feems to be of Importance.

Ibid. Incurring the Penalty in fuch Cases usually annexed, wants no Explanation. He would not make himself clean, because having consulted the Will (i.e. the New Testament) be met with a Paffage near the Bottom, i.e. in the 11th Verse of the last Chapter of the Revelations, "he " which is filthy, let him be filthy still," which feemed to forbidit. Whether foisted in by the Transcriber, is added; because this Paragraph is wanting in the Alexandrian MS. the oldest and most authentic Copy of the New Testament.

† The flovenly Way of receiving the Sacrament among the Fanaticks.

This is a common Phrase to express eating cleanly, and is meant for an Invective against that indecent Manner among some People in receiving the Sacrament; in the Lines before, which is to be understood of the Diffenters refuling to kneel at the Sacrament.

I cannot well find out the Author's Meaning her unless it be the hot, untimely, blind Zeal of Enth

William of the Tarafo of his W fialts.

he 19f

inan

on eat

ber

441

50

to

orld

nap-

ning

ndle,

which to be nexed

cleans ment)

e 11th

emed to added;

indrian

he New

MINIE

rament

cleanly, nt Man-

rent ;

of the ng here

Enth

Candle, which he would catch and swallow with an Agility wonderful to conceive; and by this Procedure maintained a perpetual Flame in his Belly, which issuing in a glowing Steam from both his Eyes, as well as his Nostrils, and his Mouth, made his Head appear in a dark Night like the Skull of an Ass, wherein a roguish Boy had conveyed a Farthing Candle, to the Terror of his Majesty's Liege Subjects. Therefore he made Use of no other Expedient to light himself home, but was wont to say, that a wife Man was his own Lantern.

He would shut his Eyes as he walked along the Streets, and if he happened to bounce his Head against a Post, or fall into the Kennel, as he feldom missed either to do one or both, he would tell the gibing Apprentices, who looked on, that " he submitted with intire Resignation, " as to a Trip, or a Blow of Fate, with whom he " found, by long Experience, how vain it was " either to wrestle or to cuff; and whoever durst " undertake to do either, would be fure to come " off with a swinging Fall, or a bloody Nose: " It was ordained, faid he, some few Days be-" fore the Creation that my Nose and this very " Post should have a Rencounter; and therefore " Nature thought fit to fend us both into the "World in the same Age, and make us Coun-" trymen and Fellow Citizens. Now, had my " Eyes been open, it is very likely, the Busi-" ness might have been a great deal worse, for " how many a confounded Slip is daily got by " Man, with all his Forefight about him? Be-" sides, the Eyes of the Understanding see best," " when those of the Senses are out of the "Way; and therefore blind Men are observed to tread their Steps with much more Caution, " and Conduct, and Judgment, than those who " rely with too much Confidence on the Virtue " of the visual Nerve, which every little Acci-" dent shakes out of Order; and a Drop, or a " Film can wholely disconcert; like a Lantern " among a Pack of roaring Bullies, when they " fcour the Streets, exposing its Owner, and " itself, to outward Kicks and Buffets, which " both might have escaped, if the Vanity of " appearing would have suffered them to walk in the Dark. But farther; if we examine the " Conduct of these boasted Lights, it will prove yet a great deal worse than their Fortune. It is true, "I have broke my Nose against this Post, because " Fortune either forgot, or did not think it coner venient to twitch me by the Elbow, and give " me Notice to avoid it. But'let not this encourage either the present Age or Posterity to " trust their Noses into the keeping of their " Eyes, which may prove the fairest Way of " losing them for good and all. For, Oye " Eyes, ye blind Guides, miserable Guardians " are ye of our frail Noses; ye, I say, who " fasten upon the first Precipice in View, and "then tow our wretched willing Bodies after " you to the very Brink of Destruction: But, " alas! that Brink is rotten, our Feet flip, and " we tumble down prone into a Gulph, without " one hospitable Shrub in the Way to break the "Fall; a Fall, to which not any Nose of mor-" tal Make is equal, except that of the Giant " * Laurcalco, who was Lord of the Silver-" bridge. Most properly, therefore, O Eyes, " and with great Justice, may you be compared ur

11

ha

Vide Don Quixote.

A TALE of a TUB. 133

"to those foolish Lights, which conduct Men
"through Dirt and Darkness, until they fall "into a deep Pit or a noisome Bog."

0 ic i-

a

n y nd

ch

of

lk

he et

ie,

ale

ive

en-

to ris

of

ye ans

vho

and fter

But,

nout

the

noriant ver-

yes,

ared

to to

This I have produced as a Scantling of Jack's great Eloquence, and the Force of his Reasoning upon such abstruse Matters.

He was, besides, a Person of great Design and Improvement in Assairs of Devotion, having introduced a new Deity, who hath since met with a vast Number of Worshippers; by some called Babel, by others, Chaos; who had an antient Temple of Gothic Structure upon Salisbury Plain, samous for its Shrine and Celebration by Pilgrims.

*When he had some roguish Trick to play, he would down with his Knees, up with his Eyes, and fall to Prayers, although in the midst of the Kennel. Then it was, that those who understood his Pranks, would be sure to get far enough out of his Way; and whenever Curiosity attracted Strangers to laugh, or to listen, he would of a sudden with one Hand out with his Gear, and piss full in their Eyes, and with the other all bespatter them with Mud.

† In Winter he went always loose and unbuttoned, and clad as thin as possible, to let in the ambient Heat; and in Summer lapped himself close and thick to keep it out.

In

vetekenno") zi

† They affected Differences in Habit and Be-

* The Villainies and Cruelties, committed by Enthusiasts and Fanaticks among us, were all performed under the Disguise of Religion and long Prayers.

* In all Revolutions of Government he would make his Court for the Office of Hangman General; and in the Exercise of that Dignity, where in he was very dextrous, would make Use of no other † Vizard than a long Prayer.

He had a Tongue so musculous and subtil, that he could twist it up into his Nose, and deliver a strange Kind of Speech from thence. He was also the first in these Kingdoms, who began to improve the Spanish Accomplishment of Brazing; and having large Ears, perpetually exposed and erected, he carried his Art to such a Perfection, that it was a Point of great Difficulty to distinguish either by the View or the Sound, between the Original and the Copy.

He was troubled with a Disease, reverse to that called the Stinging of the Tarantula; and would ‡ run Dog-mad at the Noise of Musick, especially a Pair of Bag-pipes. But he would cure himself again by taking two or three Turns in Westminster-hall, or Billingsgate, or in a Boarding-school, or the Royal Exchange, or a State Coffee-house.

He was a Person that § feared no Colours, but mortally hated all, and upon that Account bore a cruel

* They are severe Persecutors, and all in a Form of Cant and Devotion.

† Cromwell and his Confederates went, as they called it, to feek God, when they resolved to murther the King. † This is to expose our Dissenters Aversion against Instrumental Musick in Churches. W. Wotton.

5 They quarrel at the most innocent Decency and Ornament, and defaced the Statues and Paintings on all the Churches in England.

A TALE of a TUB. 135 a cruel Aversion against Painters; insomuch, that in his Paroxysms, as he walked the Streets; he would have his Pockets loaden with Stones to pelt at the Signs.

d

0

1,

2-

e.

in

b

C-

to 0

to

nd

K. ıld

ns 2

2

V3()

No

out

ore

uel

of

lled

ng.

inst

and 089

Having from this Manner of living, frequent Occasion to wash himself, he would often leap over Head and Ears into Water . although it were in the midst of the Winter, but was always observed to come out again much dirtier, if posfible, than he went in. in our it are this

He was the first that ever found out the Secret of contriving a + soporiferous Medicine to be conveyed in at the Ears; it was a Compound of Sulphur, and Balm of Gilead, with a little Pilgrim's Salve. "Time of Day smong

He wore a large Plaister of artificial Causticks on his Stomach, with the Fervour of which he could fet himself a groaning, like the famous Board upon Application of a red-hot Iron.

He would stand in the Turning of a Street, and, calling those who passed by, would cry to one, "Worthy Sir, do me the Honour of a good "Slap in the Chops." To another, Honest " Friend, pray favour me with a handsome Kick " on the Arse:" " Madam, shall I intreat a Vol. XX. mall everie against each other temblance in many Thinge, so hath been o * Baptism of Adults by plunging.

† Fanatic Preaching, compoled either of Hell and Damnation, or a fulfome Description of the Joys of Heaven, both in such a dirty, nauseous Style, as to be well refembled to Pilgrim's Salve.

learmed Men.

The Fanaticks have always had a Way of affecting to run into Persecution, and count vast Merit upor every little Hardship they suffer.

Af

to be

in

T

W

" fmall Box on the Ear from your Ladyship's fair " Hands ?" " Noble Captain lend a reasonable "Thwack, for the Love of God, with that " Cane of yours over these poor Shoulders." And when he had, by such earnest Solicitations. made a Shift to procure a Bashing sufficient to fwell up his Fancy and his Sides, he would return home extremely comforted, and full of terrible Accounts of what he had undergone for the public Good. " Observe this Stroke, Isaid he. " shewing his bare Shoulders) a plaguy Fanisary " gave it me this very Morning at seven o'Clock, " as with much ado I was driving off the Great "Turk. Neighbours, mind, this broken Head " deserves a Plaister; had poor Jack been ten-" der of his Noddle, you would have feen the " Pope, and the French King, long before this " Time of Day among your Wives and your " Warehouses. Dear Christians, the Great Mo-" gul was come as far as White-chapel, and " you may thank these poor Sides, that he hath not (God bless us) already swallowed up Man, " Woman, and Child."

It was highly worth observing the singular Effects of that Aversion, or Antipathy, which fack and his Brother Peter seemed, even to an Affectation,

The Papists and Fanaticks, although they appear the most averse against each other, yet bear a near Resemblance in many Things, as hath been observed by learned Men.

Ibid. The Agreement of our Diffenters and the Papilts, in that which Bishop Stillingsleet called, the Fancticism of the Church of Rame, is ladicrously described for several Pages together, by Jack's Likeness to Peter, and their being often mistaken for each other, and their frequent Meetings when they least intended it. W. Wotton.

le

at

s,

0

of ۲,

d

-

r

-

n

Affectation, to bear against each other. Peter had lately done some Rogueries, that forced him to abscond; and he seldom ventured to stir out Their Lodgbefore Night for fear of Bailiffs. ings were at the two most distant Parts of the Town from each other; and whenever their Occasions or Humours called them abroad, they would make Choice of the oddest unlikely Times, and most uncouth Rounds, they could invent, that they might be fure to avoid one another; yet, after all this, it was their perpetual Fortune to meet. The Reason of which is easy enough to apprehend; for, the Phrenzy and the Spleen of both having the same Foundation, we may look upon them as two Pair of Compasses, equally extended; and the fixed Foot of each remaining in the same Centre; which, although moving contrary Ways at first, will be fure to encounter somewhere or other in the Circumference. Belides, it was among the great Miffortunes of Fack to bear a huge personal Resemblance with his Brother Peter. Their Humour and Dispositions were not only the same, but there was a close Analogy in their Shape and Size, and their Mien. Infomuch, as nothing was more frequent than for a Bailiff to feize Jack by the Shoulders, and cry, "Mr. Peter, you "are the King's Prisoner." Or, at other Times for one of Peter's nearest Friends to accost fack with open Arms, " Dear Peter, I am " glad to see thee; pray send me one of your " best Medicines for the Worms." This, we may suppose, was a mortifying Return of those Pains and Proceedings, Jack had laboured in fo long; and finding, how directly oppolite all his Endeavours had answered to the sole End and Intention which he had proposed to himself; how could it avoid having terrible Effects upon a Head and Heart fo furnished as his? However, the poor Remainders of his Coat bore all the Punishment; the orient Sun never entered upon his diurnal Progress without missing a Piece of it. He hired a Taylor to stitch up the Collar fo close, that it was ready to choak him, and squeezed out his Eyes at such a Rate, as one could see nothing but the white. What little was left of the main Substance of the Coat, he rubbed every Day for two Hours against a roughcast Wall, in order to grind away the Remnants of Lace and Embroidery; but at the same Time went on with fo much Violence, that he proceeded a Heathen Philosopher. Yet after all he could do of this Kind, the Success continued still to disappoint his Expectation. For, as it is the Nature of Rags to bear a kind of mock Refemblance to Finery; there being a Sort of fluttering Appearance in both, which is not to be distinguished at a Distance, in the Dark, or by short-sighted Eyes: So, in those Junctures, it fared with Fack and his Tatters, that they offered to the first View a ridiculous Flaunting, which affifting the Resemblance in Person and Air, thwarted all his Projects of Separation, and left fo near a Similitude between them, as frequently deceived the very Disciples and Followers of both

I 2

Defunt nonunlla

The old Sclavonian Proverb said well, That it is with Men as with Asses; whoever would keep them fast, must find a very good Hold simes, the one of Prier's n glad to fee dice : spiny fend me one beft Medicines for the Worn

A TALE of a TUB. 139 "at their Ears." Yet I think we may affirm.

that it hath been verified by repeated Experience, that, and it bounded in the same and the same

on

uon

of

fo nd

ne

tle

he

hits ne

0-

he

ed

is

2.1

of

or

s, fg, id n, as i-

Effingiet tamen bæc sceleratus vincula Proteus.

It is good therefore, to read the Maxims of our Ancestors with great Allowances to Times and Persons; for, if we look into primitive Records, we shall find, that no Revolutions have been fo great, or so frequent, as those of human Ears. In former Days there was a curious Invention to catch and keep them; which, I think, we may juftly reckon among the Artes perditæ: And how can it be otherwise, when in these latter Centuries the very Species is not only diminished to a very lamentable Degree, but the poor Remainder is also degenerated to far, as to mock our skilfullest Tenure? For, if the only flitting of one Ear in a Stag hath been found sufficient to propagate the Defect through a whole Forest; why should we wonder at the greatest Consequences from so many Loppings and Mutilations, to which the Ears of our Fathers, and our own, have been of late so much exposed. It is true, indeed, that while this Mand of ours was under the Dominion of Grace, many Endeavours were made to improve the Growth of Ears once more among us. Proportion of Largeness was not only looked upon as an Ornament of the outward Man, but as a Type of Grace in the inward. Besides, it is held by Naturalists, that if there be a Protuberancy of Parts, in the Superior Region of the Body, as in the Ears and Nose, there must be a Parity also in the inferior: And therefore, in that truly pious Age, the Males in every Assembly, according cu

Ki

U

W

CI

according as they were gifted, appeared very forward in exposing their Ears to view, and the Regions about them; because * Hippocrates tells us, that " when the Vein behind the Ear " happens to be cut, a Man becomes an Eunuch:" And the Females were nothing backwarder in beholding and edifying by them: Whereof those who had already used the Means, looked about them with great Concern, in hopes of con-ceiving a suitable Offspring by such a Prospect; Others, who flood Candidates for Benevolence, found there a plentiful Choice, and were fure to fix upon such as discovered the largest Ears, that the Breed might not dwindle between them, Lastly, the devouter Sisters, who looked upon all extraordinary Dilations of that Member, as Protutions of Zeal, or spiritual Excrescencies, were fure to honour every Head they fat upon, as if they had been Marks of Grace; but especially that of the Preacher, whose Ears were usually of the prime Magnitude; which, upon that Account, he was very frequent and exact in expoling with all Advantages to the People; in his rhetorical Paroxysms turning sometimes to held forth the one, and fometimes to hold forth the other From which Custom, the whole Operation of Preaching, is to this very Day, among their Professors, siled by the Phrase of holding forth.

Such was the Progress of the Saints for advancing the Size of that Member; and it is thought the Success would have been every way answerable, if in Process of Time, a teruel King * Lib. de aere, louis & aquis.

† This was King Charles the Second, who, at his Restoration, turned out all the differenting Teachers that would not conform.

)r.

he ar

e-ſe

1

King had not arose, who raised a bloody Persecution against all Ears above a certain Standard : Upon which, some were glad to hide their flourishing Sprouts in a black Border, others crept wholely under a Periwig; some were flit, others cropped, and a great Number fliced off to the Stumps. But of this more hereafter in my general History of Ears; which I delign very fpecdily to bestow upon the Publick.

From this brief Survey of the falling State of Bars in the last Age; and the small Care had to advance their antient Growth in the present, it is manifest, how little Reason we can have to. rely upon a Hold so short, so weak, and so slippery; and that whoever defires to catch Mankind fast, must have Recourse to some other. Methods. Now, he that will examine human Nature with Circumspection enough, may difcover feveral Handles, whereof the * fix Senfes afford one a-piece, beside a great Number that are screwed to the Passions, and some few rivetted to the Intellect. Among these last Curiofity is one, and, of all others, affords the firmest Grasp : Curiosity, that Spur in the Side, that Bridle in the Mouth, that Ring in the Nose, of a lazy, and impatient, and a grunting Reader. By this Handle it is, that an Author should seize upon his Readers; which as foon as he hath once compassed, all Resistance and Struggling are in vain; and they become his Prifoners as close as he pleaseth, until Weariness or Dulness force him to let go his Gripe. The love A est singe

And therefore, I, the Author of this mira. culous Treatife, having hitherto beyond Expectation, maintained by the aforesaid Handle a firm Hold upon my gentle Readers; it is with great Reluctance, that I am at length compelled to remit my Grasp; leaving them in the Perusal of what remains to that natural Oscitancy inherent in the Tribe. I can only assure thee, courteous Reader, for both our Comforts, that my Concern is altogether equal to thine, for my Unhappinels in loling, or millaying among my Papers. the remaining Part of these Memoirs; which consisted of Accidents, Turns, and Adventures, both new, agreeable, and furprizing; and therefore calculated, in all due Points, to the delicate Taste of this our noble Age, But, alas! with my utmost Endeavours, I have been able only to retain a few of the Heads. Under which, there was a full Account, how Peter got a Protection out of the King's-Bench, and of a * Reconcilement between fack and him, upon a Design they had in a certain rainy Night to trepan Brother Martin into a Spunging-house, and there strip him to the Skin. How Martin, with much ado, shewed them both a fair Pair of Heels.

L

* In the Reign of King James the Second, the Presbyterians by the King's Invitation joined with the Papists against the Church of England, and addressed him for Repeal of the penal Laws and Test. The King, by his dispensing Power, gave Liberty of Conscience, which both Papists and Presbyterians made Use of; but, upon the Revolution, the Papists being down of Course, the Presbyterians freely continued their Assemblies, by Virtue of King James's Indulgence, before they had a Toleration by Law. This, I believe, the Author means by Jack's stealing Peter's Protection, and making Use of it himself.

Heels. How a new Warrant came out against Peter; upon which, how Jack left him in the Lurch, Stole his Protection, and made Use of it him-How Jack's Tatters came into Fashion in Court and City; how he got upon a * great Horse, and eat + Custard. But the Particulars of all. these, with several others, which have now slid out of my Memory, are lost beyond all Hopes. of Recovery. For which Misfortune, leaving my Readers to condole with each other, as far as they shall find it agree with their several Constitutions, but conjuring them by all the Friendship that hath passed between us, from the Title Page to this, not to proceed so far as to injure their Healths for an Accident past Remedy; L now go on to the ceremonial Part of an accomplished Writer, and therefore by a courtly Modern, least of all others to be omitted.

Sir Humphrey Edwin, a Presbyterian, was some: Years ago Lord Mayor of London, and had the Infolence to go in his Formalities to a Conventicle, with the Ensigns of his Office.

t. Custard is a famous Dish at a Lord Mayor's Featt.

the, what Subjects will best go off in a key stars and which it is proper to expose foremost, when the Weather-wlass is follow to mich share. When he had seen this Transife, and consisted his stransfer pon it, he gave me to understand, that he had manifestly considered the two principals which were too if and the swo principal and found it would never take, but after a long vacation, and then only, in Case it should be pen to be a hard Year for Turnips. Upon which it desired to know, considering my cross the stars.

TALE of a TUB.

ref. How a new Warrent carae out against the apoin which, how feet lest him in the function of the bir Protestier, and most the set it kins-

THE CONCLUSION.

and the + Cliffand. Buf the Particulars of label with feveral others, subject have gow fild on of my Memory, are lost beyond all Hopes.

of Recovery. Tor which Missortane, leaving YOING too long is a Caufe of Abortion as effectual, although not to frequent, going too fort; and holdeth true especially in Labours of the Brain. Well fare the Heart of that noble * Jefuit, who first adventured to confess in Print, that Books must be suited to their Several Seasons, like Drefs, and Dier, and Divertions: And better fare our noble Nation, for refining upon this among other French Modes. I am living fast to see the Time, when a Book that misseth its Tide, shall be neglected as the Moon by Day, or like Macharel a Week after the Seafon. No Man bath more micely observed our Climate, than the Bookfeller who bought the Copy of this Work; he knoweth to a Tittle, what Subjects will best go off in a dry Year, and which it is proper to expose foremost, when the Weather-glass is fallen to much Rain. When he had seen this Treatise, and consulted his Almanack upon it, he gave me to understand, that he had manifestly considered the two principal Things, which were the Bulk, and the Subject; and found it would never take, but after a long Vacation, and then only, in Case it should happen to be a hard Year for Turnips. Upon which I desired to know, considering my urgent Necessities, what it would run like Wild-fire. But, if it hold up, I have already hired an Author to write something against Dr. Bentley, which I am sure will turn to Account ...

At length we agreed upon this Expedient: that, when a Customer comes for one of these, and desires in Considence to know the Author; he will tell him very privately, as a Friend, naming which ever of the Wits shall happen to be that Week in Vogue; and if Dursey's last Play should be in Course, I had as lieve he may be the Person as Congreve. This I mention, because I am wonderfully well acquainted with the present Relish of courteous Readers; and have often observed with singular Pleasure, that a Fly, driven from a Honey-pot, will immediately with very good Appetite, alight and fanish his Meal on an Excrement.

I have one Word to say upon the Subject of profound Writers, who are grown very numerous of late; and I know very well, the judicious World is resolved to list me in that Number. I conceive therefore, as to the Business of being profound, that it is with Writers, as with Wells;

n

n

at 1 j

h:

5,

at

delt was figured in Sept. 1697.

When Dr. Prideaux brought the Copy of his Connection of the Old and New Testament to the Bookseller, he told him, it was a dry Subject, and the Printing could not safely be ventured unless he could inlive nit with a little Humour.

write something against Dr. Bentley whi. Arab

I am now trying an Experiment very frequent among modern Authors; which is, to write upon Nothing; When the Subject is utterly exhausted, to let the Pen still move on; by some called, the Ghost of Wit, delighting to walk after the Death of its Body. And, to fay the Truth, there feems to be no Part of Knowledge in fewer Hands, than that of discerning when to have done By the Time that an Author hath written out a Book, he and his Readers are become old Acquaintance, and grow very loth to part: So that I have sometimes known it to be in Writing, as in Visiting, where the Ceremony of taking Leave hath employed more Time than the whole Conversation before. The Conclusion of a Treatile resembles the Conclusion of human Life, which hath sometimes been compared to the End of a Feaft; where few are fatisfied to depart, ut plenus wita conviva: For Men will fit down after the fullest Meal, although it be only to doze or to fleep out the Rest of the Day. this latter, I differ extremely from other Writers; and shall be too proud, if, by all my Labours, I can have any ways contributed to the Repose of Mankind in * Times so turbulent and religion of the total him, it was a dry met of * This was written before the Peace of Ryswick, which was figned in Sept. 1697.

t

0 ıt

1,0

h er

d

c-

at

as ve

n-ife ch

a

le-

he

to

in rit-

my

the

and aiet

oich,

unquiet as these. Neither do I think such an Employment so very alien from the Office of a Wit, as some would suppose. For among a very polite Nation in * Greece there were the same Temples built, and consecrated to Sleep and the Muses, between which two Deities they believed the strictest Friendship was established.

I have one concluding Favour to request of my Reader; that he will not expect to be equally diverted and informed by every Line, or every Page of this Discourse; but give some Allowance to the Author's Spleen, and short Fits or Intervals of Dulness, as well as his own; and lay it seriously to his Conscience, whether, if he were walking the Streets in dirty Weather, or a rainy Day, he would allow it fair Dealing in Folks at their Ease from a Window, to criticise his Gait, and ridicule his Dress at such a Juncture.

In my Disposure of Employments of the Brain, I have thought fit to make Invention the Master, and to give Method and Reason the Office of its Lacqueys. The Cause of this Distribution was, from observing it my particular Case, to be often under a Temptation of being witty upon Occasions, where I could be neither wise nor sound, nor any Thing to the Matter in Hand. And, I am too much a Servant of the modern Way, to neglect any such Opportunities, whatever Pains or Improprieties I may be at to introduce them. For, I have observed, that from a laborious Collection of seven hundred thirty-eight Flowers, and shining Hints of the best modern Authors, digested with great Reading into * Trezenii, Pausan, l. 2.

148 The GONGLUSTON

my Book of Common places, I have not been able, after five Years, to draw, book, or force into common Conversation, any more than a Dozen. Of which Dozen, the one Moiety failed of Success, by being dropped among unfuitable Company; and the other coff me fo many Strains, and Traps, and Ambagas to in-troduce, that I at length relolved to give it over. Now, this Disappointment (to discover a Secret) I must own, gave me the first Hint of fetting up for an Author; and I have lince found among some particular Friends, that it is become a very general Complaint, and hath produced the same Effects upon many others. For, I have remarked many a towardly Word to be wholely neglected or despised in Discourse, which bath passed very importally, with some Consideration and Esteem, after its Preferment and Sanction in Print. But now, since by the Liberty and Encouragement of the Press, I am grown absolute Master of the Occasions and Opportunities, to expose the Talents I have acquired; I already discover, that the Isua of my Observanda, begin to grow too large for the Receipts, Therefore, I shall here paule a while, until I find, by feeling the World's Pulle, and my own, that it will be of absolute Necessity for us both to resume my Pen. L van Ton Lange Ind, I am too much a Serrant of the molern Way, to neglect any such Opportunities, whatever Pains or Improprieties I may be at to introduce them. For, I have observed, that from a laborious Collegion of Grandhundied thirty-cight. Thrusis, and foliably divide of the bast modern Authors, digested with great Reading into my and subsers, digested with great Reading into my

7.148

Plate &

FULL and TRUE

A C C O U N T

BATTLE

Fought, last FRIDAY,

To Landing the felic x (eye)

BETWEEN

to feeling and think an

The ANTIENT and the MODERN

BOOKS

IN

St. JAMES's LIBRARY.

A

SUAL FOR TRACE

A C C O U N T

HIT TO

BATILE

of Forght, late FRIDAY,

DETWEEN

The Auritar and the Morsky

BOOKS

VT

St. JAMES's LIERNEY.

cetion. At length there prearing to E the Quarrel, our Addhor tells us. the aterefaid, and without any Manner of EQOKS 13 St. James's Library, looking but the Maneferint by the Lajuty of For casnot learn to which Side the Victory felt.

B O O O Kylls Since E al Les E Men Re

Weather being in B Here o'T's imberied

RosE ad Araba DadtErrawRum I

Books in the most literal Sense. So when Vist Books in the most literal Sense. So when Vist gil is mentioned, we are not to understand the Poupau of the same Author, of it feems to have been written about the same Time with to have been written about the same Time with the former; I mean, the Year 1607, when the famous Dispute was on Foot about antient and modern Learning. The Controversy took its Rife from an Essay of Sir William Temple's upon that Subject, which was answered by W. Wotton, B. D. with an Appendix by Dr. Bentley, endeavouring to destroy the Credit of Æsop and Phalaris for Authors, whom Sir William Temple had in the Essay before-mentioned highly commended. In that Appendix the Doctor falls hard upon a new Edition of Phalaris, put out by the honourable Charles Boyle (now Earl of * Orrery) to which Mr. Boyle replied at large with great Learning and Wit; and the Doctor voluminously rejoined. In this Dispute, the Town highly resented to see a Person of Sir William Temple's Character and Merits roughly used by the two Reverend Gentlemen aforesaid.

* Father of John Earl of Corke and Orrery.

aforesaid, and without any Manner of Provocation. At length there appearing no End of the Quarrel, our Author tells us, that the BOOKS in St. James's Library, looking upon themselves as Parties principally concerned, took up the Controversy, and came to a decisive Battle; but the Manuscript by the Injury of Fortune or Weather being in several Places impersect, we cannot learn to which Side the Victory fell.

I must warm the Reader to beware of applying to Persons, what is here meant only of Books in the most literal Sense. So when Virgil is mentioned, we are not to understand the Person of a famous Poet called by that Name: but only certain Sheets of Paper; bound up in Leather, containing in Print the Works of famous Difeute was on Foot about antient and medern Learning .- The Controvers'y took its Rise from an Effey of Sir William Temple's upon that Subject, which was uniwered by W. Wotton, B. D. with an Appendix by Dr. Bendey, culearoning to defred the Credit of Allp and Phalaris for Authors, whom Sir William ently had in the Effay before mentioned agay commended. In that Appendix the Dodor falls hard upon a new Edition of Phalans, put out by the honourable Charles Boyle, (now Earl of * Orrery) to which Mr. Boyle replied at large with great Ecarming and Wit; and the Doctor voluminously rejoined. In this Dilpate, the Town highly refented to see a Person of Sir William Temple's Character and Merits roughly used by the two Reverend Gentlemen aforefaid.

1

p

fo

de

Sc

er ba

bri

* Father of John Farl of Corke and Circiy.

that will make it all bubble up into Imperviounce, and he will find no new Sapply. Vit without Knowledge being a Sattlef Dram, which gathers in a Night to the Top, and by a failful Hand may be foon whipped into frate; but once frummed away, a but once frummed away, a but once frummed away, a bat once frum to the state of the source of the source

n

r

r-ne

of

far

me

oit

sili

101 ber.

Dog

larie

(00)

plice inc

pute of S

3007

OF THE

AUTHOR.

SATIRE is a Sort of Glass, wherein Beholders do generally discover every Body's Face but their own; which is the chief Reason for that kind Reception it meets with in the World, and that so very few are offended with it. But, if it should happen otherwise, the Danger is not great; and I have learned from long Experience never to apprehend Mischief from those Understandings, I have been able to provoke: For, Anger and Fury, although they add Strength to the Sinews of the Body, yet are found to relax those of the Mind, and to render all its Efforts feeble and impotent.

There is a Brain that will endure but one Scumming: Let the Owner gather it with Diferetion, and manage his little Stock with Husbandry; but of all Things let him beware of bringing it under the Lash of his Betters; because that that will make it all bubble up into Impertinence, and he will find no new Supply. Wit without Knowledge being a Sort of Cream, which gathers in a Night to the Top, and by a skilful Hand may be soon whipped into Froth; but once scummed away, what appears underneath, will be sit for nothing but to be thrown to the Hogs.

AHTRO

AUTHOR.

ar the public tames cares, to be at time thinks (ATIRE is a Sort of Glass, wherein Belace but their down; which is the chief Reason face but their own; which is the chief Reason for that kind Reception it meets with in the World, and that so very sew are offended with a liver IFA: should happen orderwise, the Danger is not great; and I have learned from long Experience never to apprehend Mischief from those Understandings, I have been able to provoke: For, Anger and Fury, although they add Strength to the Sineur of the Body, vet are sound to relax those of the Mind, and to render all its Essorts seeble and impotent.

There is a Brain that will endure but one Samming: Let the Owner gather it with Differetion, and manage his little Stock with Huthbandry; but of all Things let him beware of bunging it under the Last of his Barren; because

e, utrs

ay .

ed

10

Paci

rot Wo:

nsG

pnol

mont

prorq

add s

anuel

g (0)

The The

eretion bandry

ignin

WOVE

from Vern to floats, that is to fay, from I gove.

TO DATTE WY W DOOLS

A C C O U N T

though we cany allow to be Bretisten a terms Branches of Pride, are containly Treels abd, that civil Brods edic strong the to be an inditedica H T carow that the State is even in the pro condell Pence at the Republick of Deer which in his On H. H.

Bar A as Take To L E

Fought, last FRIDAY, &c.

For, the Sight of Polletion lying in comme reing. The fame Reafining also holds I

WHOEVER examines with due Circumspection into the * annual Records of Time, will find it remarked, that War is the Child of Pride, and Pride the Daughter of Riches. The former of which Assertions may be soon granted; but one cannot so easily subscribe to the latter: For Pride is nearly related to Beggary and Want, either by Father or Mother, and sometimes by both; and, to speak naturally, it very seldom happens among Men to fall out, when all have enough; Invasions usually travelling

* Riches produceth Pride; Pride is War's Ground, &c. Vid. Ephem. de Mary Clarke; opt. Edit.—Now called Wing's Sheet Almanack, and printed by J. Roberts for the Company of Stationers.

from North to South, that is to fay, from Poventy to Plenty. The most antient and natural Grounds of Quarrels are Lust and Avarice; which, al. though we may allow to be Brethren or colla. teral Branches of Pride, are certainly the Is. fues of Want. For, to speak in the Phrase of Writers upon Politicks, we may observe in the Republick of Dogs, which in its Original feems to be an Institution of the many, that the whole State is ever in the profoundest Peace after a full Mcal; and, that civil Broils arise among them when it happens for one great Bone to be feized on by fome leading Dog, who either divides itamong the few, and then it falls to an Oligarchy, or keeps it to himself, and then it runs up to a Trranny. The same Reasoning also holds Place among them, in those Diffentions we behold upon a Turgescency in any of their Females. For, the Right of Possession lying in common (it being impossible to establish a Property in so delicate a Case) Jealousies and Suspicions do so abound, that the whole Commonwealth of that Street is reduced to a manifest State of War, of every Citizen against every Citizen; until some one of more Courage, Conduct, or Fortune than the rest, seizeth and enjoys the Prize : Upon which naturally ariseth Plenty of Heart-burning, and Envy, and Snarling against the happy Dog. Again, if we look upon any of these Republicks engaged in a foreign War either of Invalion or Defence, we shall find the same Reasoning will Serve, as to the Grounds and Occasions of each; and that Poverty, or Want, in some Degree or other, (whether real, or in Opinion, which makes no Alteration in the Case) hath a great Share, as well as Pride, on the Part of the Agberts for the Company of greffor. Now,

8

1 ŀ

Ci

A

C

H

th

th

th an

W

th thi

VC

ho

ho

1-

aſ.

of

he ns

le

ıll

m

on

ng

or

Ty-ace

blo

es.

non

fo

fo

hat

of

me

une

DOU

ing,

Dog.

icks

n or will

ach;

e or hich

great

Ag-

Now,

their own free Grace to to near a Neighborn

Now, whoever will pleafe to take this Scheme and either reduce or adapt it to an intellectual State. or Commonwealth of Learning, will foon difcover the first Ground of Disagreement between the two great Parties at this Time in Arms; and may form just Conclusions upon the Merits of either Cause. But, the Issue or Events of this War are not fo easy to conjecture at; for, the present Quarrel is so instanced by the warm Heads of either Faction, and the Pretentions fomewhere or other to exorbitant, as not to admit the least Overtures of Accommodation. The Quarrel first began, as I have heard it affirmed by an old Dweller in the Neighbourhood, about a small Spot of Ground Aving and being upon one of the two Tops of the Hill Parnaffus; the highest and largest of which had, it feems, been Time out of Mind in quiet Possession of certain Tenants called the Antients, and the other was held by the Moderns. But these, disliking their present Station, fent certain Ambassadors to the Antients. complaining of a great Nullance; how the Heighth of that Part of Parnassus quite spoiled the Prospect of theirs, especially towards the Bast; and therefore, to avoid a War, offered them the Choice of this Alternative; either that the Antients would please to remove themselves and their Effects down to the lower Summity. which the Moderns would graciously surrender to them, and advance in their Place; or effect that the faid Antients will give Leave to the Moderns, to come with Shovels and Mattocks, and level the faid Hill, as low as they shall think it comvenient. To which the Antients made Answer, how little they expected fuch a Message as this from a Colony, whom they had admitted out of their their own free Grace to so near a Neighbourhood. That, as to their own Seat, they were Aborigines of it; and therefore to talk with them of a Removal or Surrender was a Language they did not understand. That, if the Height of the Hill on their Side shortened the Prospect of the Moderns, it was a Difadvantage they could not. help, but defired them to confider, whether that Injury (if it be any) were not largely recompensed by the Shade and Shelter it afforded them. That, as to the levelling or digging down, it was either Folly or Ignorance to propose it, if they did, or did not know, how that Side of the Hill was an entire Rock, which would break their Tools and Hearts without any Damage to itself. That, they would therefore advise the Moderns rather to raise their own Side of the Hill, than dream of pulling down that of the Antients; to the former of which they would not only give Licence, but also largely contribute. All this was rejected by the Moderns with much Indignation, who still insisted upon one of the two Expedients; and fo this Difference broke out into a long and obstinate War; maintained on the one Part by Refolution, and by the Courage of certain Leaders and Allies; but on the other by the Greatness of their Number, upon all Defeats affording continual Recruits. In this Quarrel whole Rivulets of Ink have been exhausted, and the Virulence of both Parties enormoully augmented. Now, it must here be understood, that Ink is the great missive Weapon in all Battles of the Learned, which conveyed through a Sort of Engine, called a Quill, infinite Numbers of these are darted at the Enemy by the valiant on each Side, with equal Skill and Violence, as if it were an Engagement of Parcupines, their

ur-

ere em

hey

the

the

not.

that

em.

it

, if

the

eak

e to

the

the

the ould

atri-

with

e of

ence

ain-

by

but ber,

uits.

been

rties

e be eyed

in-emy l and

Por-

cubines. This malignant Liquor was compounded by the Engineer, who invented it, of two Ingredients, which are Gall and Copperas, by its Bitterness and Venom to fuit in some Degree, as well as to foment, the Genius of the Combatants. And as the Græcians after an Engagement, when they could not agree about the Victory, were wont to fet up Trophies on both Sides, the beaten Party being content to be at the same Expence to keep itself in Countenance, (a laudable and antient Custom, happily revived of late, in the Art of War) so the Learned, after a tharp and bloody Dispute, do on both Sides hang out their Trophies too, which ever comes by the worst. These Trophies have largely inscribed on them the Merits of the Cause; a full impartial Account of such a Battle, and how the Victory fell clearly to the Party that fet them up. They are known to the World under feveral Names; as, Difputes, Arguments, Rejoinders, brief Considerations, Answers, Replies, Remarks, Reflections, Objections, Confutations. For a very few Days they are fixed up in all public Places. either by themselves or their * Representatives, for Passengers to gaze at; from whence the chiefest and largest are removed to certain Magazines, they call Libraries, there to remain in a Quarter purposely assigned them, and from thenceforth begin to be called Books of Controver/y.

In these Books is wonderfully instilled and preserved the Spirit of each Warrior, while he is alive; and after his Death, his Soul transmigrates there to inform them. This at least is the Vol. XX.

* Their Title-Pages.

more common Opinion: But, I believe it is with Libraries, as with other Cometeries; where some Philosophers affirm, that a certain Spirit, which they call Brutum Hominis, hovers over the Monument, until the Body is corrupted, and turns to Dust or to Worms, but then vanisheth or dissolveth : So, we may fay, a restless Spirit haunts over every Book, until Duft or Worms have seized upon it; which to some may happen in a few Days, but to others later; and therefore, Books of Controversy, being of all others haunted by the most disorderly Spirits. have always been confined in a separate Lodge from the rest, and for fear of mutual Violence against each other, it was thought prudent by our Ancestors to bind them to the Peace with frong Iron Chairs. Of which Invention the original Occasion was this: When the Works of Scotus first came out, they were carried to a certain great Library, and had Lodgings appointed them; but this Author was no fooner settled, than he went to visit his Master Aristotle, and there both concerted together to seize Plato by main Force, and turn him out from his antient Station among the Divines, where he had peaceably dwelt near eight hundred Years. The Attempt succeeded, and the two Usurpers have reigned ever since in his Stead: But to maintain Quiet for the future : it was decreed, that all Polemicks of the larger Size should be held fast with a Chain.

By this Expedient the public Peace of Libraries might certainly have been preserved, if a new Species of controversial Books had not arose of late Years, instinct with a most malignant spirit from the war above-mentioned between

The BATTLE of the BOOKS. between the learned about the higher Summity of Parnaffus. and the state of the area.

is

*

in

rs

ed,

12ess

or ay

nd

all

ts, lge

ace by

rith

the

of

er-

ap-

ner tle,

lato

an-

had

The

nave tain

Po-

with ibra-

if a not ma-

oned

ween

When these Books were first admitted into the public Libraries, I remember to have said upon Occasion to several Persons concerned, how I was fure they would create Broils wherever they came, unless a World of Care were taken : And therefore I advised, that the Champions of each Side should be coupled together, or otherwise mixed, that like the Blending of contrary Poifons, their Malignity might be employed among themselves. And, it seems, I was neither an ill Prophet, nor an ill Counfellor; for it was nothing else but the Neglect of this Caution, which gave Occasion to the terrible Fight, that happened on Friday last, between the antient and modern Books in the King's Library. Now, because the Talk of this Battle is so fresh in every Body's Mouth, and the Expectation of the Town so great to be informed in the Particulars: I, being possessed of all Qualifications requisite in an Historian, and retained by neither Party. have refolved to comply with the urgent Importunity of my Friends, by writing down a full impartial Account thereof.

The Guardian of the Regal Library, a Person of great Valour, but chiefly renowned for his * Humanity, had been a fierce Champion for the Moderns; and in an Engagement upon Parnafsus had vowed, with his own Hands, to knock mbou K 20m mil sy down Ibid. Doctor Bentley was then Library-keeper; the two Antients were Phalaris and Æsop.

* The honourable Mr. Boyle in the Preface to his Edition of Phalaris fays, he was refused a Manuscript by the Library-keeper, pro solita humanitate sua, down two of the antient Chiefs, who guarded a small Pass on the superior Rock; but, endeavouring to climb up, was cruelly obstructed by his own unhappy Weight, and Tendency towards his Centre; a Quality to which those of the modern Party are extremely subject; for, being light-headed, they have, in Speculation, a wonderful Agility, and conceive nothing too high for them to mount; but in reducing to Practice, discover a mighty Pressure about their Posteriors and their Heels. Having thus failed in his Design, the disappointed Champion bore cruel Rancour to the Antients, which he resolved to gratify by shewing all Marks of his Favour to the Books of their Adversaries, and lodging them in the fairest Apartments; when at the same Time whatever Book had the Boldness to own itfelf for an Advocate of the Antients, was buried alive in some obscure Corner, and threatened upon the least Displeasure to be turned out of Doors. Besides, it so happened, that about this Time, there was a strange Confusion of Place among all the Books in the Library; for which several Reasons were assigned. Some imputed it to a great heap of learned Duft, which a perverse Wind blew off from a Shelf of Moderns into the Keeper's Eyes. Others affirmed, he had a Humour to pick the Worms out of the Schoolmen, and fwallow them fresh and fasting; whereof some fell upon his Spleen, and some climbed up into his Head, to the great Perturbation of both. And laftly, others maintained, that by walking much in the dark about the Library he had quite lost the Situation of it out of his Head; and therefore in replacing his Books he was apt to mistake, and clap Des Cartes next to Aristotle; poor Plato had got between

The BATTLE of the BOOKS. 163 Hobbes and the Seven Wife Masters, and Virgil was hemmed in with Dryden on one Side, and Withers on the other.

2

11-his ds

he

ng

n-gh

C-

of.

in 2 red

to

em

me

it-

ied ied

of

out

of

for me

ich

10-

ed,

the

ıg;

me

tur-

ed,

Li-

t of

Pooks

rext

reen

obes

Mean while those Books, that were Advocates for the Moderns, chose out one from among them to make a Progress through the whole Library, examine the Number and Strength of their Party, and concert their Affairs. This Messenger performed all Things very industriously, and brought back with him a List of their Forces, in all sifty thousand, consisting chiefly of Light Horse, beavy-armed Foot, and Mercenaries: Whereof the Foot were in general but forrily armed, and worse clad; their Horses large, but extremely out of Case and Heart; however, some few, by trading among the Antients, had furnished themselves tolerably enough.

While Things were in this Ferment, Discord grew extremely high, hot Words passed on both Sides, and ill Blood was plentifully bred. Here a folitary Antient, squeezed up among a whole Shelf of Moderns, offered fairly to dispute the Case, and to prove by manifest Reason, that the Priority was due to them from long Possession, and in regard of their Prudence, Antiquity, and above all their great Merits towards the Moderns. But these denied the Premisses, and seemed very much to wonder, how the Antients could pretend to infift upon their Antiquity, when it was to plain (if they went to that) that the Moderns. were much the more * antient of the two. As for any Obligations they owed to the Antients, they renounced them all. "It is true (faid they) "we are informed, some few of our Party " have been so mean to borrow their Subsistence * According to the modern paradox.

"from you; but the rest, infinitely the greater Number (and especially we French and English) were so far from stooping to so base an Example, that there never passed, until this very Hour, six Words between us. For, our Horses were of our own Breeding, our Arms of our own Forging, and our Cloaths of our own Cutting out and Sewing." Plato was by Chance upon the next Shelf, and observing those that spoke to be in the ragged Plight mentioned a while ago; their fades lean and soundered, their Weapons of rotten Wood, their Armour rusty, and nothing but Rags underneath; he laughed loud, and in his pleasant Way, swore, by G-, he believed them.

Now, the Moderns had not proceeded in their late Negotiation with Secrecy enough to escape the Notice of the Enemy. For those Advocates, who had begun the Quarrel, by setting first on Foot the Dispute of Precedency, talked so loud of coming to a Battle, that * Temple happened to overhear them, and gave immediate Intelligence to the Antients; who thereupon drew up their scattered Troops together, resolving to act upon the Desensive: Upon which several of the Moderns sted over to their Party, and among the rest Temple himself. This Temple having been educated, and long conversed among the Antients, was of all the Moderns their greatest Favourite, and became their greatest Champion.

Things were at this Crisis, when a material Accident fell out. For, upon the highest Corner

* Sir William Temple, Bart.

ner of a large Window there dwelt a certain Spider, swollen up to the first Magnitude, by the Destruction of infinite Numbers of Flies, whose Spoils lay scattered before the Gates of his Palace, like human Bones before the Cave of some Giant. The Avenues to his Castle were guarded with Turnpikes, Palisadoes, all after the modern way of Fortification. After you had passed several Courts, you came to the Centre, wherein you might behold the Constable himself in his own Lodgings, which had Windows fronting to each Avenue, and Ports to fally out upon all Occasions of Prey or Defence. In this Mansion he had for some Time dwelt in Peace and Plenty, without Danger to his Person by Swallows from above, or to his Palace by Brooms from below; when it was the Pleasure of Fortune to conduct thither a wandering Bee, to whose Curiofity a broken Pane in the Glass had discovered itself; and in he went; where expatiating a while, he at last happened to alight upon one of the outward Walls of the Spider's Citadel; which yielding to the unequal Weight, funk down to the very Foundation. Thrice he endeavoured to force his Passage, and thrice the Centre shook. The Spider within, feeling the terrible Convulsion, supposed at first, that Nature was approaching to her final Dissolution; or else, that Beelzebub, with all his Legions, was come to revenge the Death of many thoulands of his Subjects, whom his Enemy had flain and devour-However, he at length valiantly resolved to issue forth, and meet his Fate. Mean while the Bee had acquitted himself of his Toils, and posted securely at some Distance, was employed. in cleanfing his Wings, and disengaging them: from the ragged Remnants of the Cobweb. By K 4 this the nch fo

led, us. ing, our

g."
nd ged

er-

eir

on ud

up act

he he en

In-

ial r-

cr

this Time the Spider was adventured out, when . beholding the Chasms, the Ruins, and Dilapidations of his Fortress, he was very near at his Wirs End; he stormed and swore like a Madman, and swelled until he was ready to burst. At length casting his Eye upon the Bee, and wisely gathering Caufes from Events, (for they knew each other by Sight) " A Plague split you, (said " he) for a giddy Son of a Whore; is it you, " with a Vengeance, that have made this Litter " here? Could not you look before you, and " be d-n'd? Do you think I have nothing elfe to do (in the Devil's Name) but to mend " and repair after your Arle?" " Good Words, " Friend, (said the Bee, having now pruned " himself, and being disposed to droll) I'll give " you my Hand and Word to come near your "Kennel no more: I was never in such a con-" founded Pickle since I was born." "Sirrah, (replied the Spider) if it were not for breaking " an old Custom in our Family, never to stir " abroad against an Enemy, I should come and " teach you better Manners." " I pray have Patience, (faid the Bee) or you will spend your Substance, and for aught I see, you may " fland in need of it all towards the Repair of " your House." "Rogue, Rogue, (replied " the Spider) yet methinks you should have " more Respect to a Person, whom all the "World allows to be so much your Betters." " By my Troth, (faid the Bee) the Comparison will amount to a very good Jest; and you will do me a Favour to let me know the Rea-" fons, that all the World is pleased to use in " so hopeful a Dispute." At this the Spider, having swelled himself into the Size and Posture of a Disputant, began his Argument in the true Spirit

Spirit of Controversy, with Resolution to be heartily scurrilous and angry, to urge on his own Reasons without the least Regard to the Answers or Objections of his Opposite; and fully predetermined in his Mind against all Conviction.

en ·

bis

ıd-

At

ely

w

u.

er

nd

ng

1d

s, ed re

ur 1-

١,

d

d

f

d

e

e

1

1

"Not to disparage myself (said he) by the "Comparison with such a Rascal; what art thou but a Vagabond without House or Home, without Stock or Inheritance; born to no Possession of your own but a Pair of Wings and a Drone-pipe. Your Livelihood is an universal Plunder upon Nature; a Free-booter over Fields and Gardens; and for the Sake of Stealing, will rob a Nettle as readily as a Violet. Whereas I am a domestic Animal, surnished with a native Stock within my-felf. This large Castle (to shew my Improvements in the Mathematicks) is all built with my own Hands, and the Materials extracted altogether out of my own Person."

" I am glad, (answered the Bee) to hear you grant at least; that I am come honestly by. my Wings and my Voice; for then, it feems, " I am obliged to Heaven alone for my Flights " and my Musick; and Providence would never " have bestowed on me two such Gifts without " designing them for the noblest Ends. I wisit in-" deed all the Flowers and Blossoms of the Field. " and Garden; but whatever I collect from thence, enriches myself, without the least Injury to their " Beauty, their Smell, or their Tafte. Now, " for you and your Skill in Architecture and " other Mathematicks I have little to fay: In " that Building of yours there might, for aught "I know, have been Labour and Method' " enough; K.5.

fo

CO

01

b

b

" enough; but by woful Experience for us both it is plain, the Materials are naught; and "I hope, you will henceforth take Warning, " and consider Duration and Matter, as well as " Method and Art. You boast indeed of being " obliged to no other Creature, but of drawing and spinning out all from yourself; that is to say, if we may judge of the Liquor in the "Vessel by what issues out, you possels a good of plentiful Store of Dirt and Poison in your " Breast; and, although I would by no Means " lessen or disparage your genuine Stock of ei-" ther; yet I doubt you are somewhat obliged " for an Increase of both to a little foreign Af-" sistance. Your inherent Portion of Dirt does " not fail of Acquisitions by Sweepings exhaled " from below; and one Insect furnishes you " with a Share of Poison to destroy another: " So that in short the Question comes all to this, "whether is the nobler Being of the two, that " which by a lazy Contemplation of four Inches " round, by an over-weening Pride, feeding " and engendering on itself, turns all into Ex-" crement and Venom; producing nothing at " all but Fly-bane and a Cobweb; or that, which by an universal Range, with long " Search, much Study, true Judgment, and " Distinction of Things, brings home Honey " and Wax ?"

This Dispute was managed with such Eagerness, Clamour, and Warmth, that the two Parties of Books in Arms below stood silent a while, waiting in Suspense what would be the Issue; which was not long undetermined: For the Bu, grown impatient at so much Loss of Time, fled strait away to a Bed of Roses, without looking The BATTLE of the BOOKS. 169, for a Reply; and left the Spider, like an Orator, collected in himself, and just prepared to burst, out.

and ing,

l as ving

s to

the ood

our ei-

ged Af-

oes

led you

er:

his,

hes

ing

at

at,

ong

ind ley

er-

ar-

ile,

e;

led

ng

for

It happened upon this Emergency, that Æfopbroke Silence first. He had been of late most barbarously treated by a strange Effect of the Regent's Humanity *, who had torn off his Title-Page, forely defaced one half of his Leaves, and chained him fast among a Shelf of Moderns: Where foon discovering how high the Quarrel was like to proceed, he tried all his Arts, and turned himself to a thousand Forms. At length in the borrowed Shape of an Ass, the Regent mistook him for a Modern; by which Means he had Time and Opportunity to escape to the Antients, just when the Spider and the Bee were enteringinto their Contest; to which he gave his Attention with a World of Pleasure, and, when it was ended, swore in the loudest Key, that in all his Life he had never known two Cases so parallel and adapt to each other, as that in the Window, and this upon the Shelves. "The Dif-" putants (faid he) have admirably managed; " the Dispute between them, have taken in the " full Strength of all that is to be faid on both " Sides, and exhausted the Substance of every " Argument pro and con. It is but to adjust the " Reasonings of both to the present Quarrel, " then to compare and apply the Labours and " the Fruits of each, as the Bea has learnedly " deduced them; and we shall find the Conclu-" sion fall plain and close upon the Moderns and "Us. For, pray Gentlemen, was ever any " Thing * Bentley denied the Antiquity of Ælop: See Note, p. 161.

"Thing so modern as the Spider in his Air, his Turns, and his Paradoxes? He argues in the Behalf of You his Brethren, and himself. " with many Boastings of his native Stock, and " great Genius; that he spins and spits wholely " from himself, and scorns to own any Obli-" gation or Assistance from without. Then he " displays to you his great Skill in Architecture, " and Improvement in the Mathematicks. To of all this the Bee, as an Advocate retained by us the Antients, thinks fit to answer; that if " one may judge of the great Genius or Inventions of the Moderns by what they have " produced, you will hardly have Countenance to bear you out in boasting of either. Erest your Schemes with as much Method and Skill " as you please; yet if the Materials be nothing " but Dirt, spun out of your own Entrails (the " Guts of modern Brains) the Edifice will con-" clude at last in a Cobweb; the Duration of " which, like that of other Spiders Webs, may " be imputed to their being forgotten, or neg-" lefted, or hid in a Corner. For any Thing " else of Genuine, that the Moderns may pre-" tend to, I cannot recollect; unless it be a " large Vein of Wrangling and Satire, much of " a Nature and Substance with the Spider's Poion; which, however, they pretend to spit " wholely out of themselves, is improved by " the same Arts, by feeding upon the Infects and " Vermin of the Age. As for Us, the Antients, " we are content with the Bee, to pretend to " nothing of our own, beyond our Wings and " our Voice; that is to fay, our Flights and our " Language. For the rest, whatever we have " got, has been by infinite Labour and Search, " and ranging through every Corner of Nature.

The Difference is, that, instead of Dirt and

" Poison, we have rather chosen to fill our Hives with Honey and Wax, thus furnishing Man" kind with the two noblest of Things,

" which are Sweetness and Light."

is

ie

f, id

ly i-

e,

if

n-

ve

CE

क्ष

ill

ng

he n-

of

ay

ng e-

a

of 01-

pit

by

ind

its,

to

ind

our ave ch, re.

he

It is wonderful to conceive the Tumult arisen among the Books upon the Close of this long Descant of Æsop: Both Parties took the Hint. and heightened their Animofities fo on a sudden. that they resolved it should come to a Battle. Immediately the two main Bodies withdrew under their several Ensigns to the farther Parts of the Library, and there entered into Cabals and Consults upon the present Emergency. Moderns were in very warm Debates upon the Choice of their Leaders, and nothing less than the Fear impending from the Enemies, could have kept them from Mutinies upon this Occafion. The Difference was greatest among the Horse, where every private Trooper pretended to the chief Command, from Tasso and Milton. to Dryden and Withers. The Light-horse were commanded by Cowley and * Despreaux. There came the Bow-men under their valiant Leaders, Des Cartes, Gassendi, and Hobbes, whose Strength was such, that they could shoot their Arrows beyond the Atmosphere, never to fall down again, but turn like that of Evander. into Meteors, or like a Cannon-ball, into Stars. Paracelsus brought a Squadron of Stink-Pot-Flingers from the fnowy Mountains of Rhætia. There came a vast Body of Dragoons, of different Nations, under the Leading of Harvey * their great Aga: Part armed with Scythes, the Weapons of Death; Part with Lances and long Knives, all steeped in Poison; Part shot Bullets of a most malignant Nature, and used white Powder, which infallibly killed without Report. There came several Bodies of heavy-armed Foot. all Mercenaries, under the Enfigns of Guicciardine, Davila, Polydore, Virgil, Buchanan, Mariana, Camden, and others. The Engineers were commanded by Regiomontanus and Wilkins. The rest were a confused Multitude, led by Scotus, Aquinas, and Bellarmine; of mighty Bulk and Stature, but without either Arms, Courage, or Discipline. In the last Place, came infinite Swarms of + Calones, a disorderly Rout led by L'Estrange; Rogues and Raggamussins that follow the Camp for nothing but Plunder, all without I Coats to cover them.

* More commonly known by the Name of Boilean.

The Army of the Antients was much fewer in Number; Homer led the Horse, and Pindar the Light-Horse; Euclid was chief Engineer; Plato and * Dr. Harvey, who discovered the Circulation of the Blood, a Discovery much insisted on by the Advocates for the Moderns, and excepted against as false by Sir William Temple, in his Effay, p. 44, 45.

† Calones. By calling this disorderly Rout Calones the Author points both his Satire and Contempt against all Sorts of mercenary Scribblers, who write as they are commanded by the Leaders and Patrons of Sedition, Faction, Corruption, and every evil Work: They are stiled Calones because they are the meanest and most despicable of all Writers, as the Calones, whether belonging to the Army or private Families, were the meanest of all Slaves or Servants whatsoever.

† These are Pamphlets which are not bound or covered.

,

y

e ut

ns

r,

in

he ato

and

the

ates Sir

lones

ainst

they Sedi-ork : t and ether.

were

r co-

All Things violently tending to a decisive Battle, Fame, who much frequented, and had a large Apartment formerly assigned her in the Regal Library, fled up strait to Jupiter, to whom she delivered a faithful Account of all that passed between the two Parties below; for, among the Gods, she always tells Truth. Jove in great Concern, convokes a Council in the milky Way. The Senate affembled, he declares the Occasion of convening them; a bloody Battle just impendent between two mighty Armies of antient and modern Creatures, called Books, wherein the celestial Interest was but too deeply concerned. Momus, the Patron of the Moderns, made an excellent Speech in their Favour, which was answered by Pallas, the Protectress of the Antients. The Assembly was divided in their Affections, when Jupiter commanded the Book of Fate to be laid before him. Immediately were brought by Mercury three large Volumes in Folio, containing Memoirs of all Things past, present, and to come. The Clasps were of Silver, double gilt, the Covers of celestial Turkey Leather, and the Paper such as here on Earth might almost pass for Vellum. Jupiter having silently read the Decree, would communicate the Import to none, but prefently shut up the Book.

Without the Doors of this Affembly there attended a vast Number of light, nimble Gods, menial Servants to Jupiter: These are his ministering Instruments in all Affairs below. They travel travel in a Caravan more or less together, and are fastened to each other, like a Link of Galley. Slaves, by a light Chain which passeth from them to Jupiter's great Toe: And yet, in receiving or delivering a Message, they may never approach above the lowest Step of his Throne, where he and they whisper to each other through a long These Deities are called by hollow Trunk. mortal Men Accidents or Events; but the Gods call them Second Causes. Jupiter having delivered his Message to a certain Number of these Divinities, they flew immediately down to the Pinnacle of the Regal Library, and, confulting a few Minutes, entered unseen, and disposed the Parties according to their Orders.

Mean while, Momus fearing the worst, and calling to Mind an antient Prophecy, which bore no very good Face to his Children the Moderns, bent his Flight to the Region of a malignant Deity, called Criticism. She dwelt on the Top of a fnowy Mountain in Nova Zembla. There Momus found her extended in her Den upon the Spoils of numberless Volumes, half devoured. At her right Hand fat Ignorance, her Father and Husband, blind with Age; at her left, Pride, her Mother, dressing her up in the Scraps of Paper herself had torn. There was Opinion, her Sifter, light of Foot, hoodwinked, and headstrong, yet giddy, and perpetually turning. About her played her Children, Noise and Impudence, Dulness and Vanity, Positiveness, Pedantry, and Ill-Manners. The Goddess herself had Claws like a Cat; her Head, and Ears, and Voice, refembled those of an As; her. Teeth fallen out before; her Eyes turned inward, as if the looked only upon herself; her Diet was the overflowing

66

"

n

e

g

y ls

j.

ſe:

e

g

re .

ts,

nt

op.

re

he

ed.

nd

19f

per.

Sif-

ng,

her

ul-

Ill-

ike

m-

beked

ing

" Party."

of her own Gall; her Spleen was fo large, as to fland prominent, like a Dug of the first Rate, nor wanted Excrescencies in the Form of Teats, at which a Crew of ugly Monsters were greedily fucking; and, what is wonderful to conceive, the Bulk of Spleen increased faster than the Sucking could diminish it. Goddess (faid " Momus) can you sit idly here, while our de-" vout Worshippers the Moderns, are this Mi-" nute entering into a cruel Battle, and perhaps " now lying under the Swords of their Enemies, " who then hereafter will ever facrifice, or build " Altars to our Divinities? Hafte therefore to " the British Isle, and, if possible, prevent the " their Destruction; while I make Factions " among the Gods, and gain them over to our Momus, having thus delivered himfelf, flaid not for an Answer, but left the Goddess to her own Resentment. Up she rose in a Rage, and, as it is the Form upon such Occasions began a Soliloquy: " It is I (faid she) who give Wis-" dom to Infants and Idiots; by me Children " grow wifer than their Parents; by me Beaux " become Politicians, and School-boys Judges of " Philosophy; by me Sophisters debate, and " conclude upon the Depths of Knowledge; " and Coffee-house Wits, inflinct by me, can " correct an Author's Style, and display his mi-" nutest Errors, without understanding a Sylla-" ble of his Matter or his Language; by me " Striplings spend their Judgment, as they do " their Estates, before it comes into their Hands. " It is I, who have deposed Wit and Knowledge " from their Empire over Poetry, and advanced "myself in their Stead. And shall a few upfart Antients dare oppose me?—But come, my aged Parent, and you my Children dear, and thou, my beauteous Sister; let us ascend my

"Chariot, and haste to assist our devout Ma"derns, who are now sacrificing to us a Heca-

"tomb, as I perceive by that grateful Smell which from thence reaches my Nostrils."

The Goddess and her Train, having mounted the Chariot, which was drawn by tame Geese, slew over infinite Regions, shedding her Instuence in due Places, until at length she arrived at her beloved Island of Britain; but in hovering over its Metropolis, what Blessings did she not let fall upon her Seminaries of Gresham and Covent-Garden *? and now she reached the fatal Plain of St. James's Plain, at what Time the two Armies were upon the Point to engage; where, entering with all her Caravan unseen, and landing upon a Case of Shelves, now desert, but once inhabited by a Colony of Virtuosos, she staid a while to observe the posture of both armies.

But here the tender Cares of a Mother began to fill her Thoughts, and move in her Breast: For, at the Head of a Troop of modern Bowmen, she cast her Eyes upon her Son Wotton; to whom the Fates had assigned a very short Thread. Wotten, a young Hero, whom an unknown Father of mortal Race, begot by stolen Embraces with this Goddess. He was the Darling of his Mother above all her Children, and she resolved to go and comfort him. But first, according to the good old Custom of Deities, she cast about to change her Shape, for fear the Divinity of her Countenance might dazzle his mortal Sight, and

* See the Notes, p. LL.

ny

nd

ny

10-ca-ell

ted

ese,

ace.

her

ver

fall

ent-

lain

two ere,

and-

but

Staid

S.

. . .

egan

east:

men,

; to read.

n Fa-

races f his olved ing to about

ity of Sight,

and

and overcharge the rest of his Senses. She therefore gathered up her Person into an Octavo Compass: Her Body grew white and arid, and fplit in Pieces with Dryness, the thick turned into Pasteboard, and the thin into Paper, upon which her Parents and Children artfully strewed a black Juice or Decoction of Gall and Soot in Form of Letters; her Head, and Voice, and Spleen, kept their primitive Form; and that, which before was a Cover of Skin, did still continue fo. In this Guise she marched on towards the Moderns, undistinguishable in Shape and Dress from the divine Bentley, Wotton's dearest " Brave Wotton (faid the Goddess) Friend. " why do our Troops stand idle here to " fpend their present Vigour, and Opportunity " of this Day? Away, let us hafte to the Ge-" nerals, and advise to give the Onset im-" mediately." Having spoke thus, she took the ugliest of her Monsters, full glutted from her Spleen, and flung it invisibly into his Mouth, which, flying straight up into his Head, squeezed out his Eye-balls, gave him a distorted Look, and half overturned his Brain. Then the privately ordered two of her beloved Children, Dulness and Ill-Manners, closely to attend his Person in all Encounters. Having thus accoutred him, she vanished in a Mist, and the Hero perceived it was the Goddess his Mother.

The destined Hour of Fate being now arrived, the Fight began; whereof, before I dare venture to make a particular Description, I must, after the Example of other Authors, petition for an hundred Tongues, and Mouths, and Hands, and Pens, which would all be too little to perform so immense a Work. Say, Goddess, that presidest presidest over History, who it was that first advanced in the Field of Battle. Paracelsus, at the Head of his Dragoons, observing Galen in the adverse Wing, darted his Javelin with a mighty Force, which the brave Antient received upon his Shield, the Point breaking in the second Fold.

They bore the wounded Aga + on their Shield to his Chariot

Defunt

Then Aristotle observing Bacon advance with a furious Mien, drew his Bow to the Head, and let fly his Arrow, which missed the valiant Modern, and went hizzing over his Head; but Des Cartes it hit; the Steel Point quickly found a Desett in his Head Piece; it pierced the Leather and the Pasteboard, and went in at his right Eye. The Torture of the Pain turned the valiant Bowman round, until Death like a Star of superior Influence, drew him into his own Vortex.

when Homer appeared at the Head of the Cavalry, mounted on a furious Horse, with Disficulty managed by the Rider himself but which no other Mortal durst approach: He rode among the Enemy's Ranks, and bore down all before him. Say, Goddess, whom he slew first, and whom † Dr. Harvey, see the Note, p. 172. It was not thought proper to name his Antagonist, but only to intimate, that he was wounded; other Moderns are spared by the Hiatus that follows, probably for similar Reasons.

ad-

, at n in h a

ived

e fe-

nield

Sin

with

and

Mo-

Des

nd a ther

Eye.

liant upe-

box

iatus

4S.

Ca-

Dif-

hich

nong him.

hom

he 15311 s not

ly to s are

milar

he flew last. First * Gondibert advanced against him, clad in heavy Armour, and mounted on a staid fober Gelding, not so famed for his Speed. as his Docility in kneeling, whenever his Rider would mount or alight. He had made a Vow to Pallas, that he would never leave the Field, until he had spoiled + Homer of his Armour; Madman, who had never once feen the Wearer, nor understood his Strength! Him Homer overthrew Horse and Man to the Ground, there to be trampled and choaked in the Dirt. Then with a trampled and choaked in the Dirt. long Spear, he flew Denham, a stout Modern, who from his ‡ Father's Side derived his Lineage from Apollo, but his Mother was of mortal Race. He fell, and bit the Earth. The Celef tial Part Apollo took, and made it a Star, but the Terrestial lay wallowing upon the Ground. Then Homer slew & Wesley with a Kick of his Horse's Heel. He took Perrault by mighty Force out of his Saddle, then hurled him at Fontenelle, with the same Blow dashing out both their Brains.

On the left Wing of the Horse, Virgil appeared in shining Armour, compleatly sitted to his Body: He was mounted on a dapple grey Steed, the Slowness of whose Pace was an Effect of the highest Mettle and Vigour. He cast his Eye on the adverse Wing, with a Desire to find * An Heroic Poem by Sir William Davenant, in Stanzas of four Lines.

† Vid. Homer.

‡ Sir John Denham's Poems are very unequal, extremely good, and very indifferent; so, that his Detractors said, he was not the real Author of Copeer's-Hill.

§ Mr. Wesley, who wrote the Life of Christ in Verse, &c.

find an Object worthy of his Valour, when behold, upon a forrel Gelding of a monstrous Size, appeared a Foe issuing from among the thickest of the Enemy's Squadrons; but his Speed was less than his Noise; for his Horse. old and lean, spent the Dregs of hi Strength in a high Trot, which, although it made flow Advances, yet caused a loud Clashing of his Armour, terrible to hear. The two Cavaliers had now approached within the Throw of a Lance, when the Stranger defired a Parley, and lifting up the Vizor of his Helmet, a Face hardly appeared from within, which, after a Paule, was known for that of the renowned Dryden. The brave Antient, suddenly started, as one posfessed with Surprize and Disappointment together: For the Helmet was nine Times too large for the Head, which appeared situate far in the hinder Part, even like the Lady in a Lobster, or like a Mouse under a Canopy of State, or like a shrivell'd Beau from within the Penthouse of a modern Periwig: And the Voice was suited to the Visage, sounding weak and remote. Dryden in a long Harangue foothed up the good Antient, called him Father; and by a large Deduction of Genealogies made it plainly appear, that they were nearly related. Then he humbly proposed an Exchange of Armour, as a lasting Mark of Hospitality between them. Virgil consented (for the Goddess Diffidence came unseen, and cast a Mist before his Eyes) although his was of * Gold, and cost a hundred Beeves, the other's but of rusty Iron. However, this glittering Armour became the Modern yet worse than his own. Then they agreed to exchange Horles; The BTATLE of the BOOKS. 181 but, when it came to the Trial, Dryden was afraid, and utterly unable to mount.

The corresponding march as the

. but will elim with a certain i

Alter biatus in MS.

e-

us he nis

ſe,

in wo

his

ers

fa

and

rd-

ule.

len.

oof-

ner:

the oder

like te a

of a d to vden

tient, in of

they

rk of

ented d cast

as of ther's

n his orles;

but,

Lucan appeared upon a fiery Horse of admirable Shape, but head-firong, bearing the Rider where he lift over the Field; he made a mighty Slaughter among the Enemy's Horse; which Destruction to stop, Blackmore a famous Modern (but one of the Mercenaries) strenuously opposed himself, and darted his Javelin with a strong Hand, which, falling short of its Mark, stuck deep in the Earth. Then Lucan threw a Lance, but Æfculapius came unseen, and turned off the Point. " * Brave Modern, (faid Lucan,) I perceive " some God protects you, for never did my " Arm so deceive me before: But what Mortal " can contend with a God? Therefore, let us " fight no longer, but present Gifts to each other." Lucan then bestowed the Modern a Pair of Spers, and Blackmore gave Lucan a Bridle.

Creech: But the Goddess Dulness took a Gloud, formed into the Shape of Horace, armed and mounted, and placed in a flying Posture before him. Glad was the Cavalier to begin a Combat with a flying Foe, and pursued the Image, threatening loud; until at last it led him to the peaceful Bower of his Father Ogleby, by whom he was difarmed, and affigned to his Repole.

Then

Pauca de-

His Skill as a Physician atoned for his Dulnese as a Poet.

Then Pindar flew _____, and _____, and Oldham, and -, and * Afra the Amazon, light of Foot; never advancing in a direct Line, but wheeling with incredible Agility and Force. he made a terrible Slaughter among the Enemy's Light-harfe. Him when Cowley observed, his generous Heart burnt within him, and he advanced against the fierce Antient, imitating his Address, his Pace, and his Career, as well as the Vigour of his Horse, and his own Skill would allow. When the two Cavaliers had approached within the Length of three Javelins, first Cowley threw a Lance, which missed Pindar, and passing into the Enemy's Ranks fell ineffectual to the Ground. Then Pindar darted a Javelin fo large and weighty, that scarce a dozen Cavaliers, as Cavaliers are in our degenerate Days, could raise it from the Ground; yet he threw it with Ease, and it went by an unerring Hand, finging through the Air; nor could the Modern have avoided present Death, if he had not luckily opposed the Shield, that had been given him by + Venus. And now both Heroes drew their Swords, but the Modern was fo agast and disordered, that he knew not where he was; his Shield dropped from his Hands; thrice he fled, and thrice he could not escape; at last he turned, and lifting up his Hands in the Posture of a Suppliant: "Godlike Pindar (said he) spare my Life, and possels my Horse with these Arms. " besides the Ransom which my Friends will " give, when they hear I am alive, and your Prisoner.

* Mrs. Afra Behn, Author of many Plays, Novels and Poems. t His Poem called the Miftres.

The BATTLE of the BOOKS. 182 " Prisoner." " Dog, (said Pindar,) let your " Ransom stay with your Friends; but your " Carcafe shall be left for the Fowls of the fir, " and the Beafts of the Field." With that he raifed his Sword, and with a mighty Stroke cleft the wretched Modern in twain, the Sword pursuing the Blow; and one half lay panting onthe Ground, to be trod in Pieces by the Horses Feet, the other half was borne by the affrighted Steed through the Field. This * Venus took, washed it feven Times in Ambrosia, then struck it thrice with a Sprig of Amaramb; upon which the Leather grew round and foft, and the Leaves turned into Feathers; and being gilded before, continued gilded still; fo it became a Dove, and the harneffed is to her Chariot.

> Hiatus valde deflendus in MS.

Day being far spent, and the numerous Forces of the Moderns half inclining to a Retreat, there issued forth from a Squadron of their heavy-armed Foot † a Captain, whose Name was Bentley, the Vok. XX.

* I do not approve the Author's Judgment in this, for I think Cowley's Pindaricks are much preferable to his Miftress.

It may however be considered that Cowley's Pindaricks were but Copies; of which Pindar was the Original; before Pindar therefore his Pindaricks might fall; and his Mistress be preserved as properly his own.

The Episode of Bentley and Wotton.

As the Account of the Battle of the Books is an allegorical Representation of Sir William Temple's Essay, in which the Antients are opposed to the Moderns, the Account of Bentley and Wotton is called an Episode, and their Intrusion represented as an under Action.

and zon, ine, rce, ny's his

the ould ched

ad-

his

and Aual velin

avaays, wit

uckhim

their lifor-

his fled,

Sup-

rms.

your oner.

Novels

1209

most deformed of all the Moderns; tall but without Shape or Comeliness; large, but without Strength or Proportion. His Armour was patched up of a thousand incoherent Pieces; and the Sound of it, as he marched, was loud and dry, like that made by the the Fall of a Sheet of Lead, which an Etesian Wind bloweth suddenly down from the Roof of some Steeple. His Helmet was of old rufty Iron, but the Vizor was Brass, which, tainted by his Breath, corrupted into Copperas. nor wanted Gall from the same Fountain; so that, whenever provoked by Anger or Labour, an atramentous Quality, of most malignant Nature, was seen to distil from his Lips. In his * right Hand he grasped a Flail, and (that he might never be unprovided of an offensive Weapon) a Vessel full of Ordure in his left. Thus compleatly armed, he advanced with a flow and heavy Pace, where the modern Chiefs were holding a Confult upon the Sum of Things; who, as he came onwards, laughed to behold his crooked Leg and hump Shoulder, which his Boot and Armour vainly endeavouring to hide, were forced to comply with and expole. The Generals made Use of him for his Talent of Railing; which, kept within Government, proved frequently of great Service to their Cause, but at other Times did more Mischief than Good; for at the least Touch of Offence, and often without any at all, he would, like a wounded Elephant, convert it against his Leaders. Such at this Juncture was the Dispofition of Bentley, grieved to fee the Enemy pre-at Patence, they toight perceive two mining and , and as sort gri L'2 tremit. Bentley the Owners not for off in a professed bloop.

* The Person here spoken of, is famous for letting fly at every Body without Distinction, and using mean and foul Scurrilities.

vail

tting

mean

olin I

* Vid. Homer. de Therfite.

Bentley durst not reply; but, balf choaked with Spleen and Rage, withdrew in full Refolution of performing some great Atchievement. With him for his Aid and Companion he took his beloved Worton; resolving, by Policy or Surprize, to attempt some neglected Quarter of the Antients Army. They began their March over Carcasses of their slaughtered Friends; then to the Right of their own Forces; then wheeling Northward, until they came to Aldrovandus's Tomb, which they passed on the Side of the declining Sun. And now they arrived with Fear towards the Enemy's Out-guards; looking about, if happily they might fpy the Quarters of the Wounded, or some straggling Sleepers, unarmed, and remote from the rest: As when two mungrel Curs, whom native Greediness, and domestic Want, provoke and join in Partnership, although fearful, nightly to invade the Folds of some rich Grazier: They, with Tails depressed, and lolling Tongues, creep foft and flow; mean while the conscious Moon, now in her Zenith, on their guilty Heads darteth perpendicular Rays; nor dare they bark, although much provoked at her refulgent Visage, whether seen in Puddle by Reflection, or in Sphere direct; but one furveys the Region round, while the other scouts the Plain, if haply, to discover at Distance from the Flock, some Carcase half devoured, the Refuse of gorged Wolves, or orningus Ravens. So marched this lovely loving Pair of Friends, nor with less Fear and Circumspection; when, at Distance, they might perceive two shining Suits of Armour, hanging upon an Oak, and the Owners not far off in a profound Sleep. The two Friends drew Lots, and the purliing sed.

to

nt.

ook

or

of

rch

ien

ect-

15'5

the ear

ing

of un-

Wo

do-

ip,

of

ed,

ean on

75 L

ked

die ur-

uts

nce

the

ens.

ds,

en,

ing

and

ep. ing

ot

of this Adventure fell to Bentley; on he went, and in his Van Confusion and Amaze; while Horror and Affright brought up the Rear. As he came near, behold two Heroes of the Antients Army, Phalaris and Æsop, lay fast asleep: Bentley would fain have dispatched them both, and stealing close, aimed his Flail at Phalaris's Breast. But then the Goddels Affright interpoling, caught the Modern in her icy Arms, and dragged him from the Danger she forelaw; both the dormant Heroes happened to turn at the same Instant, although foundly fleeping and bufy in a Dream. * For Phalaris was just that Minute dreaming, how a most vile Poetaster had lampooned him, and how he had got him roaring in his Bull. And Esop dreamed, that, as he and the Antient Chiefs were lying on the Ground, a wild Ass broke loofe, ran about, trampling and kicking, and dunging in their Faces. Bentley leaving the two-Heroes afleep, feized on both their Armours, and withdrew in Quest of his darling Wotton.

He in the mean Time had wandered long in Search of some Enterprize, until at length he arrived at a fmall Rivulet, that iffued from a fountain hard by, called, in the Language of mortal Men, Helicon. Here he stopped, and parched with Thirst, resolved to allay it in this limpid Stream. Thrice with profane Hands he essayed to raise the Water to his Lips, and thrice it flipped all through his Fingers. Then he stooped prone on his Breast, but e'er his Mouth had kiffed the liquid Crystal, Apollo came, and, in the Channel, held his Shield between the Mo-

B 3 S VO MAL dern

This is according to Homer, who tells the Dreams of those who were killed in their Sleep.

dern and the Fountain, so that he drew up nothing but Mud. For although no Fountain on Earth can compare with the Clearness of Helicon, yet there lies at Bottom a thick Sediment of Slime and Mud; for so Apollo begged of Jupiter, as a Punishment to those who durst attempt to taste it with unhallowed Lips, and for a Lesson to all, not to draw too deep, or far from the Spring.

At the Fountain-head, Wotton discerned two Heroes: The one he could not distinguish. but the other was foon known for Temple, Ge. neral of the Allies to the Antients. His Back was turned, and he was employed in drinking large Draughts in his Helmet from the Fountain; where he had withdrawn to rest himself from the Toils of the War. Wotton observing him, with quaking Knees, and trembling Hands, spoke thus to himself: . Oh, that I could kill this " Destroyer of our Army; what Renown " should I purchase among the Chiefs? But to issue out against him, * Man against Man, "Shield against Shield, and Lance against Lance, what Modern of us dare? For he " fights like a God, and Pallas, or Apollo, are " ever at his Elbow. But, oh, Mother ! if " what Fame reports be true, that I am the " Son of fo great a Goddels, grant me to hit "Temple with this Lance, that the Stroke may " fend him to Hell, and that I may return in " Safety and Triumph, laden with his Spoils." The first Part of this Prayer the Gods granted at the Intercession of his Mother, and of Momus; But the rest, by a perverse Wind, sent from Fate, was scattered in the Air. Then Wotton grasped his Lance, and, brandishing it thrice over his Head, darted it with all his Might, the Goddess, his Mother, at the fame Time adding Strength. to his Arm. Away the Lance went hizzing, and reached even to the Belt of the averted Antient, upon which lightly grazing it fell to the Ground. Temple neither felt the Weapon touch him, nor heard it fall; and Wotton might have escaped to his Army with the Honour of having remitted his Lance against fo great a Leader, unrevenged; but Apollo enraged, that a Javelin, flung by the Affistance of so foul a Goddess, should pollute his Fountain, put on the Shape of ----, and loftly came to young * Boyle, who then accompanied Temple: He pointed first to the Lance, then to the distant Medern that flung it, and commanded the young Hero to take immediate Revenge. Boyle clad in a Suit of Armour which had been given him by all the Gods +, immediately advanced against the trembling Foe, who now fled before him. As a young Lion in the Libyan Plains, or Araby Defart, fent by his aged Sire to hunt for Prey, or Health, or Exercise; he scours along, wishing to meet some Tyger from the Mountains, or furious Boar: If chance a wild As, with Brayings importune, affronteth his Ear, the generous Beaft, although loathing to distain his Claws with Blood so vile, yet much provoked at the offensive Noise, which Echo, foolish Nymph * Charles Boyle, afterwards Earl of Orrery.

† Boyle was affifted in this Dispute by Dean Aldridge, Dr. Atterbury, afterwards Bishop of Rochetter, and other Persons at Oxford, celebrated for their Genius and their Learning, then called the Christ-Church Wits.

10.

on.

on,

of

er,

to

on

the

ed

h, e-

as

go

n,

ne

th

ke

is

n

to

a,

It

10.

re

if ie.

it

y,

"

at 1

e,

as

10

* This is also after the Manner of Homer; the Woman's getting a painful Livelihood by spinning, has nothing to do with the Similitude, nor would be excusable without such an Authority.

+ Vid. Homer.

IQI wonderous Length and Sharpness; and as this? Pair of Friends compacted stood close Side to Side, he wheeled him to the Right, and with unusual Force darted the Weapon. Bentley saw his Fate approach, and flanking down his Arms close to his Ribs, hoping to save his Body; in: went the Point, passing through Arm and Side, nor stopped, or spent its Force, until it had also pierced the valiant Wotton, who, going to suftain his dying Friend, shared his Fate: As when a skilful Cook has trussed a Brace of Woodcocks, he, with Iron Skewer, pierces the tender Sides of both, their Legs and Wings close pinioned to their Ribs: So was this Pair of Friends transfixed until down they fell, joined in their Lives, joined in their Deaths; so closely joined that Charon would mistake them both for one, and waft them over Styx for half his Fare. Farewel. beloved, loving Pair; few Equals have you left behind: And happy and immortal shall you be,. if all my Wit and Eloquence can make you.

And now

ch

2'5

n. ot

n, ck

d, ep.

nd

la-

ith

ge

af-

his ged

75 :

hat

ice

fhe

m-

the

the air

vas ves ith

V's Air ead, y's ile, of ous

the

has exDefunt cætera.

FINIS

THE BATTER OF THE PROPERTY AND

wondered a fire well than a part of the on which have book becoming the fitter will The dies white strong or coin boneday self com was referred the Wenters man with a way his Pare approach, and flanking days by School Bell what the present the first bell and or slot went the Point, rained brough have and Shor nor flooped, or men in theres, and in his bill thereod the pullant Watton and, a gone to he approve the seriof and boyen to share anish and mis-Alexander of the Court of the C when so desired the special and the - q olds see II has another he he wood to refer maned to their tibes So was this Pour of Pringer ment of board wild were they first blancher Lines, joined jostbese the school seld significant bne phanel and made washin bloom near A) well Byers Carolina half and available grant flow billion of and alough tow be a bare you lets. of not list landpust has vegen had a bailed is all my Wit and Blogueses can probe you

· Farthan

-

No Park But his

The Head Block CONTRACTOR OF

DISCOURSE

CONCERNING THE

Mechanical Operation

OF THE

SPIRIT.

In a LETTER to a FRIEND.

A FRAGMENT.

DISCOURSE

CONCERNMENT THE

Mechanical Operation

E H T T O

In a LETTER to a FRIEND.

IMI

A FRAGMENT.

Bookseller's Advertisement.

THE following Discourse came into my Hands perfect and entire: But there being feveral Things in it, which the present Age would not very well bear, I kept it by me some Years, resolving it should never see the Light. At length, by the Advice and Assistance of a judicious Friend, I have retrenched those Parts that might give most Offence, and have now ventured to publish the Remainder. Concerning the Author I am wholely ignorant; neither can I conjecture, whether it be the same with that of the two foregoing Pieces, the Original having been fent me at a different Time, and in a different Hand. The learned Reader will better determine, to whose Judgment I entirely submit it.

ST. TE. E

Bookfeller's Advertisement

ARACMENT

World floods be informed in it, For, to tell

DISCOURSE

to relate e. what were the teament proper form and St. Paul's Church yard, and Fleetslireit.

holds to general a vegre, as that of A Con-

MECHANICAL OPERATION

Places where at the finisher one where aperts are all the second consistences are all the seco

SPIRIT.

For T. H. Esquire *, at his Chambers in the Academy of the Beaux Esprits in New-England.

Mov, Sir, to proceed after the Me, RIS

IT is now a good while fince I have had in my Head something, not only very material, but absolutely necessary to my Health, that the World

Supposed to be Col. Hunter, Author of the Letter of Enthusiasm, mentioned in the Apology for the Tale of a Tub.

This Discourse is not altogether equal to the former, the best Parts of it being omitted; whether the Bookfeller's Account be true, that he durst not print the rest, I know not, nor, indeed, is it easy to determine, whether he may be relied on, in any Thing he says of this, or the former Treatises, only as to the Time they were writ in; which, however, appears more from the Discourses themselves, than his Relation.

World should be informed in it; For, to tellyou a Secret, I am able to contain it no longer. However I have been perplexed for some Time to resolve, what would be the most proper Form to fend it abroad in. To which End I have been three Days coursing through Westminster-hall, and St. Paul's Church-yard, and Fleet-street, to peruse Titles; and I do not find any, which holds so general a Vogue, as that of A Letter to a Friend: Nothing is more common than to meet with long Epiftles addressed to Persons and Places, where at first thinking, one would be apt to imagine it not altogether so necessary or convenient; such as, a Neighbour at next Door, a mortal Enemy, a perfect Stranger, or a Person of Quality in the Clouds; and these upon Subjects in Appearance, the least proper for Conveyance by the Post; as, long Schemes in Philosophy; dark and wonderful Mysteries of State; laborious Differtations in Criticism and Philosophy , Advice to Farlia. ments, and the like in affire A zene I vit to will

Now, Sir, to proceed after the Method in prefent wear. (For, let me fay what I will to the contrary, I am afraid you will publish this Let ter; as foon as ever it comes to your Hand.) I defire you will be my Witness to the World, how careless and sudden a Scribble it has been; that it was but Yesterday, when you and I began accidentally to fall into Discourse on this Matter; that I was not very well when we parted; that the Post is in such Haste I have had no Manner of Time to digest it into Order, or correct the Stile; and if any other modern Exenses for Hafte and Negligence shall occur to you in reading, I beg you to infert them, faithfully promiling they shall be thankfully acknowledged. ever & themleives, than his Rolanic

11:

r.

ae

m

en

11,

t.

ch

to et br

be

or

r,

of ts

CO

rk

1-

4.

e-ie

1

d.

;

n

;

at of 96

10

h

1111 77 Pray, Sir, in your next Letter to the Iroquois Virtuoso, do me the Favour to present my humble Service to that illustrious Body, and assure them, I shall send an Account of those Phanomena, as soon as we can determine them at Gresham.

I have not had a Line from the Literati of Tobinambou these three last Ordinaries.

And now, Sir, having dispatched what I had to say, of Forms, or of Business, let me intreat you will suffer me to proceed upon my Subject; and to pardon me, if I make no farther Use of the epistolary Style, until I come to conclude.

bien is known to have how awed a Morety of his religious S, from from the Christina Fith, it is but just its fround pay Experities to toch us would challenge (them give and the good despited Fayland, toods them give and Right, have not continued, then also all Right, have not continued the foreign is the Wood to piemifelly provide tool Carteges for that Jouney, either as to Die jor Hafe; yet there are Abundance of us, who will not be faisfied with any other Mathins before sein of Mahring.

SECT.

For my own Part, I mud confoit to bour a yery singular Respect to this Animal, by whom I rake human Nature to be most admirably belt forth in all its Qualities as well as Operations. And, therefore, whatever in my small Realing occurs concerning this our Partow-creature, do never fail to see it down by way of Gormanne place; and when I have Occasion to write upon burnan Realin, Politicies, Euroquence, or Enow.

ASTRAGMENT.

Pray, SW, in your vest Letter to the Inquision of Series in your Series of the Inquision of Series of that that that the Body, and share them, I that fend an Account of those Fisco-man, as food as we can determine them at

T is recorded of Mahomet, that, upon a Vi-I fit he was going to pay in Paradife, he had an Offer of feveral Vehicles to conduct him upwards; as fiery Chariots, winged Horses, and Gelestial Sedans; but he refused them all, and would be borne to Heaven upon nothing but his Afr. Now, this Inclination of Mahomet, as fingular as it feems, hath been fince taken up by a great Number of devout Christians; and doubtless with very good Reason. For fince that Arabian is known to have borrowed a Moiety of his religious System from the Christian Faith, it is but just he should pay Reprisals to such as would challenge them; wherein the good People of England, to do them all Right, have not been backward. For, although there is not any other Nation in the World so plentifully provided with Carriages for that Journey, either as to Safety or Ease; yet there are Abundance of us, who will not be fatisfied with any other Machine befides this of Mahomet.

For my own Part, I must confess to bear a very singular Respect to this Animal, by whom I take human Nature to be most admirably held forth in all its Qualities as well as Operations: And, therefore, whatever in my small Reading occurs concerning this our Fellow-creature, I do never fail to set it down by way of Commonplace; and when I have Occasion to write upon human Reason, Politicks, Eloquence, or Knowledge.

Virtible.

rhon

MEN

Vi-

nad

up-

and

and

his

as

by abt-

lna-

his t is ould

e of een

ther

vith

fety

who

bear a nom

held ns:

ding

re, I non-

upon

now-

edge,

ledge, I lay my Memorandums before me, and infert them with a wonderful Facility of Application. However, among all the Qualifications ascribed to this distinguished Brute, by antient or modern Authors, I cannot remember this Talent of bearing his Rider to Heaven has been recorded for a Part of his Character, except in the two Examples mentioned already; therefore, I conceive the Methods of this Art to be a Point of useful Knowledge in very few Hands, and which the learned World would gladly be better informed in: This is what I have undertaken to perform in the following Discourse. For, towards the Operation already mentioned, many peculiar Properties are required both in the Rider and the Ass; which I shall endcavour to set in as clear a Light as I can laideth to guid I yus of Morocco and Foru. Farther, it has pollefied

But, because I am resolved by all Means to avoid giving Offence to any Party whatever, I will leave off discoursing so closely to the Letter, as I have hitherto done, and go on for the future by way of Allegory, although in fuch a Manner, that the judicious Reader may, without much straining, make his Applications as often as he shall think fit. Therefore, if you please, from henceforward, instead of the Term As, we shall make Use of gifted or enlightened Teacher; and the Word Rider, we will exchange for that of fanatic Auditory, or any other Denomination of the like Import. Having fettled this weighty Point, the great Subject of Enquiry before us is to examine by what Methods this Teacher arrives at his Gifts, or Spirit, or Light; and by what Intercourse between him and his Assembly it is cultivated and supported. are done, Willers bold them for the fame, clicilev my Memorendums In all my Writings I have had constant Regard to this great End, not to fuit and apply them to particular Occasions and Circumstances of Time. of Place, or of Person; but to calculate them for universal Nature, and Mankind in general. And of such catholic Use I esteem this present Disquisition; for I do not remember any other Temper of Body, or Quality of Mind, where in all Nations and Ages of the World have fo unanimously agreed, as that of a fanotic Strain, or Tincture of Enthusiasm; which improved by certain Persons or Societies of Men, and by them practifed upon the rest, has been able to produce Revolutions of the greatest Figure in History as will foon appear to those who know any Thing of Arabia, Persia, India, or China, of Morocco and Peru. Farther, it has possessed as great a Power in the Kingdom of Knowledge; where it is hard to assign one Art or Science, which has not annexed to it some fanatic Branch; Such are the Philosopher's Stone; the grand Elixin; the planetary Worlds; the Squaring of the Circle; the Summum Bonum , Utopian Commonwealths; with some others of less or subordinate Note: which all ferve for nothing elfe, but to employ or amuse this Grain of Enthusiasm dealt into every Composition adjust or salight and the

But, if this Plant has found a Root in the Fields of Empire and of Knowledge, it has fixed deeper, and spread yet farther upon boly Grand-Wherein, although it bath passed under the goneral Name of Embusies, and perhaps arisen from Chirated and Supported.

Some Writers hold them for the fame, others not.

Ito

to

sc,

em

al.

ent

ner

re-

lo

or by

by

to

in

WO

04, led

c;

ce,

th:

ir:

le :

ith

ich

OF

ery

reli

ced

nd-

gq-

en

OM

כנות era

from the same Original, yet hath it produced certain Branches of a very different Nature, however often mistaken for each other. The Word, in its universal Acceptation, may be defined, A lifting up of the Soul, or its Faculties, above Matter. This Description will hold good in general; but I am only to understand it, as applied to Religion; wherein there are three general Ways of ejaculating the Soul, or transporting it beyond the Sphere of Matter. The first is the immediate Act of God, and is called Prophecy or Inspiration. The second is the immediate Act of the Devil, and is termed Poffeffion. The third is the Product of natural Caules, the Effect of frong Imagination, Spleen, violent Anger, Fear, Grief, Pain, and the like. These three have been abundantly treated on by Authors, and therefore shall not employ my Enquiry. But the fourth Method of religious Enthusiasm, or launching out of the Soul, as it is purely an Effect of Artifice and mechanic Operation, has been sparingly handled, or not at all by any Writer; because, although it is an Art of great Antiquity, yet having been confined to few Perions, it long wanted those Advancements and Refinements, which it afterwards met with, fince it has grown to epidemic, and fallen into to many cultivating Hands. It stat at and it noth, it

It is therefore upon this mechanical Operation of the Spirit that I mean to treat, as it is at present performed by our British Workmen. I shall deliver to the Reader the Result of many judicious Observations upon the Matter; tracing, as near as I can, the whole Course and Method of this Trade, producing parallel Instances, and relating certain Discoveries that have luckily fallen in my way.

I have

I have faid that there is one Branch of religious Enthusiasm, which is purely an Effect of Nature: whereas the Part I mean to handle, is wholely an Effect of Art, which however is inclined to work upon certain Natures and Constitutions more than others. Belides there is many an Operation, which in its Original was purely an Artifice, but through a long Succession of Ages hath grown to be natural. Hippocrates tells us. that among our Ancestors; the Scythians, there was a Nation called * Long-heads, which at first began by a Custom among Midwives and Nurses, of moulding, and squeezing, and bracing up, the Heads of Infants; by which Means, Nature shut out at one Passage, was forced to seek another, and, finding Room above, that upwards in the Form of a Sugar-Loaf; and being diverted that way for some Generations, at last found it out of herself, needing no Assistance from the Nurse's Hands. This was the Original of the Scythian Long-beads, and thus did Cultom, from being a second Nature, proceed to be a first. To all which there is something very analogous among us of this Nation, who are the undoubted Posterity of that refined People. For in the Age of our Fathers there arose a Generation of Men in this Island, called Round-heads t.

* Macrocephali.

† The Fanaticks in the Time of Charles I. ignorantly applying the Text, "Ye know that it is a Shame "for Men to have long Hair," cut theirs very thort. It is faid, that the Queen once feeing Pyin, a celebrated Patriot, thus cropped, enquired who that round-headed Man was, and that from this Incident the Distinction became general, and the Party were called Round-heads.

doni

1045 ue;

lely

to ons

an

an ges

us,

iere first

les.

up, Na-

eek

up-

ing

laft

nce

Jul-

be ery

the For

ne-

ole

ame

ort.

ated

aded

tion:

whose Race is now spread over three Kingdoms, yet, in its Beginning was merely an Operation of Art, produced by a Pair of Scissars, a Squeeze of the Face, and a black Cap. These Heads, thus formed into a perfect Sphere in all Assemblies, were most exposed to the View of the Female Sort, which did influence their Gonceptions so effectually, that Nature at last took the Hint and did it of herself; so that a Round-head has been ever since as familiar a Sight among us, as a Lorg-head among the Scythians.

Upon these Examples, and others easy to produce, I desire the curious Reader to distinguish, first, between an Effect grown from Art into Nature, and one that is natural from its Beginning: Secondly, between an Effect wholely natural, and one which has only a natural Foundation, but where the Superstructure is entirely artificial. For, the first and the last of these I understand to come within the Districts of my Subject. And having obtained these Allowances, they may serve to remove any Objections that may be raised hereafter against what I shall advance.

The Practitioners of this famous Art proceed in general upon the following Fundamental: That, the Corruption of the Senses is the Generation of the Spirit: Because the Senses in Men are so many Avenues to the Fort of Reason, which in this Operation is wholely blocked up. All Endeavours must be therefore used either to divert, blind up, stupify, stuster, and amuse the Senses, or else to justle them out of their Stations; and while they are either absent, or otherwise employed, or engaged in a civil War against each other, the Spirit enters and performs his Part.

Now,

Now, the usual Methods of managing the Senses upon such Conjunctures are what I shall be very particular in delivering, as far as it is law ful for me to do; but having had the Honour to be initiated into the Mysteries of every Society, I desire to be excused from divulging any Rites, wherein the Profane must have no Part.

whole Race is now forend over three Kinedanie.

But here, before I can proceed farther, a very dangerous Objection, must, if possible, be removed. For, it is positively denied by certain Criticks, that the Spirit can by any means be introduced into an Assembly of modern Saints; the Disparity being so great in many material Circumstances between the primitive way of Infoiration, and that which is practifed in the prefent Age. This they pretend to prove from the fecond Chapter of the Ads, where comparing both it appears; First, that the Apostles were gathered together with one Accord in one Place; by which is meant an universal Agreement in Opinion, and Form of Worship; a Harmony, fay they, so far from being found between any two Conventicles among us, that it is in vain to expect it between any two Heads in the same. Secondly, the Spirit instructed the Apostles in the Gift of speaking feveral Languages; a Knowledge fo remote from our Dealers in this Art, that they neither understand Propriety of Words, or Phrases, in their Laftly, fay these Objectors, the modern own. Artists do utterly exclude all Approaches of the Spirit, and bar up its antient Way of entering, by covering themselves so close, and so industriously a-top. For, they will needs have it as a Point clearly gained, that the Cloven Tongues never fat upon the Apostles Heads while their Hats were on.

sie

the

1 be

aw.

r to ety,

tes,

rery

retain

inrial

In-

prethe

oth

loge-

ant orm

rom

cles

spi-

ting

der-

heir

lern

the

ing,

duf-

t as igues

heir

OW,

Now, the Force of these Objections seems to consist in the different Acceptation of the Word Spirit; which, if it be understood for a supernatural Assistance, approaching from without, the Objectors have Reason, and their Assertions may be allowed; but the Spirit we treat of here, proceeding intirely from within, the Argument of these Adversaries is wholely eluded. And upon the same Account, our modern Artificers find it an Expedient of absolute Necessity to cover their Heads as close as they can, in order to prevent Perspiration, than which nothing is observed to be a greater Spender of mechanic Light, as we may perhaps farther shew in convenient Place.

To proceed therefore upon the Phanomenon of Spiritual Mechanism, it is here to be noted, that in forming and working up the Spirit, the Assembly have a confiderable Share, as well as the Preacher. The Method of this Arcanum is as follows: They violently strain their Eye-balls inward; half closing the Lids; then, as they sit, they are in a perpetul Motion of See-saw, making long Humms at proper Periods, and continuing the Sound at equal Height, chusing their Time in those Intermissions, while the Preacher is at Ebb. Neither is this Practice in any Part of it so singular and improbable, as not to be traced in diffant Regions from Reading and Obfervation. For, first, the * Jauguis, or enlightened Saints of India, fee all their Visions by help of an acquired Straining and Pressure of the Eyes. Secondly, the Art of See-Jaw on a Beam, and swinging VOL. XX. by

* Bernier, Mem. de Mogol.

by Session upon a Cord, in order to raise artificial Extasses, hath been derived to us from our * Scythian Ancestors, where it is practifed at this Day among the Women. Laftly, the whole Proceeding, as I have here related it, is performed by the Natives of Ireland, with a considerable Improvement; and it is granted, that this noble Nation hath, of all others, admitted fewer Corruptions, and degenerated least from the Purity of the old Tartars. Now. it is usual for a Knot of Irish Men and Women to abstract themselves from Matter, bind up all their Senses, grow visionary and spiritual, by Influence of a short Pipe of Tobacco handed round the Company; each preserving the Smoke in his Mouth, until it cometh again to his Turn to take in fresh; at the same Time, there is a Concert of a continued gentle Humm, repeated and renewed by Instinct, as Occasion requireth; and they move their Bodies up and down, to a Degree, that sometimes their Heads and Points die parallel to the Horizon. Mean while, you may observe their Eyes turned up in the Posture of one, who endeavours to keep himself awake; by which, and many other Symptoms among them, it manifestly appears, that the Reasoning Faculties are all suspended and superseded, that Imagination hath usurped the Seat, scattering a thousand Deliriums over the Brain. Returning from this Digression, I shall describe the Methods by which the Spirit approacheth. The Eyes being disposed according to Art, at first you can see nothing; but after a short Pause, a small glimmering Light begins to appear, and dance before you. Then, by frequently moving your Body up and down, you perceive the Vapours to ascend very fast, until you are perfectly dosed and flustered like one, who drinks too much in a Morning. Mean while, the Preacher is also at Work; he begins a loud Humm, which pierceth you quite through; this is immediately returned by the Audience, and you find yourself prompted to imitate them, by a mere spontaneous Impulse, without knowing what you do. The Interstitia are duly filled up by the Preacher, to prevent too long a Pause, under which the Spirit would foon faint and grow languid.

· Guagnini Hift, Sarmat, ald pointed

This is all I am allowed to discover about the Progress of the Spirit, with Relation to that Part which is borne by the Affembly; but in the Methods of the Preacher, to which I now proceed, I shall be more large and particular.

M 2 SECT.

mer fer them a prophy, and its aredifyer. Types

I applaud shera for, is their biforesion in limit-affect about their the winds wifer

States Condent of the State of idolators albro two livership: the Conf. and then of Hell; which in vi elievisu ilcin a la noque noches ses ever confident of the later to the second idea bali been iranaged by ile frieless and u that Menlind, by the manta Light of ing their Devotions and their Deities to their foficial

our d at the t, is th a rted. ad-

ated

ow, men

p all In-ound e in n to

is a ated

eth; to a pints

you

sture

ke;

ong

ning

that ng a

ning

Me-The first ause, and ving

vour

void Body pa and county you remaind the force has it was easy by many rose are pre-

JOU will read it very gravely remarked in the Books of those illustrious and right eloquent Penmen, the modern Travellers : that the fundamental Difference in Point of Religion. between the wild Indians and us, lies in this; that we worship God, and they worship the Devil. But, there are certain Criticks, who will by no Means admit of this Distinction; rather believing that all Nations whatfoever adore the true God. because they seem to intend their Devotions to some invisible Power, of greatest Goodness and Ability to help them; which perhaps will take in the brightest Attributes ascribed to the Divinity. Others, again inform us, that those Idolators adore two Principles; the Principle of Good, and that of Evil: Which, indeed, I am apt to look upon as a most universal Notion, that Mankind, by the mere Light of Nature, ever entertained of Things invisible. How this Idea hath been managed by the Indians and us, and with what Advantage to the Understandings of either, may well deserve to be examined. To me the Difference appears to be little more than this, that they are put oftener on their Knees by their Fears, and we by our Defires; that the former fet them a praying, and us a curfing. What I applaud them for, is their Discretion in limiting their Devotions and their Deities to their feveral Districts, nor ever suffering the Liturgy of the White God to cross or to interfere with that of the Black. Not so with us, who, pretending by the Lines and Measures of our Reason to extend the Dominion of one invisible Power, and contract that of the other, have discovered a gross Ignorance in the Natures of Good and Evil, and most horribly confounded the Frontiers. of both. After Men have lifted up the Throne of their Divinity to the Cælum Empyræum, adorned with all such Qualities and Accomplishments, as themselves seem most to value and possess: After they have funk their Principle of Evil to the lowest Centre, bound him with Chains, loaded him with Carles, furnished him with viler Difpositions than any Rake-bell of the Town, accoutred him with Tail, and Horns, and huge; Claws, and Saucer Eyes; I laugh aloud to fee these Reasoners at the same Time engaged in wife: Dispute, about certain Walks and Purlieus, whether they are in the Verge of God or the; Devil; feriously debating, whether such and such Influences come into Men's Minds, from above or below, whether certain Passions and Affections: are guided by the Evil Spirit or the Good:

in

bt

hat

n,

S :

vil.

HO

e-

148 ns

nd

ke

)i-

ose

of ana

n, re,

his

us,

Го

an

by

)F-nat

it-

C-ral

Dum fas atque nefas exiguo fine libidinum.
Discernunt avidi.

Thus do Men establish a Fellowship of Christic with Belial, and such is the Analogy they make between cloven Tongues and cloven Feet. Of the like Nature is the Disquisition before us: It hath continued these hundred Years an even Debate, whether the Deportment and the Cant of our English Enthusiastic Preachers were Possession or Inspiration, and a World of Argument has been M 3 drained drained on either Side perhaps to little Purpose. For, I think, it is in Life, as in Tragedy, where it is held a Conviction of great Defect, both in Order and Invention, to interpose the Assistance of preternatural Power without an absolute and last Necessity. However, it is a Sketch of human Vanity, for every Individual to imagine the whole Universe is interested in his meanest Concern. If he hath got cleanly over a Kennel, some Angel unfeen descended on Purpose to help him by the Hand; if he hath knocked his Head against a Post, it was the Devil, for his Sins, let loose from Hell, on purpose to buffet him. that fees a little paultry Mortal, droning, and dreaming, and drivelling to a Multitude, can think it agreeable to common good Sense, that either Heaven or Hell should be put to the Trouble of Influence or Inspection upon what he is about? Therefore, I am refolved immediately to weed this Error out of Mankind by making it clear, that this Mystery of vending spiritual Gifts' is nothing but a Trade, acquired by as much Instruction, and mastered by equal Practice and Application, as others are. This will best appear by describing and deducing the whole Process of the Operation as variously, as it hath fallen under my Knowledge or Experience.

Here the whole Scheme of spiritual Mechanism was deduced and explained, with an Appearance of great Reading and Observation; but it was thought neither safe nor convenient to print it.

Here it may not be amiss to add a few Words upon the laudable Practice of wearing quilted Caps; which is not a Matter of mere Custom, Humour, or Fashion, as some would pretend, but an Institution of great Sagacity and Use: These, when moistened with Sweat, stop all Perspiration; and, by reverberating the Heat, prevent the Spirit from evaporating any Way but at the Mouth; even as a skilful Housewife, that covers her Still with a wet Clout for the fame Reason, and finds the same Effect. For, it is the Opinion of choice Virtuofi, that the Brain is only a Crowd of little Animals, but with Teeth and Claws extreamly sharp, and therefore cling together in the Contexture we behold, like the Picture of Hobbes's Leviathan, or like Bees in perpendicular Swarm upon a Tree, or like a Carrion corrupted into Vermin, still preserving the Shape and Figure of the Mother Animal: That all Invention is formed by the Morfure of two or more of these Animals upon certain capillary Nerves, which proceed from thence, whereof three Branches spread into the Tongue, and two into the right Hand. They hold also, that these Animals are of a Constitution extreamly cold; that their Food is the Air we attract, their Excrement Phlegm; and that what we vulgarly call Rheums, and Colds, and Distillations, is nothing else but an epidemical Looseness, to which that little Commonwealth is very Subject, from the Climate it lies under. Farther, that nothing less than a violent Heat can disentangle these Creatures from their hamated Station of Life, or give them Vigour and Humour to imprint the Marks of their little Teeth. That, if the Morfure be Hexagonal, it produceth M 4

fe. re in ce nd uhe

by a ofe

o, nd an

is ly it

fts npear

ess len

*

*

ere

Poetry; the Circular giveth Eloquence: If the Bite hath been Conical, the Person, whose Nerve is so affected, shall be disposed to write upon Politicks; and so of the rest.

I shall now discourse briefly, by what Kind of Practices the Voice is best governed towards the Composition and Improvement of the Spirit; for without a competent Skill in tuning and toning each Word, and Syllable, and Letter, to their due Cadence, the whole Operation is incompleat, misseth entirely of its Effect on the Hearers, and puts the Workman himself to continual Pains for new Supplies without Success. For, it is to be understood, that in the Language of the Spirit, Cant and Droning supply the Place of Sense and Reason in the Language of Men: Because, in spiritual Harangues, the Disposition of the Words according to the Art of Grammar, hath not the least Use, but the Skill and Influence wholely lie in the Choice and Cadence of the Syllables; even, as a discreet Composer, who, in setting a Song, changes the Words and Order so often, that he is forced to make it Nonlense, before he can make it Musick. For this Reason it hath been held by some, that the Art of Canting is ever in greatest Perfection, when managed by Ignorance; which is thought to be enigmatically meant by Plutarch, when he tells us, that the best musical Instruments were made from the Bones of an Ass. And the profounder Criticks upon that Passage are of Opinion, the Word, in its genuine Signification, meaneth no other; than a Jaw-bone; although some rather think it to have been the Os facrum; but in fo nice 4: Case I shall not take upon me to decide, the Curious are at Liberty to pick from it whatever they please. The

he

ofe

ite.

of

he

t;

ir

it,

s, al

г,

of

-

f

Ir.

e

e

,

r

.

1

.

t

12

12

The first Ingredient towards the Art of Canting is a competent Share of inward Light; that is to say, a large Memory, plentifully fraught with Theological Pollysyllables, and mysterious Texts from Holy Writ, applied and digested by those Methods and mechanical Operations already related: The Bearers of this Light resembling Lanterns, compact of Leaves from old Geneva Bibles; which Invention, Sir Humphrey, Edwyn, during his Mayoralty, of happy Memory, highly approved and advanced; affirming the Scripture to be now fulfilled, where it says, Thy Word is a Lantern to my Feet, and a Light to my Paths.

Now, the Art of Canting confifts in skilfully. adapting the Voice to whatever Words the Spirit delivers, that each may firike the Ears of the Audience with its most significant Cadence. The Force or Energy of this Eloquence is not to be found, as among antient Orators, in the Dispofition of Words to a Sentence, or the turning of long Periods; but agreeable to the modern Refinements in Mulick, is taken up wholely in: dwelling and dilating upon Syllables and Letters. Thus it is frequent for a fingle Vowel to draw Sighs from a Multitude; and for a whole Affembly of Saints to fob to the Musick of one folitary Liquid. But these are Trifles; when even Sounds inarticulate are observed to produce asforcible Effects. A Master Workman shall blow his Nose so powerfully, as to pierce the Heart's of his People, who are disposed to receive the Excrements of his Brain with the same Reverence as: the Iffue of it. Hawking, Spitting, and Belching, the Defects of other Men's Rhetorick, are the Flowers. M. 5.

Flowers, and Figures, and Ornaments of his. For, the Spirit being the same in all, it is of no Import through what Vehicle it is conveyed.

It is a Point of too much Difficulty to draw the Principles of this famous Art within the Compass of certain adequate Rules. However, perhaps I may one Day oblige the World with my critical Essay upon the Art of Canting, Philosophically, Physically, and Musically considered.

But, among all Improvements of the Spirit, wherein the Voice hath borne a Part, there is none to be compared with that of conveying the Sound through the Nose, which under the Denomination of * Snuffling, hath passed with so great Applause in the World. The Originals of this Institution are very dark; but having been initiated into the Mystery of it, and Leave been given me to publish it to the World, I shall deliver as direct a Relation as I can.

This Art, like many other famous Inventions, owed its Birth, or at least, Improvement and Perfection, to an Effect of Chance; but was established upon solid Reasons, and hath flourished in this Island ever since with great Lustre. All agree, that it first appeared upon the Decay and Discouragement of Bag pipes, which having long suffered under the mortal Hatred of the Brethren, tottered for a Time, and at last fell with Monarchy. The Story is thus related.

As

* The Snuffling of Men, who have lost their Noses by lewd Courses, is said to have given Rise to that Tone, which our Dissenters did too much affect. W. Wotton.

As yet Snuffling was not, when the following Adventure happened to a Banbury Saint. Upon a certain Day, while he was far engaged among the Tabernacles of the Wicked, he felt the outward Man put into odd Commotions, and strangely pricked forward by the Inward; and Effect very usual among the Modern Inspired. For, some think, that the Spirit is apt to feed on the Flesh, like hungry Wines upon raw Beef. Others, rather believe, there is a perpetual! Game at Leap-Frog between both; and sometimes the Flesh is uppermost, and sometimes the Spirit; adding, that the former, while it is inthe State of a Rider, wears huge Rippon Spurs, and, when it comes to the Turn of being Bearer. is wonderfully head-strong and hard-mouthed. However it came about, the Saint felt his Veffet full extended in every Part (a very natural Effect of strong Inspiration) and the Place and Time falling out fo unluckily, that he could not have the Convenience of Evacuation upwards, by Repitition, Prayer, or Lecture; he was forced to open an inferior Vent. In short, he wrestled with the Flesh so long, that he at length subdued it, coming off with honourable Wounds, all be-The Surgeon had now cured the Parts primarily affected; but the Disease, driven from its Post, flew up into his Head; and, as a skilful General, valiantly attacked in his Trenches, and beaten from the Field, by flying Marches withdraws to the capital City, breaking down the Bridges to prevent Pursuit; so the Disease, repelled from its first Station, fled before the Rod of Hermes to the upper Region, there fortifying itself; but, finding the Foe make Attacks at the Nose, broke down the Bridge, and retired

is.

aw the er, ith ilo-

rit,
is
the

nieat his ni-

de-

ns, and was

re. cay ing the fell

As

ofes hat

retired to the Head quarters. Now, the Naturalifts observe, that there is in human Noses an Idiosyncracy, by Virtue of which, the more the Passage is obstructed, the more our Speech delights to go through, as the Musick of a Flagelet is made by the Stops. By this Method, the Twang of the Nose becomes perfectly to refemble the Snuffle of a Bag-pipe, and is found to be equally attractive of British Ears; whereof the Saint had sudden Experience, by practifing his new Faculty with wonderful Success in the Open ration of the Spirit: For, in a short Time no Doctrine passed for Sound and Orthodox, unless: it were delivered through the Nose. Straight, every Pastor copied after this Original; and those, who could not otherwise arrive to a Perfection, spirited by a noble Zeal, made Use of the same Experiment to acquire it, so that, I think, it may be truly affirmed, the Saints owe their Empire to the Snuffling of one Animal, as Darius did his to the neighing of another; and both Stratagems were performed by the same Art; for we read, how the * Persian Beast acquired his Faculty, by covering a Mare the Day before.

I should now have done, if I were not convinced, that whatever I have yet advanced upon this Subject, is liable to great Exception. For, allowing all I have said to be true, it may still be justly objected, that there is, in the Commonwealth of Artificial Enthusiasm, some real Foundation for Art to work upon in the Temper and Complexion of Individuals, which other Mortals seem to want. Observe but the Gesture, the Motion, and the Countenance of some choices choice Professors, although in their most familiar Actions, you will find them of a different Race from the rest of human Creatures. Remark your commonest Pretender to a Light within, how dark, and dirty, and gloomy he is without: As Lanterns, which the more Light they bear in their Bodies, cast out so much the more Soot and Smoke, and fuliginous Matter to adhere to the Sides. Listen but to their ordinary Talk, and look on the Mouth that delivers it; you will imagine you are hearing some antient Oracle, and your Understanding will be equally informed. Upon these, and the like Reasons, certain Objecters pretend to put it beyond all Doubt, that there must be a Sort of preternatural Spirit, possessing the Heads of the modern Sain s; and some will have it to be the Heat of Zeal working upon the Dregs of Ignorance, as other Spirits are produced from Lees by the Force of Fire. Some again think, that when our earthly Tabernacles are disordered and desolate, shaken and out of Repair, the Spirit delights to dwell within them; as Houses are faid to be haunted, when they are forfaken and gone to Decay. importing or a committee of the first Ha ti Shi V sha stro

e

5

3) $:

,

t

9

1

1

,

e

•

*

T

11 o c

Ċ:

11

To set this Matter in as fair a Light as possible, I shall here very briefly deduce the History of Fanaticism from the most early Ages to the present. And if we are able to fix upon any one material or fundamental Point, wherein the chief Professors have universally agreed, I think we may reasonably lay bold on that, and assign it for the great Seed or Principle of the Spirit.

The most early Traces we meet with of Fanaticks in antient Story are among the Ægyptians, who instituted those Rites known in Greece by the Names of Orgia, Panegyres, and Dionysia; whether introduced there by Orpheus, or Melampus, we shall not dispute at prefent, nor in all Likelihood at any Time for the future. * These Feasts were celebrated to the Honour of Osiris, whom the Grecians calls Dionysius. and is the same with Bacchus: Which has betraved some superficial Readers to imagine, that the whole Business was nothing more than a Set of roaring, fcouring Companions, over-charged with Wine; but this is a scandalous Mistake, foisted on the World by a Sort of modern Authors, who have too hteral an Understanding; and, because Antiquity is to be traced backwards. do therefore, like Jews, begin their Books at the wrong End, as if Learning were a Sort of Conjuring. These are the Men, who pretend to understand a Book by scouting through the Index, as if a Traveller should go about to describe a Palace, when he had feen nothing but the Privy; or like certain Fortune-tellers in Northern America, who have a way of reading a Man's Destiny by peeping into his Breech. For, at the Time of instituting these Mysteries, there was not one Vine in all Ægypt, the Natives drinking nothing but Ale; which Liquor feems to have been far more antient than Wine, and has the Honour of owing its Invention and Progress not only to the 1 Ægyptian Ofiris, but to the Grecian Bacchus, who in their famous Expedition carried the Receipt of it along with them, and gave it to the Nations they visited or subdued. Besides,

whisting

. Diod. Sic. L. 1. Plut, de Ifide and Orifide.

† Herod. L. 2.

<sup>1</sup> Diod, Sic, L, 1, & 3.

Besides, Bacchus himself was very seldom or never drunk: For, it is recorded of him, that he was the first Inventor of the * Mitre; which he wore continually on his Head, (as the whole Company of Bacchanals did) to prevent Vapours and the Head-ach after hard drinking. And for this Reason, say some, the Scarlet Whore, when she makes the Kings of the Earth drunk with her Cup of Abomination, is always lober herfelf, although she never baulks the Glass in her Turn, being, it feems, kept upon her Legs, by Virtue of her Triple Mitre. Now, these Feasts were instituted in Imitation of the famous Expedition Osiris made through the World, and of the Company that attended him, whereof the Bacchanalian Ceremonies were fo many Types and Symhols. + From which Account it is manifest, that the Fanatick Rites of these Bac. chanals, cannot be imputed to Intoxications by Wine, but must needs have had a deeper Foundation. What this was, we may gather large Hints from certain Circumstances in the Course of their Mysteries. For, in the first Place, there was in their Processions an intire Mixture and Confusion of Sexes; they affected to ramble about Hills and Deserts: Their Garlands were of Juy and Vine. Emblems of Cleaving and Clinging; or of Fir. the Parent of Turpentine. It is added, that they imitated Satyrs, were attended by Goats, and rode upon Asses, all Companions of great Skill and Practice in Affairs of Gallantry. They bore for their Ensigns certain curious Figures, perched upon long Poles, made into the Shape and Size of the virga genitalis, with its Appurtenances, which * Id. L. 4.

n

ır

3, 9-

at et

d

e,

1-

;;

ts,

at

of

to

x,

: a

y;

e-

e-

he vas

ing

ave

the

not re-

ion

and.

red.

es,

+ See the Particulars in Diod. Sic. L. 1. & 3.

which were so many Shadows and Emblems of the whole Mystery, as well as Trophies set up by the Female Conquerors. Lastly, in a certain Town of Attica the whole Solemnity, * stripped of all its Types, was performed in puris natura, libus; the Votaries not slying in Covies, but sorted into Couples. The same may be farther conjectured from the Death of Orpheus, one of the Institutors of these Mysteries, who was torn in Pieces by Women, because he resused to † communicate bis Orgies to them; which others explained, by telling us, he had castrated himself upon Grief for the Loss of his Wife.

Omitting many others of less Note, the next Fanaticks we meet with of any Eminence, were the numerous Sect of Hereticks appearing in the five first Centuries of the Christian Æra from Simon Magus and his Followers to those of Entyches. I have collected their Systems from infinite Reading, and, comparing them with those of their Successors in the several Ages fince, I find there are certain Bounds fet even to the Irregularity of human Thought, and those a great deal narrower than is commonly apprehended. For, as they all frequently interfere, even in their wildest Ravings; so there is one fundamental Point, wherein they are fure to meet, as Lines in a Centre, and that is the Community of Women. Great were their Solicitudes in this Matter, and they never failed of certain Articles in their Schemes of Worship on purpose to effablish it. the state of the state of the son

The

* Dionysia Brauronia.

† Vid. Photium in excerptis e Conone.

The last Fanaticks of Note were those, which started up in Germany a little after the Reformation of Luther; springing, as Mustrooms do, at the End of a Harvest: Such were John of Leyden, David George, Adam Neuster, and many others, whose Visions and Revelations always terminated in leading about half a Dozen Sisters apiece, and making that Practice a sundamental Part of their System. For, human Life is a continual Navigation, and if we expect our Vessels to pass with Sasety through the Waves and Tempests of this succutating World, it is necessary to make a good Provision for the Flesh, as Seamen lay in Store of Beef for a long Voyage.

Now, from this brief Survey of some principal Sects among the Fanaticks in all Ages, (having omitted the Mahametans and others, who might also help to confirm the Argument I am about) to which I might add feveral among ourselves, fuch as the Family of Love, Sweet Singers of Ifrael, and the like : And from reflecting upon that fundamental Point in their Doctrines about Women, wherein they have so unanimonsly agreed; I am apt to imagine, that the Seed or Principle, which has ever put Men upon Visions in Things invisible, is of a corporeal Nature: For, the profounder Chymists inform us, that the strongest Spirits may be extracted from human Flest. Besides, the spinal Marrow, being nothing elfe but a Continuation of the Brain, must needs create a very free Communication between the Superior Faculties and those below: And thus the Thorn in the Flesh serves for a Spur to the Spirit. I think, it is agreed among Physicians, that nothing affects the Head so much, as a tentiginous Humour, repelled

n

h

n

-

1, 0

36

in se.

U

repelled and elated to the upper Region, found by daily Practice to run frequently up into Madness. A very eminent Member of the Faculty affured me, that when the Quakers first appeared. he seldom was without some Female Patients among them for the Furor. Persons of a visionary Devotion, either Men or Women, are in their Complexion of all others the most amorous: For Zeal is frequently kindled from the same Spark with other Fires, and, from inflaming brotherly Love, will proceed to raise that of a Gallant. If we inspect into the usual Process of modern Courtship, we shall find it to confift in a devout Turn of the Eyes, called Ogling; an artificial Form of Canting and Whining by Rote every Interval, for want of other Matter, made up with a Shrug or a Humm; a Sigh or a Groan; the Stile compact of infignificant Words, Incoherences, and Repitition, These I take to be the most accomplished Rules of Address to a Mistress; and where are these performed with more Dexterity, than by the Saints? Nay, to bring this Argument yet closer, I have been informed by certain fanguine Brethren of the first Class, that in the Height and Orgasmus of their spiritual Exercise, it has been frequent with them * * * immediately after which they found the Spirit to relax and flag of a sudden with the Nerves, and they were forced to haften to a Conclusion. This may be farther strengthened by observing, with Wonder, how unaccountably all Females are attracted by visionary or enthusiastic Preachers, although never fo contemptible in their outward Mien; which is usually supposed to be done upon Considerations purely spiritual, without any carnal Regards at all. But, I have Reason to think, d-ty d, ts i-

re

0-ne

1-

at

to br

of 1;

g -

n. es

le i

10

r, e-

en

to nd n.

g,

es

rs,

rd on er-

he

the Sex hath certain Characteristicks, by which they form a truer Judgment of human Abilities and Performings, than we ourselves can possibly do of each other. Let that be as it will, thus much is certain, that however spiritual Intrigues begin, they generally conclude like all others; they may branch upwards towards Heaven, but the Root is in the Earth. Too intense a Contemplation is not the Business of Flesh and Blood; it must, by the necessary Course of Things, in a little Time let go its Hold, and fall into Matter. Lovers, for the Sake of Celestial Converse, are but another Sort of Platonicks, who pretend to fee Stars and Heaven in Ladies Eyes, and to look or think no lower; but the same Pit is provided for both: And they seem a perfect Moral to the Story of that Philosopher, who while his Thoughts and Eyes were fixed upon the Constellations, found himself seduced by his lower Parts into a Ditch.

I had somewhat more to say upon this Part of the Subject; but the Post is just going, which forceth me in great Haste to conclude,

SIR,

Yours, &c.

Pray burn this Letter as soon as it comes to your Hands.

JUNEAU TO the grad min correct Character Fiche, by which der lore a ture let money f burge Abluite ed Responsible, that ned your live controlling A STAN THE WALL STAN TO SERVICE WITH STAN TO SERVICE STAN TO S at market the Maintage & STATE OF THE STATE OF pintos is vete die de la contra del la contra de la contra de la contra del la contra del la contra de la contra del Allocations and the first - 1 M. c. of For Left Albeit bit op sel om T. of the er Lifes, for the Sains of Coteffel Converte. he bet another See of Biatonicks, who bretend out the Level self at I nit neverth known as self of in a fil sait and ; were to a signif an slot There is a songent that a find and inclivery Moral corning Property of the Phillopseed, Tho while Thoughts and pive were five und ing thought the all the set they thee Doll hour Parel has a Waldham was a second an trad still no so will extramely be really the 198 the Bullion is true to Port in the relative will be beeth me in great Halleto conclude.

> Bearlain Micheller arjim is it cous Chernellendr ch.

odi

Cardid Talquistions on the Commer

CATALOGUE

OF

BOOKS,

Printed and fold by GEORGE FAULKNER, in Parliament-freet.

A UTOMATEHS, samo	2 2
A Bower's Lives of the Popes,	100
7 vols	torribus 19
Bachelor of Salamanea, 2 vols 12mo o	1124 14
Brown's Dissertations, &c. 12mo	2 8h
Berwick's Life, 12mo MIK aived to	79 19 Blacksmith's Letter ones company	Hillory o voole
Compleat Family Piece, 1 2006	3
Co	nnoisseur

	1.	s	1
Connoisseur, 2 vols 12mo		•	5
Clark's Sermons, 5 vols 8vo.	I	5	0
Candid Disquisitions on the Common	)	J
Prayer	0	3.	3
Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, 2 vols	0	5	5
Colley Cibber's Life	0	2	8h
Cloyne's Miscellanies, or Tracts re-	10	2	8h · lating to Ireland		-	7
Cry, 2 vols 12mo	0	3	3
-Cole's Fables, 12mo	0	2	3 2
Cary's Memoirs	0	2	2
Conduct of a Married Life, 12mo	0	2	2
Directions for Drawing	0	2	2
Du Plessi's Memoirs	0	2	8h
Dunkin's Irene	0	1	1
Duhamel's Agriculture, 2 vols 8vo	0	8	8
Darcy's Argument, 8vo	0	2	8h
Decker on Trade, 12mo	0	2	6
Dacier's Homer, 5 vols 12mo	0	13	6h
Dissertation on Parties, 12mo	0	2	8h
Ellis on Sheep, 8vo	0	5	5
Effay on Spirit, 12mo	0	2	2
Estimate (Dr. Brown's) on the Man-	7		•
ners and Principles of the Times	60	3	3
Fitzosborne's Letters, 12mo	0	2	2
Familiar Letters, 12mo	0	2	2
Grey's Debates, 10 vols 8vo	3	7	6
Gordon's Geography, 8vo	0	5	0
Gulliver's Travels, 12mo	0	2	. 8h
Gaudentia di Lucca's Memoirs, 12n	10 0	. 2	8h
Hume's History of England, 8 vols 8	vo 2	12	0
History of Lewis XIth, 2 vols 12n	10.0	5	5
History of England, 12mo	0		2
History of France, 2 vols 12mo	. 0	. 6	6
History of the Bible, 8vo	0		3
Conneilleur Gonneilleur		I	lenry

		. 5.	d.	100
Henry Prince of Wales, his Life by Birch	9	5	5
Hervey's Letters, 2 vols 12mo	0	5	5
Herring's Sermons, 8vo	0	4	4
Jasper Banks, 12mo	0	2	8h
Joseph Andrews, 12mo	0	2	8h
Jenning's Jewish Antiquities, 2 vols	0	13	0
Juvenal's Satires, 12mo	0	2	8h	The second second Julia's Letters to Ovid, 12mo	0	2	2
Kitchen, Fruit, and Flower Garden	0	I	7h
Kippax on Commerce, 8vo	0	5	5
Life of King David, 8vo	0	5	5
Letters from the East, 2 vols 12mo	0	6	6
Life of Socrates, 12mo	0	3	3
Lewis XIV. 2 vols 12mo.	0	5	3 5
London and its Environs, 6 vols ?	1	12	.6 cuts, 8vo		14	.0
Leland's Itinerary, 9 vols bound	2	70
in 3, Oxf.	-	13	0
Lord Orrery's Pliny, 2 vols 8vo.	0	11	4h
State Letters, 2 vols 8vo	0	ю	10
Remarks on Swift, 8vo	0	4	4 Lyttelton's (Lord) History of the Life ?
of KingHenry IId, 3 vols 8vo sewed $	0	17	4
Marianne, 3 vols 12mo	0	6	6
Montesquieu's Spirit of Laws, 2 vols?	_	6	6
12mo	0	v	•
Matho, 2 vols 12mo	0	5	-
Maintenon's Letters, 2 vols 12mo	0	4	5
Memoirs of a Coxcomb	0	A 45 M	2
Moore's Fables for the Fair Sex	0	ī	1
Old Baily Trials, 4 vols 12mo	0	8	8
Ouvres de M. Corneille, avec fig. ]	-	144.119	2 exemp. elegans, 12 toms	4	9	0
Preceptor, plain Maps, 2 vols	0	TI	ah
Coloured Maps		11	11	diam'r.
Port Royal's Greek Grammar, 8vo	10	6	6
		Po	zzo's
			may 3	1

	A THE COURSE
Pozzo's Perspechive, Cuts, fol.	l. s. d.
Pitt's Virgil, 4 vols 12mo	7 7
Pilpay's Fables, 12mo	9 13 0
Prior's Works, 2 vols 12mo	A to on Pharfamond, 2 vols 12mo	9 19 1.5
Peter Wilkins, 2 vols 12mo	0 4 1eh
Pompey the Little, 12mo	0 4 101
Polydore and Julia	O TOTAL S
Rollin's Belles Lettres, 4 vols 12mo	0 10 10
Roman Empresses, 3 vols 12mo	0 4 10h
Royal and Noble Authors	0 2 8h
Rudiments of Antient History, 12mo	0 2 8h Rudiments of Antient History, 12mo Robinsons Abridgment of the Ec- clesiastical Statutes clesiastical Statutes	0 5 5
Swift's Works, 20 vols 8vo	5 0 0
12mo	2 14- 2h
12mo 18mo Sheiden on British Education	2 7 6
Sheridan on British Education	0 2 2
's Plan of Education	0 1 1
Shenstone's Works, 2 vols 12mo	0 6 6 Theophilus Cibber's Life, 12mo
Turkish Spy, 8 vols 12mo	0/17 4
Theory and Dractice of Commerce Que	133.50
Tracts relating to Ireland, by Berk-	community.
ley, Bishop of Cloyne, 12mo	Uplation 1
Tandon's French Grammar	0 2 8h
Universal Hist. 7 vols fol	4.11.10
20 VOIS 8VO	FIOO
Uncertainty of the Signs of Death ]	miorus R
12mo	2 230014
Voltaire's Age of Lewis XIV. 2 vols	Did Bail
12mo	Davies c
Hift. of Peter the Great	0 2 8h
Letters, 12mo giala	90309
Victor's Hift, of the Stage, 2 vols	0 2 on World, 4 vols ramo	0 10 10
Fozzois Fozzois	- 56
(3) (6)	3.